Contract Expires

Truckers Leave Cabs To Join Picket Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Truck drivers stepped down from their cabs and picketed terminals in several major cities today with the expiration of nationwide trucking contracts and talks deadlocked over a new pact.

The pattern was one of scattered and local action, but some 10,000 St. Louis Teamsters were reported staying away from work. A St. Louis trucker said the trucking industry "is shut down from St. Louis to Kansas City."

All 5,000 Teamsters walked off the job in Denver, 1,000 of them forming picket lines.

Teamster pickets also were walking in Kansas City, San Francisco and San Jose, Calif.

In Chicago where separate talks are being conducted, union officials said the 50,000 members in that area would not strike this morning. "We may get this thing solved very shortly," said a Teamster leader in Chicago.

Nationally, the Teamsters Union has not issued a strike call for its 425,000 members. But some walkouts were expected with the contract expiration at midnight and sources have admitted more pressure would be helpful at the bargaining table.

The Teamsters union and Trucking Employers Inc. had narrowed their wage differences slightly before the Tuesday talk recess but were still some 80 cents an hour apart.

Early indications pointed to efforts by Teamsters offifcials to head off any scattered work stoppages. Union officials in Detroit reported receiving a call from Teamsters leaders in Washington saying telegrams were going out to all locals asking members to stay at work pending today's talks.

An officer of the Houston, Tex., Teamsters local also said his members would work under the old contract as long as negotiations continue.

U.P. Normal

Trucking operations in the upper Peninsula remain normal today despite walkouts by Teamsters Union members at various sites in the United States, according to officials of Clairmont Transfer Co. and C. W. Transport, Inc., in Escanaba. Clairmont employes at Evansville and Indianapolis, Ind., have walked off jobs but the only effect this will have on the U.P. will be in the freight going to and coming from those two terminals, said Jack Winters, vice president of operations.

Deputies Find Going Rugged Over Evictions

CHICAGO (AP) — With furniture strewn over the snowy lawns and 100 policemen standing by, bricks and stones flew as deputy sheriffs evicted 12 families for not making monthly payments on their homes.

The deputies were in the midst of the eviction Tuesday when members of a crowd of more than 300 began throwing things at the police guard.

Reinforcements were called in and 25 persons were arrested. Two policemen were injured, neither seriously.

Most of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct and assault. Police said one pointed a revolver and was charged with aggravated assault and unlawful use of a weapon.

A crowd attempted to overturn a police car, but its driver sped away without difficulty.

As vans hauled the family possessions away, Arthur Williams, a steel worker and one of the persons evicted, asked: "Where to now? Maybe back to the ghetto."

"It isn't right. Still, there's no sense in violence," he said.

The 12 families are members of the Contract Buyers League, which has been withholding monthly payments on home purchases because, they maintain in a suit seeking to upset the contracts, the agreements are unfair.

The families contend that the sellers overcharged them for the property and took advantage of their inability to understand contract language.

In contract buying, the seller retains title to the property until the full amount of the purchase price is paid.

An attorney for the sellers said his clients had a waiting list of new buyers ready to move into the small frame houses in a Negro neighborhood.

Army Deserter Serving Robbery Term In Sweden

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — U.S. Army deserter John Martin Babcock, 23, was sentenced to five years in prison here Tuesday for armed robbery.

The trial came a week after he was overpowered by passers-by and arrested as he fled down a street with 25,000 kroner — $3,300.

Babcock, who deserted from his unit in West Germany in May and went to Sweden, got the fastest trial of any robber in Denmark since World War II, officials said.

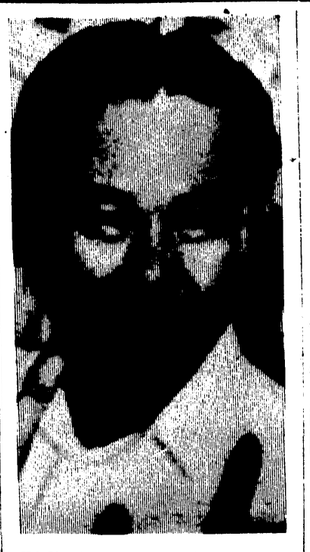

The prosecutor told the court the trial was in line with a new policy aimed at using quick justice to counter a wave of armed robberies in the Copenhagen area over the last six months. Several of the robberies were committed by foreigners.

Babcock, whose only available home address is Michigan, made a full admission in court and said he had made several trips to Copenhagen from Sweden to plan the robbery. But he also blamed desperate conditions as a deserter in Sweden for making him a robber.

He told the court he lost a factory job in Sweden after an accident, could not afford medical treatment for an injured wrist and failed to get aid-mainly to learn the Swedish language - from Swedish social welfare authorities.

Stepped-Up VC Attacks Noted; 38 Yanks Killed

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong launched their heaviest coordinated attacks across South Vietnam in seven months Tuesday night, hitting more than 100 bases and towns and inflicting the heaviest allied casualties since last August.

Reports were still incomplete, but the allied commands and other sources in Saigon said casualties were at least 38 Americans killed and 184 wounded, 65 South Vietnamese troops killed and 176 wounded, and 240 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

The enemy inflicted serious American and South Vietnamese casualties in more than a dozen of the attacks and at the same time kept their own casualties down by employing rockets, mortars and small commando-sapper units hurling dynamite bombs and firing rocket grenades.

The U.S. Command termed the attacks a "highpoint" of enemy activity but said the sharp increase in activity would not be considered a spring offensive unless it continued.

The U.S. Command also announced that a U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bomber was hit by ground fire over North Vietnam Monday but said the two crewmen nursed it to within 4½ miles of their base in Thailand before the plane crashed. The two crewmen ejected safely, but two Thai civilians were injured.

A communique from U.S. headquarters reported 114 rocket and mortar attacks Tuesday night, 39 of them against American air bases, divisional and brigade headquarters. A spokesman said 44 of the 114 attacks caused casualties or damage.

Hands Off Plan For Cambodia Given Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two veteran Senate Republicans have joined in praising Democratic leader Mike Mansfield for warning of the pitfalls of U.S. involvement in the deteriorating Cambodian situation.

The senators, George D. Aiken of Vermont and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky also said they expect President Nixon to resist any pressures for deeper Southeast Asian involvement which Mansfield said he feared.

"We should not intervene in the Cambodia situation in any way, shape or form," Mansfield told the Senate Tuesday. He said his constitutents were against intervention and added:

"The time to clamp down the lid on a further U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia is now."

Aiken, senior GOP member of both the Senate and its Foreign Relations Committee, called Mansfield's statement "the sort of speech that can be very helpful to the President of the United States and to the secretary of state."

Cooper, also a Foreign Relations Committee member, said he hopes Mansfield's advice "will be followed. I have every expectation that it will be."

Meanwhile, Secretary of State William P. Rogers advised the committee he would prefer his testimony Thursday be behind closed doors, rather than in public as had been planned. The request was granted.

25 Survive Jetliner Crash In Morocco

2 Wings, Tail Ripped Apart From Fuselage

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — A Moroccan twin-jet Caravelle crashed within two miles of the Nouasseur Airport while coming in for a landing today. Airline officials said 25 of the 82 persons aboard survived the crash and a fire which roared through the front part of the plane.

The Royal Aur Morac flight from Agadir, an Atlantic resort in southern Morocco, to Paris, with a stop at Casablanca, carried 76 passengers and a crew of six. Among the passengers were 26 tourists returning from a stay at the Club Mediterranee vacation colony at Agadir.

Debris was scattered over an area of nearly a mile. The wings were found 350 yards apart. The tail of the plane was 300 yards from the main part of the fuselage.

Most of the survivors were believed to have been sitting in the tail section which was spared from fire after the craft tore apart under the impact.

Abdeslam Ben Hammou, governor of Agadir Province, was one of the survivors. Two cabin stewards were reported to have escaped.

The control tower at Nouasseur Airport—a former U.S. Air Force Base which is now Casablanca's principal landing field—said that the last message from the pilot was that everything was normal and that he was making his approach.

The plane apparently lost altitude for unknown reasons, and the left wing seemed to dip sharply. It tore through a cluster of telephone wires.

The front part of the cabin was badly burned. Charred luggage, souvenirs and clothing were scattered over a wide area.

Ambulances from surrounding villages and helicopters from police headquarters in Rabat went to the scene. The wounded, many of them in serious condition, were taken to hospitals in Casablanca.

The pilot of the plane, Roger Emond, a veteran of 20,000 flying hours, was on loan to Royal Air Maroc from Air France.

RELEASED BY HIJACKERS — Twenty-three passengers, mostly women and children, who were aboard the Japanese plane, "Yodo" are being directed by an airport official as they left the jetliner prior to takeoff. The plane was hijacked to North Korea but landed in South Korea. Some of "Red Army" members are shown in the doorway of the plane at the Fukouka Airport in Japan. It is reported that the plane is due in North Korea today. (AP Wirephoto)

N. Koreans OK Landing

SEOUL (AP) — North Korea gave a go-ahead today for a hijacked Japanese airliner grounded here to land in Pyongyang, and the plane's hijackers demanded to be flown north at daybreak Thursday.

In a radiotelephone conversation with a Japanese official, a spokesman for the 15-odd Japanese radical students who seized the plane Tuesday demanded that the plane depart for Pyongyang at 6 a.m. local time—4 p.m. EST today.

In the past the students have demanded that the plane's 100 crew members and passengers—among them two Americans—make the trip to North Korea with them. The North Korean announcement said the passengers and crew would be sent back to Japan immediately.

South Korean officials today reiterated their demand that the students allow the passengers of the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 get off befofre it flew northward.

The hostages, after more than 30 hours inside the Boeing 727 jet, were reported in generally fair condition. The pilot reported some were suffering from exhaustion and tension.

The official North Korean news agency KCNA said in a brief broadcast from Pyongyang that the United Nations Command had contacted North Korea this morning in an attempt to solve the deadlock between the hijackers and the South Koreans.

The Communist broadcast promised that the "safety of the plane . . . would be ensured during the flight in the territorial air of our side and those on board the plane would be given humanitarian treatment if the plane came to our side." But it added: "Our side cannot assume responsibility for a possible accident on the plane itself."

The Japanese Red Cross reported in Tokyo that it had cabled the North Korean Red Cross asking for all possible help in gaining the early release of all aboard the plane should the aircraft fly to North Korea.

McLain Out For 90 Days

NEW YORK (AP) — Denny McLain, award-winning pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, was suspended to July 1 by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn today.

The commissioner cited the reason as McLain's "becoming the victim of a confidence scheme" involving Flint, Mich., gamblers.

The announcement was made by the commissioner at a noon press conference in a mid-town hotel.

In a two-page statement, Kuhn said:

"In January, 1967, McLain played an engagement at a bar in Flint, Mich., and there became acquainted with certain gamblers said to be involved in bookmaking operations.

"McLain at that time commenced placing basketball bets with this operation and subsequently he was persuaded to make financial contributions totaling approximately $5,700."

"While McLain believed he had become a partner in this operation and has so admitted to me in the presence of his personal attorney, it would appear that in fact he was the victim of a confidence scheme.

"I would thus conclude that McLain was never a partner and had no proprietary interest in the bookmaking operation.

"The fair inference is that his own gullibility and avarice had permitted him to become a dupe of gamblers with whom he associated.

Kuhn said the action did not remove dereliction on McLain's part for association with the Flint gamblers.

He added:

"A thorough ivestigation has not revealed any other material facts beyond those I have described."

McLain was not present at the press conference. He was reported at Lakeland, Fla., where the Tigers are training, and where he said he probably will have a statement later this evening.

Favors Returned; Rich GOP Backer Gets Interior Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred J. Russell, a multimillionaire who contributed liberally to President Nixon's 1968 campaign, has been named to the Interior Department's second highest post.

Although it praised him highly when he was appointed to a lesser government job a year ago, the White House declined to go into detail Tuesday when asked Russell's qualifications for the new post.

President Nixon named the 53-year-old Beverly Hills, Calif., real estate operator as undersecretary of the interior to succeed Russell E. Train, appointed in January to head the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

Russell moves up from deputy director of the Office of Emergency Planning, a post he was named to shortly after Nixon's election in 1968.

Black Militant Bitter Over Firearms Charge

DETROIT (AP) — Black militant Robert Williams, charged Tuesday with violating a federal firearms law, noted bitterly, "If they changed that I killed Christ, I would be arrested and convicted."

Federal authorities said Williams, who is fighting extradition in North Carolina on 1961 kidnap charges, carried a rifle from Michigan to New York State March 19 while driving to Washington to testify before the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Released On Bond

Federal Judge Theodore Levin released Williams on $1,000 personal bond Tuesday after the defendant stood mute. A hearing was set for May 20.

Williams was stopped after crossing from Canada into the United States near Buffalo, N.Y. He told newsmen he knew there was a rifle in the borrowed car he was driving but insisted that it was not his and that the weapon was legally registered. He explained in an interview he did not consider himself to be carryng the weapon, snce he said it was not part of his belongs.

"I was driving through Canada because I felt safer there than on this side of the border," said Williams, former president of the Detroit-based black separatist Republic of New Africa.

They're going to make a changed man out of me," he said shortly after his federal court arraignment Tuesday. "I had hoped that I could live a normal life in this country, but that was an illusion. This morning I lost any hope in obtaining any justice in this country."

Williams was dressed in a Western-cut suit, white shirt and tie, attire far different from the Chinese - style clothing he wore when he returned to the United States last September ending eight years of exile, in Cuba and Communist China.

Fled U. S. In 1961

He fled the country in 1961 to avoid charges of kidnaping an elderly white couple in Monroe, N.C., during a night of racial violence. He said he returned to the United States to clear himself of the accusation.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken has honored a North Carolina request for extradition, but attorneys for Williams are appealing the decision. Government and defense attorneys agree the appeal process could take years.

The former president of the Monroe branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People appeared under subpoena three times during March to testify before the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Quizzed About Travel

He said most of the subcommittee questions related to his travels and activities in Cuba and Chna.

"I would rather go to jail than escape to Canada," Williams said. "It is better to have the government punish me as an innocent man, than to flee. The more the government is forced to crush, the more it destroys itself.

"By the end of this year, America will be changed beyond any recogniition as we know her today . . . and it's not because of a conspiracy, it is what America is dong to herself," he said, predicting the rise of fascism and then anarchy.

Destruction Near

"America is destryong itself—I'll stake my life on that," he said, "And it's not a matter of years, it's a matter of months."

He said that as a result of the

Fleming's Future At Stake In Crisis

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The next move in the protracted dispute over black admissions at the University of Michigan seems to be in the hands of the school's Board of Regents and word of what that move will be may come after a regents' meeting today.

The eight regents met secretly for six houre Tuesday with university President Robben W. Fleming and executive officers of the school at a secluded university-owned mansion on the outskirts of Ann Arbor.

Following the meeting, Fleming would say only: "I have no other comment than to say we have met and discussed these issues and will meet again tomorrow."

The Black Action Movement (BAM) has presented a list of demands, the most important of which call for a black enrollment of 10 per cent by the fall of 1973, the hiring of recruiters to attract the black students and the funding of recruitment and minority-scholarship programs.

At a meeting March 19, the regents agreed to a goal of seven per cent black enrollment with scholarship funding by 1973, but said the funds were unavailable for the additional three per cent demanded by BAM. The school's enrollment is currently about three per cent black.

BAM called the strike after the regents failed to approve the 10 per cent demand at the March 19 meeting.

BAM called a moratorium on the picketing of classrooms Tuesday and Darryl Gorman, a leader of BAM, said the moratorium would continue today.

Ed Fabre, another of the top BAM leaders, said BAM would not make any public statement at this time concerning the reasons for calling off the picket lines. Both Gorman and Fabre said that despite the lack of picketing, the strike was continuing.

There was speculation Tuesday that a decision to end picketing was reached after BAM came to a tentative agreement with Fleming on the demands. Neither BAM nor spokesmen for the university would comment on the reports.

"I would thus conclude that McLain was never a partner and had no proprietary interest in the bookmaking operation.

"The fair inference is that his own gullibility and avarice had permitted him to become a dupe of gamblers with whom he associated.

Kuhn said the action did not remove dereliction on McLain's part for association with the Flint gamblers.

He added:

"A thorough ivestigation has not revealed any other material facts beyond those I have described."

McLain was not present at the press conference. He was reported at Lakeland, Fla., where the Tigers are training, and where he said he probably will have a statement later this evening.

Favors Returned; Rich GOP Backer Gets Interior Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred J. Russell, a multimillionaire who contributed liberally to President Nixon's 1968 campaign, has been named to the Interior Department's second highest post.

Although it praised him highly when he was appointed to a lesser government job a year ago, the White House declined to go into detail Tuesday when asked Russell's qualifications for the new post.

President Nixon named the 53-year-old Beverly Hills, Calif., real estate operator as undersecretary of the interior to succeed Russell E. Train, appointed in January to head the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

Russell moves up from deputy director of the Office of Emergency Planning, a post he was named to shortly after Nixon's election in 1968.

Black Militant Bitter Over Firearms Charge

DETROIT (AP) — Black militant Robert Williams, charged Tuesday with violating a federal firearms law, noted bitterly, "If they charged that I killed Christ, I would be arrested and convicted."

Federal authorities said Williams, who is fighting extradition in North Carolina on 1961 kidnap charges, carried a rifle from Michigan to New York State March 19 while driving to Washington to testify before the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Released On Bond

Federal Judge Theodore Levin released Williams on $1,000 personal bond Tuesday after the defendant stood mute. A hearing was set for May 20.

Williams was stopped after crossing from Canada into the United States near Buffalo, N.Y. He told newsmen he knew there was a rifle in the borrowed car he was driving but insisted that it was not his and that the weapon was legally registered. He explained in an interview he did not consider himself to be carryng the weapon, snce he said it was not part of his belongs.

"I was driving through Canada because I felt safer there than on this side of the border," said Williams, former president of the Detroit-based black separatist Republic of New Africa.

They're going to make a changed man out of me," he said shortly after his federal court arraignment Tuesday. "I had hoped that I could live a normal life in this country, but that was an illusion. This morning I lost any hope in obtaining any justice in this country."

Williams was dressed in a Western-cut suit, white shirt and tie, attire far different from the Chinese - style clothing he wore when he returned to the United States last September ending eight years of exile, in Cuba and Communist China.

Fled U. S. In 1961

He fled the country in 1961 to avoid charges of kidnaping an elderly white couple in Monroe, N.C., during a night of racial violence. He said he returned to the United States to clear himself of the accusation.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken has honored a North Carolna request for extradition, but attorneys for Williams are appealing the decision. Government and defense attorneys agree the appeal process could take years.

The former president of the Monroe branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People appeared under subpoena three times during March to testify before the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Quizzed About Travel

He said most of the subcommittee questions related to his travels and activities in Cuba and China.

"I would rather go to jail than escape to Canada," Williams said. "It is better to have the government punish me as an innocent man, than to flee. The more the government is forced to crush, the more it destroys itself.

"By the end of this year, America will be changed beyond any recogniition as we know her today . . . and it's not because of a conspiracy, it is what America is dong to herself," he said, predicting the rise of fascism and then anarchy.

Fleming's Future At Stake In Crisis

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The next move in the protracted dispute over black admissions at the University of Michigan seems to be in the hands of the school's Board of Regents and word of what that move will be may come after a regents' meeting today.

The eight regents met secretly for six houre Tuesday with university President Robben W. Fleming and executive officers of the school at a secluded university-owned mansion on the outskirts of Ann Arbor.

Following the meeting, Fleming would say only: "I have no other comment than to say we have met and discussed these issues and will meet again tomorrow."

The Black Action Movement (BAM) has presented a list of demands, the most important of which call for a black enrollment of 10 per cent by the fall of 1973, the hiring of recruiters to attract the black students and the funding of recruitment and minority-scholarship programs.

At a meeting March 19, the regents agreed to a goal of seven per cent black enrollment with scholarship funding by 1973, but said the funds were unavailable for the additional three per cent demanded by BAM. The school's enrollment is currently about three per cent black.

BAM called the strike after the regents failed to approve the 10 per cent demand at the March 19 meeting.

BAM called a moratorium on the picketing of classrooms Tuesday and Darryl Gorman, a leader of BAM, said the moratorium would continue today.

Ed Fabre, another of the top BAM leaders, said BAM would not make any public statement at this time concerning the reasons for calling off the picket lines. Both Gorman and Fabre said that despite the lack of picketing, the strike was continuing.

There was speculation Tuesday that a decision to end picketing was reached after BAM came to a tentative agreement with Fleming on the demands. Neither BAM nor spokesmen for the university would comment on the reports.

'Pick Up The Pace'

Levin Says Pollution Reassessment Needed

By DAVE ANDREWS

State Sen. Sander Levin, asserting that Michigan's $335 million clean water bond issue passed last year already is out of date, told a group of Escanaba area residents Wednesday night that the state should "pick up the pace on pollution" control efforts.

Levin, who announced Monday that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, spent his first full day on the campaign trail in the Upper Peninsula, meeting and speaking to groups in Calumet, Houghton and Marquette before the session in Escanaba at the Civic Center.

In Houghton he charged that the "Nixon-Romney-Milliken axis has calculatingly imposed unemployment as a way of life in Michgian."

He said the result of Nixon administration policies is "6.6 per cent unemployment in Michigan compared to 4.1 per cent in February of 1969—a 60 per cent increase in unemployment since Nixon became president."

Levin said the preliminary February estimated unemployment for the Upper Peninsula is 12.4 per cent.

Symbolizes State

The meeting in Escanaba, arranged by Nino Green of Gladstone, announced Democratic candidate for the 11th District Congressional seat now held by Republican Phil Ruppe of Houghton, was designed to discuss local concerns with environmental pollution and how the state could help in their solution, Green said.

"Your problem here symbolizes an enigma for Michigan," Levin said, pointing out that Delta County has received national publicity because of the environmental protection efforts underway in the area for the past year.

Citizens at the meeting, including representatives of industry, government, the news media, the Save Our Air committee and other local citizen groups, discussed the Mead Corp. and Chicago & North Western Railway Co. situations, along with other environmental problems — litter, pesticides, thermal pollution wastewater disposal, etc—and the various approaches to protection of the environment.

Reassessment Coming?

"My guess is that within the next few months the state is going to have to totally reassess what it's going to do in terms of pollution," Levin commented. "Everybody in Lansing knows that the first phase (the $335 million clean water bond issue) already is out of date."

He said current estimates indicate that three or four times that amount will be needed in Michigan.

Levin asked whether or not the state has a "completely thought out program, a blueprint for the 70s" to control pollution, then answered by saying the discussion indicated "we do not."

He said the state must face the questions of who protects, who pays the price and do we have a different set of standards for new and old polluters.

Financial Approach

In financing pollution control efforts, Levin said the problem boils down to three approaches — taxpayer pays, consumer pays or a combination of the two.

If the state undertakes a program of heavy subsidization to industry in the form of tax credits for anti-pollution equipment the bill will fall on the taxpayer, he said. If the state takes the position that "one of the costs of doing business is non-polluting equipment" then the consumer will pay through higher product costs.

Levin said government "can be both reasonable and tough" and cited California's anti-automobile emission standards as an example. When the bill was first passed, people questioned its wisdom, he said, but now the automobile industry is talking about producing pollution free vehicles within a few years.

More Citizen Control

Levin also supported the idea of giving the individual citizen more to say about controlling pollution through the courts, said the present processes in Michigan are too slow to respond to the needs of the people, that in applying a uniform law to the entire state limits the places of pressure and that the state is going through the "painful process" of reordering priorities.

"We can't go on saying waste now, pay later," he said.

Members of the Save Our Air committee said the Delta County area isn't willing to accept Wayne County as a common denominator for pollution standards in the state and that the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission is composed of "honorable people, but is much too slow" in reacting to local problems.

Smelt Dipping Legal In Area Until May 31

Use of hand nets for smelt dipping became legal March 1 and continues thru May 31, the Department of Natural Resources said today.

In Delta County, all streams and portions thereof south of US-2 except the entire Days River, Rapid River and Whitefish River are open. The Bark River is open only from the M-35 bridge down.

Past indications are that after ice breaking the ice then generally moves out with the first favorable wind movement. Open water generally sparks several spring fishing activities, among the first of which are the smelt runs and perch runs.

Beaver trapping season is in full swing, having opened on March 28, officers said. License sales were slow and the catch will probably be down proportionately. Only 324 licenses were sold this spring as compared to 389 in 1969 and 478 in 1968. The take last year in the Delta - Marquette - Alger county area was 1,033 beavers and 99 otter.

Fishing activity is slow, however, reports continue to be had of fair perch fishing in Upper Bay de Noc and in Big Shag Lake near Gwinn, and good rainbow trout fishing in Johnson Lake near Gwinn and at the mouth of Thompson Creek near Manistique. The early trout season opens April 4.

Correction

A report in Tuesday's Escanaba Daily Press on a three-car accident in Brampton Township was incorrect. Victoria LaFave, 621 Michigan Ave., Gladstone, was the driver of a disabled vehicle which was struck by vehicles driven by Dorothy Spevacek and Roger Nelson. The Press reported in error that the Spevacek car was disabled and hit by the LaFave and Nelson cars.

Publisher Of Smallest Paper Dies At Age 81

HART (AP) — Swift Lathers, a dedicated journalist who published what he described as the world's smallest newspaper, died today from a heart attack which struck him Friday as he gathered news for his paper.

The 81-year-old Lathers had edited and published the 5½ by 7½-inch Mears Newz for 54 years.

The four-page Newz was written in a single paragraph and often reflected Lathers' interest in conservation and school affairs. Lathers was frequently involved in law suits because of his editorials and he generally acted as his own lawyer, winning many of the legal battles.

His customary costume of green trousers and a blue shirt with a bright red tie made him a familiar sight to the residents of Oceana County.

Lathers suffered his heart attack while gathering items for the Newz in downtown Hart last Friday. He died at Oceana Hospital in Hart today.

At the time of his death, Lathers was involved in a battle over the sand dunes near Silver Lake.

Lathers argued that the motor vehicles were destroying the natural beauty of the area.

The editor was a staunch foe of the automobile and insisted upon gathering his news afoot.

Type for the Newz was set at a newspaper plant in Shelby but then Lathers took over.

He carried the type home and turned out the paper on an antique handpress in his home. In addition, he addressed copies of the paper by hand before mailing them to thousands of subscribers in dozens of other states and some foreign lands.

Lathers charged $2 for a three-month subscription to the Newz, $1 for six months and just 50 cents for a full year.

The editor, a teacher for a while after his graduation from Eastern Michigan University, once said he decided to come to Oceana County and stayed there because it was "that part of the world where I would rather be than anywhere else."

French Gunmen Seize Hostages, Shoot One

VILLEGRANCHE - SURMER, France (AP) — Four gunmen wearing red sweaters, their leader a mental hospital escapee, sized four tourists as hostages today and shot one in a day-long siege at a Riviera hotel.

The gunmen hurled a grenade, fired a burst at a policemen and shot down an elderly West German tourist, Mrs. Hans Tische, with a volley of machine-gun bullets. The woman, wounded when she tried to flee, was in serious condition in a hospital.

"Give us a car in front of the door and don't follow us," the men in Room 100 of the luxurious Versailles Hotel told the police at midafternoon. "Let us have the time to make 100 kilometers"—about 60 miles— "in the direction of Italy and we'll let the hostages go."

But the demand was turned down by Rene Mathieu, the police chief. He also said no to an offer by the bandits to free the hostages if Mathieu would ride away with them in a car.

Held by bandits were Mrs. Tische's 73-year-old husband and a middle-aged couple from Paris.

The siege began at 6 a.m. when police, called to the hotel by employees who noticd a weapon in the baggage of four male guests, began to make door-to-door checks. A burst of pistol fire answered the police search.

The gunmen tried to leave the hotel by sliding down knotted bed sheets but gave up, and crawled along a balcony that led to other rooms. One of the gunmen clutched a valise believed to contain loot from a holdup.

Then, the gunmen moved the four persons into a single room. Mrs. Tische was shot when she tried to escape. Later the gang's leader, Maurice Sorini, 25, who fled from Timone Psychiatric Hospital in Marseille six weeks ago, agreed to allow a doctor to evacuate her.

During the morning vans full of black uniformed riot police surrounded the three-story hotel and sealed off access to it. At the same time Mathieu began negotiating with Sorini, but the conversations got nowhere. The police agreed only to allow a bell boy to carry two packs of cigarettes to the gunmen on a silver platter.

Mathieu is an old adversary of Sorini whom he arrested last year. Sorini has been charged with eight holdups. His conversations with Sorini were by telephone.

"Be reasonable," Mathieu said on the phone. "You think you're a Chicago gangster but you're not. Don't be a fool."

Schweigert Will Not Seek Re-Election

LANSING (AP) — Acting Lt. Gov. Thomas Schweigert, a Republican state senator from Petoskey, announced today he will not seek re-election to the Senate seat he has held for 10 years.

Schweigert, whose district includes 14 counties in northern Lower Michigan and the eastern Upper Peninsula, did not reveal any future plans.

Schweigert, in the past, however, has expressed interest in running for lieutenant governor on a ticket headed by Gov. William G. Milliken.

House Minority Floor Leader William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, another lieutenant governor aspirant, also has announced he will not seek re-election to his House seat.

Schweigert also has indicated interest in a federal post, either with the U.S. Department of Interior or the Agriculture Department.

Schweigert, who holds a degree in forestry from Michigan State University, recently took on the official titles of Senate president and acting lieutenant governor, under terms of legislation passed last year when Milliken stepped into former Gov. George Romney's executive seat.

Rotary Club Hears Green

Nino Green, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 11th District, addressed the Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting at the House of Ludington Tuesday.

Thomas Straebel, Rotary president, conducted the meeting, and the speaker was introduced by Robert Haack. A question period followed the talk by Green, Gladstone attorney.

"Government exists to serve people," Green said, "and it is time for the people of this District to send a working Congressman to Washington."

"As a Congressman I would continue to work to make government and other institutions respond to the needs of the people," Green said. "A Congressman who rolls up his sleeves only to pose for campaign posters does not earn his salary."

Green suggested that "We take a good, hard look at the issues of inflation, unemployment, crime and pollution and ask 'Where are we going and who is leading us?' Those who think that they lead a 'silent' majority are obviously not listening to the American people."

"The people of this District deserve more than they are now getting by way of representation in Washington. I believe that I can do that job for them; and I wanted to work hard to earn that privilege," Green concluded.

Donaldson Voted Vice Chairman Of Commission

Charles E. Donaldson Jr., of Daggett was elected vice chairman of the Michigan Commission of Agriculture at the organization's meeting in Lansing.

He succeeds H. Thomas Dewhirst of Benton Harbor, who was named chairman. Mrs. Rebecca (Seth) Tompkins of Traverse City was elected secretary. Walter Lange of Sebewaing, retiring chairman, and David Diehl of Dansville, are the other members of the bipartisan Commission, policy-making body for the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

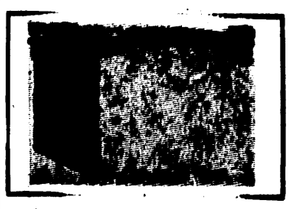

Donaldson, a Menominee County dairyman, operates a 360-acre farm, part of which his grandfather homesteaded in the last century. Chief crops are hay, corn and barley, used to feed his dairy herd.

Active in state and local affairs of the Michigan Farm Bureau, Michigan Milk Producers Association, and the State Extension Advisory Council, Donaldson was honored earlier this year with a "Distinguished Service to Agriculture" award during Farmers' Week at Michigan State University.

He has been a member of the Michigan Commission of Agriculture since 1966.

Type for the Newz was set at a newspaper plant in Shelby but then Lathers took over.

He carried the type home and turned out the paper on an antique handpress in his home. In addition, he addressed copies of the paper by hand before mailing them to thousands of subscribers in dozens of other states and some foreign lands.

Lathers charged $2 for a three-month subscription to the Newz, $1 for six months and just 50 cents for a full year.

The editor, a teacher for a while after his graduation from Eastern Michigan University, once said he decided to come to Oceana County and stayed there because it was "that part of the world where I would rather be than anywhere else."

French Gunmen Seize Hostages, Shoot One

VILLEGRANCHE - SURMER, France (AP) — Four gunmen wearing red sweaters, their leader a mental hospital escapee, sized four tourists as hostages today and shot one in a day-long siege at a Riviera hotel.

The gunmen hurled a grenade, fired a burst at a policemen and shot down an elderly West German tourist, Mrs. Hans Tische, with a volley of machine-gun bullets. The woman, wounded when she tried to flee, was in serious condition in a hospital.

"Give us a car in front of the door and don't follow us," the men in Room 100 of the luxurious Versailles Hotel told the police at midafternoon. "Let us have the time to make 100 kilometers"—about 60 miles— "in the direction of Italy and we'll let the hostages go."

But the demand was turned down by Rene Mathieu, the police chief. He also said no to an offer by the bandits to free the hostages if Mathieu would ride away with them in a car.

Held by bandits were Mrs. Tische's 73-year-old husband and a middle-aged couple from Paris.

The siege began at 6 a.m. when police, called to the hotel by employees who noticd a weapon in the baggage of four male guests, began to make door-to-door checks. A burst of pistol fire answered the police search.

The gunmen tried to leave the hotel by sliding down knotted bed sheets but gave up, and crawled along a balcony that led to other rooms. One of the gunmen clutched a valise believed to contain loot from a holdup.

Then, the gunmen moved the four persons into a single room. Mrs. Tische was shot when she tried to escape. Later the gang's leader, Maurice Sorini, 25, who fled from Timone Psychiatric Hospital in Marseille six weeks ago, agreed to allow a doctor to evacuate her.

During the morning vans full of black uniformed riot police surrounded the three-story hotel and sealed off access to it. At the same time Mathieu began negotiating with Sorini, but the conversations got nowhere. The police agreed only to allow a bell boy to carry two packs of cigarettes to the gunmen on a silver platter.

Mathieu is an old adversary of Sorini whom he arrested last year. Sorini has been charged with eight holdups. His conversations with Sorini were by telephone.

"Be reasonable," Mathieu said on the phone. "You think you're a Chicago gangster but you're not. Don't be a fool."

Schweigert Will Not Seek Re-Election

LANSING (AP) — Acting Lt. Gov. Thomas Schweigert, a Republican state senator from Petoskey, announced today he will not seek re-election to the Senate seat he has held for 10 years.

Schweigert, whose district includes 14 counties in northern Lower Michigan and the eastern Upper Peninsula, did not reveal any future plans.

Schweigert, in the past, however, has expressed interest in running for lieutenant governor on a ticket headed by Gov. William G. Milliken.

House Minority Floor Leader William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, another lieutenant governor aspirant, also has announced he will not seek re-election to his House seat.

Schweigert also has indicated interest in a federal post, either with the U.S. Department of Interior or the Agriculture Department.

Schweigert, who holds a degree in forestry from Michigan State University, recently took on the official titles of Senate president and acting lieutenant governor, under terms of legislation passed last year when Milliken stepped into former Gov. George Romney's executive seat.

Tickets For Shrine Ball Now Available

Tickets for the Shrine Charity Ball which will be held Saturday, May 2 at the Terrace Ballroom went on sale today, announced Committee Chairman Hans P. Johnson.

All members have been sent tickets and an early response is desired. Tickets are also available at the Leader Store, Andrea's Boutique, the Morrison Shop, Gust Asp's and the Ivory Drug Store.

As in past years, all proceeds realized from this colorful spring event will be used to further the work of the Shrine Crippled Children's Hospitals and Shrine Burns Centers.

Shrine hospitals, located throughout the United States and Canada, receive no assistance from federal, state or local government agencies. They are maintained soley through the work of Shriners and treatment is available to any child regardless of race, color or creed.

All treatment received at these hospitals is given absolutely free of cost.

The ball has been a popular social affair in past years and plans for this year's event are equally as festive, including dancing, a late buffet and numerous prizes. A large attendance is desired. As one Shriner expressed it, "Come and dance so that some unfortunate crippled child may walk."

Donaldson Voted Vice Chairman Of Commission

Charles E. Donaldson Jr., of Daggett was elected vice chairman of the Michigan Commission of Agriculture at the organization's meeting in Lansing.

He succeeds H. Thomas Dewhirst of Benton Harbor, who was named chairman. Mrs. Rebecca (Seth) Tompkins of Traverse City was elected secretary. Walter Lange of Sebewaing, retiring chairman, and David Diehl of Dansville, are the other members of the bipartisan Commission, policy-making body for the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Donaldson, a Menominee County dairyman, operates a 360-acre farm, part of which his grandfather homesteaded in the last century. Chief crops are hay, corn and barley, used to feed his dairy herd.

Active in state and local affairs of the Michigan Farm Bureau, Michigan Milk Producers Association, and the State Extension Advisory Council, Donaldson was honored earlier this year with a "Distinguished Service to Agriculture" award during Farmers' Week at Michigan State University.

He has been a member of the Michigan Commission of Agriculture since 1966.

Smelt Dipping Legal In Area Until May 31

Use of hand nets for smelt dipping became legal March 1 and continues thru May 31, the Department of Natural Resources said today.

In Delta County, all streams and portions thereof south of US-2 except the entire Days River, Rapid River and Whitefish River are open. The Bark River is open only from the M-35 bridge down.

Past indications are that after ice breaking the ice then generally moves out with the first favorable wind movement. Open water generally sparks several spring fishing activities, among the first of which are the smelt runs and perch runs.

Beaver trapping season is in full swing, having opened on March 28, officers said. License sales were slow and the catch will probably be down proportionately. Only 324 licenses were sold this spring as compared to 389 in 1969 and 478 in 1968. The take last year in the Delta - Marquette - Alger county area was 1,033 beavers and 99 otter.

Fishing activity is slow, however, reports continue to be had of fair perch fishing in Upper Bay de Noc and in Big Shag Lake near Gwinn, and good rainbow trout fishing in Johnson Lake near Gwinn and at the mouth of Thompson Creek near Manistique. The early trout season opens April 4.

A report in Tuesday's Escanaba Daily Press on a three-car accident in Brampton Township was incorrect. The Press reported in error that the Spevacek car was disabled and hit by the LaFave and Nelson cars.

Rotary Club Hears Green

Nino Green, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 11th District, addressed the Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting at the House of Ludington Tuesday.

Thomas Straebel, Rotary president, conducted the meeting, and the speaker was introduced by Robert Haack. A question period followed the talk by Green, Gladstone attorney.

"Government exists to serve people," Green said, "and it is time for the people of this District to send a working Congressman to Washington."

"As a Congressman I would continue to work to make government and other institutions respond to the needs of the people," Green said. "A Congressman who rolls up his sleeves only to pose for campaign posters does not earn his salary."

Green suggested that "We take a good, hard look at the issues of inflation, unemployment, crime and pollution and ask 'Where are we going and who is leading us?' Those who think that they lead a 'silent' majority are obviously not listening to the American people."

"The people of this District deserve more than they are now getting by way of representation in Washington. I believe that I can do that job for them; and I wanted to work hard to earn that privilege," Green concluded.

Census Starts Across Nation

Today is Census Day for the United States—no fooling.

Mrs. Robert Hansley, manager of the temporary census office in Escanaba, reports that 350 census takers, after being sworn in this morning, started visiting households throughout the Upper Peninsula.

Census questionnaires were distributed to households in these places by the Post Offcie a few days ago. They are to be filled out and held for the census taker to pick up. Mrs. Hansley said it will probably take from three to five weeks for the census takers to get around to all households.

It is possible that some households did not receive a questionnaire, but Mrs. Hansley said persons need not fear they will be missed because a census taker will find them and have a questionnaire for them.

Householders will not have any difficulty identifying enumerators for the Census she pointed out.

Each census taker will wear a red, white, and blue identification card. This card bears the seal of the Department of Commerce, and the words "Census Enumerator, Official Credential" are printed across its face. It bears the census taker's signature and certifies that she is authorized to perform the duties of a census enumerator and has sworn to kep confidential all census information you provide.

Persons purporting to be census takers who do not have this identification card should be reported immediately to the local police or to the census district office at Escanaba.

Census takers will be further identified by the portfolio containing their supplies. The portfolio is blue and bears the legend, "1970 Census." In the portfolio, the census taker carries report forms, maps, pencils, and other tools necessary.

General Education Testing Offered At Bay College

Bay de Noc Community College has again been designated as an official general educational development testing center by the Michigan Department of Education for a test to be given in two parts on April 4 and 11.

Persons passing the G E D test who have not completed their high school education may be eligible for the G E D high school equivalency certificate awarded by the Michigan Department of Education.

The equivalency certificate is awarded on the basis of the G E D examination to residents who demonstrate a reasonable skill in comprehension and interpretation of subject matter. The G E D subjects include: Effectiveness of Expression, Social Studies, Natural Science, Literature, and General Arithmetic.

Persons applying for the test must be 18 years of age and out of full time attendance at school for at least two calendar years. No previous high school attendance is required for earning the high school equivalency certificate.

Bay de Noc College will conduct the G E D test in two parts. Parts 1, 2 and 3 will be given on April 4 and Parts 4 and 5 on April 11, in Room 10 of the College.

Residents who would meet the eligibility requirements should contact the Student Personnel Office at the College for reservations and additional information. A fee of $10 is required to cover the cost of materials and may be paid at the College test center on the date of the examination, April 4.

Lansing Survey Backs Reforming Abortion Laws

LANSING (AP) — Some Lansing area residents favor reforming Michigan abortion laws but oppose reducing the penalties for possession or use of marijuana, says a sat representative who polled constituents.

Rep. Thomas Brown, R-Lansing, said preliminary results of his recent questionnaire show some 60 per cent of those replying favor liberalizing the abortion law that allows termination of pregnancy only when the life of the mother is endangered.

Some 40 per cent oppose such action, said Brown. He reported responses from some 2,000 of the 15,000 to whom queseionnaires were mailed.

The preliminary results also show 60 per cent opposed to reducing the marijuana penalties, with 40 per cent in favor of reduction, Brown said.

Survey results show 90 per cent of those replying "want something done about selling motor v e h i c l e registration lists," he said. Brown proposed increasing the cost of those lists to discourage speculators from buying them and reselling them to solicitors.

Police Ticketing Cars With Plates From Last Year

By The Associated Press

Police around Michigan began ticketing cars with 1969 license plates at 12:01 this morning as the deadline for installation of 1970 plates passed.

No figures were immediately available on the number of cars still without the new plates, but many cars were seen in the Detroit area late Tuesday with 1969 tags.

This is the first year for the April 1 expiration date; in previous years, Michigan plates expired on the last day of February. The change was made to allow motorists to install the plates in warmer weather.

Long lines formed at Secretary of State's offices Tuesday as car owners attempted to make it under the wire and avoid the $10 fine.

Population Hike Of Million Seen In State Census

LANSING (AP) — The 1970 Census will show Michigan with a population of 8.9 million—up more than one million from the 1960 census—says the Michigan Department of Commerce.

A recently completed analysis of population projections by the department's Office of Economic Expansion also indicates Michigan's population will be 13.5 million by the year 2000.

The forecast says Michigan will top 10 million in the late 1970s, climbing to 11.8 million in 1990.

Richard Whitmer, commerce department director, noted that in 1954 the U.S. Department of Commerce predicted Michigan would have more than nine million in 1970.

He said one reason the state's population fell short of that was "the decline in the birth rate experienced throughout the U.S. in that period."

"Our forecasts are constantly adjusted as new data becomes available," Whitmer said. "As soon as the official 1970 Census statistics are available, the projections we have just made will be revised again."

The best one-game passing effort in the Big Ten last season was turned in by Mike Phipps of Purdue. He completed 28 of 39 passes, for 429 yards against Stanford.

County Police?

In the past several months, suggestions have come from several directions urging consolidation of governmental functions in the Upper Peninsula.

Last fall, Gov. William Milliken proposed reorganization of the Intermediate School district structure in the state by combining many of the intermediate districts into broader-based units. Richard Whitmer, director of the Michigan Department of Commerce, made a part of his 10-point program for economic development of the Upper Peninsula the recommendation that many existing village and municipal governments be combined at a savings in tax dollars while at the same time providing better and more coordinated services and approach to local problems. There also has been a continued state effort in recent years encouraging local school district consolidations.

And now comes a report on crime and law enforcement in the U. P. developed for the Upper Peninsula Committee on Area Progress (UPCAP) which suggests consolidation of local police departments as a means toward an overall improvement in law enforcement.

* * *

Consolidation, of course, should only be considered when there would be some direct economic or service benefit to the communities concerned. It would serve little purpose for the City of Escanaba to join forces with Ironwood or Sault Ste. Marie. But there may be definite merit in taking a closer look at specific local situations.

Take Delta County, for example.

Law enforcement in the county presently falls under four departments — the Michigan State Police with a post at Gladstone, the city police at Escanaba, the city police at Gladstone and the Delta County Sheriff's Department. Although the departments work together quite closely and there is some coordination of purpose through the office of Prosecuting Attorney John Beauchamp, each department's responsibility is concentrated to its own constituency. Escanaba police patrol in Escanaba. Gladstone police work in Gladstone. The Sheriff's Department and State Police are primarily concerned with the county with the bulk of the patrol and investigative assignments going to the State Police because the Sheriff's Dept. is limited by its small staff and the responsibilities of maintaining the county jail.

Additionally, the Sheriff's Dept. is involved in marine law enforcement and search-rescue operations and the Department of Natural Resources has officers working on conservation-oriented problems.

* * *

Except for the State Police, which is an arm of state government, and the DNR, also a state department, which is concerned primarily with a different form of law violation, the possibiliaty of combining the city police forces of Escanaba and Gladstone with the Sheriff's Dept. deserves a reexamination. The suggestion has been made before, but it has never really gotten off the ground.

There would be problems to be workd out in any such merger, of course, including the rather formidable obstacle of working out an equitable financial settlement. But the benefits from a unified department in a coordinated approach to purchasing, training, investigation, manpower and facilities seem to be strong enough to override that consideration.

The county jail would be the logical place to headquarter a city-county police department, but it might be considered wise to maintain a sub-station or police precinct in Gladstone. At any rate, it is likely that the police station in Escanaba could be eliminated. There might be an opportunity in a joint department to expand the present marine law enforcement operation from summers only to a year-around patrol incorporating snowmobiles in winter.

Undoubtedly, other thoughts and problems would arise in any serious consideration of the proposal, but the suggestion still deserves consideration. It just might work.

Peculiar Bias

A peculiar bias colors the way the articles of the U. N. Charter are being interpreted and prevents the organization from living up to its expectations.

Angie Brooks, current president of the U. N. General Assembly, recently condemned the United States for involvement in Laos, citing Article 27 of the Charter which prohibits interference in the internal affairs of another nation.

At that very moment, North Vietnam was invading neighboring Laos, but Miss Brooks could not muster even a mild reproach to the aggressors.

It is estimated that over 20,000 North Vietnamese troops participated in this latest aggression. Occupying the Plain of Jars and other strategic points, they strengthen the position of Laotian Communists who have not been notably successful on their own in toppling the Vientiane government.

The North Vietnamese are there, moreover, without the consent of the legitimate Laotian government.

No American ground troops, by contrast, are in Laos. Those Americans who are present, pilots and advisers, function in support capacity for government military operations.

Their presence in Laos is with the consent of the Laotian government.

Yet, in the peculiar atmosphere that prevails at the United Nations, America's invited presence in Laos qualifies as "internal interference" but North Vietnam's obvious military aggression in violating Laotian territory does not.

In view of this kind of response, it isn't surprising that the U. N. exercises so little moral influence on the course of world affairs.

Williams, Romney Find Comeback Trail Tough

By DON HOENSHELL
Of Panax Newspapers

LANSING — Old politicians never fade away, they just try —again and again.

Sometimes there are enough followers of a legend to tap this wealth of experience, of savvy, to rekindle the fire and brilliance if there was any there in the first place.

So let us update the views of former Govs. G. Mennen Williams and George W Romney, who as contemporaries in other fields found rapport for what each could gain.

Romney was head of American Motors Corp. at a time when Williams was grateful for a figure in industry succeeding when Michigan's image as a chaser-away of industry was at its ripest.

And Williams, concerned as he was, became a favorite of Industrialist Romney because of what a strong partisan could do for industry as the No. 1 politician in Michigan.

Headed Study

Then Romney became head of the Detroit Citizens School Study Committee. The result lifted a political worry about Detroit schools for Williams, and a sigh arose which was both political and practical.

Williams in 1960 went on to the John F. Kennedy administration as assistant secretary of state in charge of African affairs. Romney went on to be one of two vice presidents of the state's Constitutional Convention.

We'll skip over the next few years because everybody knows that Williams distinguished himself in Africa and later in the Philippines, and Romney became governor following former Gov. John B. Swainson, then departed to be secretary of the Housing and Urban Development in the Nixon administration.

Both Lose, But . . .

Now we leapfrog to 1966 when Williams sought the United States Senate seat vacated by the death of Senator Patrick V. McNamara and to 1968 when Romney went for the GOP presidential nomination.

Both lost, but . . .

Williams defeated Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh in the primary for the chance to go against Robert P. Griffin, which was in retrospect like choosing a winning route at Las Vegas. You get off the plane and walk into the propeller.

Romney announced for the presidency, then for the first time encountered critics. He bowed out in a cloud of horsefeathers, posed before a one-way mirror at Miami Beach, then accepted HUD.

Now both are trying comebacks.

Williams, who appointed a handful of lawyers to the Michigan Supreme Court, now is willing to try for election to the same spot.

Ranged against him for the party nominations for two open seats are Swainson and T. John Lesinski, both canny politicians in their own right. Williams, only once a loser, has a fight.

Misjudged Milliken

And Romney, once also a loser, is using up his due bills trying to run the Michigan Republican party from Washington. The concensus debacle that finally resulted in his wife, Lenore, getting the organization nod as the nominee against Democratic Senator Philip A. Hart.

Romney's mistake was trying to run Gov. William G. Milliken, his heir but now a man who must and can use sharp steel to stay alive. Milliken has powerful allies and a mind of his own.

In their days, Williams rewrote Michigan's political book. Romney wrote a sequel and improved upon it. Now they're in the position of trying to come back when a question has arisen whether time has passed them by.

Later generations are in charge now—and their leaders are as hungry as Romney and Williams once were to serve and have their political beings.

They served Michigan well in their time, when the needs of the state demanded them.

Both Legends

Romney's light in Michigan is glimmering. The six months of work on behalf of Lenore's candidacy, and the result, show that legends never get a booster shot.

Williams knows all of this and is saddened by it. Now he wants a job he could have had by crooking his finger—before he became a legend.

For both of them all the streets are uphill and all the lights are red.

And fading away for them both is worse than disaster.

That's why they're legends, each in his own way.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Dear Mr. Becker: The strangest things have been happening to me lately. I don't claim to be a good player, and I'm sure I'm not, but the fact is that I usually come out ahead when I play.

However, I have been on a losing streak lately and it is starting to get under my skin. I not only lost with bad hands, but also with good ones. For example, look at what happened to me on this deal.

I was South and opened three notrump. Of course, I realize this was not a perfect bid, even with 26 points, since I had no diamond stopper, but it seemed to be the best bid under the circumstances.

Unfortunately, West had a string of diamonds and cashed the first ten tricks as I unhappily discarded one good trick after another. Not only that, but when West led the last diamond, I had to choose a discard from a holding of the K-Q of spades, ace of hearts and ace of clubs. (East's remaining cards were the A-10-9 of spades.)

I couldn't afford a spade, which would have allowed East to win the last three tricks, so I discarded the ace of clubs. In high glee West then cashed the eight of clubs—and I was squeezed again.

This time I discarded the ace of hearts, whereupon West cashed the eight of hearts and followed this with a spade to his partner's ace.

The outcome was that I lost all thirteen tricks—going down nine, 900 points—despite my 26 high-card points!

Of course, I realize you may think this hand never occurred at all, and I would not blame you one bit for thinkng that. In fact, if you look at the date, you may have even more reason to disbelieve my story. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Advice For Married Children Dished Out

Dear Ann Landers: Now that you've put the in-laws in their place by printing Eight Ways To Break Up A Son Or Daughter's Marriage, will you please give equal time to the other side?

I have prepared a simple list of rules which might help preserve the sanity and health of parents with married children.

(1) Settle your own arguments. Don't drag us into your family fights and ask us to take sides.

(2) Buy what you can afford. When you made the decision to marry, you announced to the world that you were old enough to stand on your own two feet. Prove it.

(3) Don't assume we are willing to sit with your children or have them dumped on us at your convenience. When we want them for the day or the night we'll let you know. We raised ours. Please raise yours.

(4) Don't assume that because you married Marcia or John that we enjoy the company of his or her parents. On certain occasions both in-laws should be present, but don't foist them on us.

(5) Don't take it for granted that you can borrow our car, our boat, our lawn mower, our silverware, and table linen for your parties, etc. Ask first. And be courteous enough to return our property in the same condition in which you received it — for example, gas in the tank of the car, tablecloth clean and ironed, etc.

Respectfully yours — Mother and Dad

Dear M and D: Your suggestions are excellent and I'm sure they'll be the topic of many dinner table discussions — by both generations! Thanks for writing.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Tell Mrs. Pink ribbons to leave her ovaries alone. The theory that the left ovary produces girls and the right ovary produces boys is ridiculous. My right ovary was removed by necessity after one year of marriage. I have since given birth to two sons and two daughters with only one ovary — the left one. — Living Proof

Dear Living: I told Pinky that the theory was a lot of eyewash but readers have a tendency to listen to other readers rather than to me. Thanks for the documentation.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever I hear about children who are opposed to a parent remarrying late in life I boil. The best argument in favor of a late second marriage is my own grandfather. Grandma died at 72. We all thought Gramp would die of a broken heart. He was so lonely for the next year it was pitiful.

Gramps' life changed when he started to keep company with a lovely widow. They have been married three years now and are wonderful together. Next month they leave on a cruise. You'd think they were in their 20's. A twilight-year second marriage can mean a new life. Our family is all for it. — Overjoyed in Lubbock

Dear Lub: Hooray for Gramps! How nice to know that he is enjoying "the last of life — for which the first was made."

Suppliers 'Take Beating' Due To High Interest Rates

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Unable to obtain loans or unwilling to pay the current high interest rates, many business customers today are sponging off their suppliers' working capital.

The motive behind the trend is obvious: to have possession of money that should have been used in paying bills; moreover, to have use of the money at a zero rate of interest.

Suppliers Wait

Says A. A. Dilworth, president of American Credit Indemnity Co., "It's much easier to make your supplier wait a month or so instead of going to the bank and paying high rates."

Some companies make no effort to hide their practice of slow pay. But others are offering collection agencies and credit rating organizations some ingenious explanations.

Said the head of a Chicago rating firm: "It's surprising how many companies have trouble with their computers when it comes time to pay the bills." The real problem, he said, is that they have adoppted slow pay as a policy.

Slow Pay Filings Up

American Credit, a leader in the field of credit insurance, reports a 20 per cent increase over a year ago in the number of slow pay filings. And the size of overdue accounts has risen to $1,000 from $800.

The danger, said Dilworth, is that the situation has a snowballing effect that grows as business conditions become tighter. "Some of the best customers are now slowing up," he said.

Perhaps accentuating the pattern is a tendency of business in recent years to be less liquid. Rather than keep large sums of cash or securities, many companies would rather invest in inventories or in bigger sales.

Expansion Blamed

The present situation developed from a period of unprecedented economic expansion, when almost all businesses emphasized sales and often simplified terms to a degree that would have frightened old time businessmen.

During a slowdown, however, sales play a less important role and collections grow in relative importance. But this sudden interest in collections comes at a time that many businesses are unable or unwilling to comply.

Not Epidemic

Dilworth describes the problem as "not epidemic but increasing," and feels it is likely to continue increasing so long as corporate profits and liquidity deteriorate.

The increase in overdue filings, in fact, is believed to represent only the very top of the iceberg. Feeling that the slowdown will be over soon, some sellers are reluctant to press old but slow paying customers.

In the event of an upturn—and surveys show that many businessmen are discounting the bad economic news and looking over the valley to an uptrend in sales—the company that declines to dun its slow paying customers might stand to benefit.

The motive behind the trend is obvious: to have possession of money that should have been used in paying bills; moreover, to have use of the money at a zero rate of interest.

Suppliers Wait

Says A. A. Dilworth, president of American Credit Indemnity Co., "It's much easier to make your supplier wait a month or so instead of going to the bank and paying high rates."

Some companies make no effort to hide their practice of slow pay. But others are offering collection agencies and credit rating organizations some ingenious explanations.

Said the head of a Chicago rating firm: "It's surprising how many companies have trouble with their computers when it comes time to pay the bills." The real problem, he said, is that they have adoppted slow pay as a policy.

Slow Pay Filings Up

American Credit, a leader in the field of credit insurance, reports a 20 per cent increase over a year ago in the number of slow pay filings. And the size of overdue accounts has risen to $1,000 from $800.

The danger, said Dilworth, is that the situation has a snowballing effect that grows as business conditions become tighter. "Some of the best customers are now slowing up," he said.

Perhaps accentuating the pattern is a tendency of business in recent years to be less liquid. Rather than keep large sums of cash or securities, many companies would rather invest in inventories or in bigger sales.

Expansion Blamed

The present situation developed from a period of unprecedented economic expansion, when almost all businesses emphasized sales and often simplified terms to a degree that would have frightened old time businessmen.

During a slowdown, however, sales play a less important role and collections grow in relative importance. But this sudden interest in collections comes at a time that many businesses are unable or unwilling to comply.

Not Epidemic

Dilworth describes the problem as "not epidemic but increasing," and feels it is likely to continue increasing so long as corporate profits and liquidity deteriorate.

The increase in overdue filings, in fact, is believed to represent only the very top of the iceberg. Feeling that the slowdown will be over soon, some sellers are reluctant to press old but slow paying customers.

In the event of an upturn—and surveys show that many businessmen are discounting the bad economic news and looking over the valley to an uptrend in sales—the company that declines to dun its slow paying customers might stand to benefit.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Dear Mr. Becker: The strangest things have been happening to me lately. I don't claim to be a good player, and I'm sure I'm not, but the fact is that I usually come out ahead when I play.

However, I have been on a losing streak lately and it is starting to get under my skin. I not only lost with bad hands, but also with good ones. For example, look at what happened to me on this deal.

I was South and opened three notrump. Of course, I realize this was not a perfect bid, even with 26 points, since I had no diamond stopper, but it seemed to be the best bid under the circumstances.

Unfortunately, West had a string of diamonds and cashed the first ten tricks as I unhappily discarded one good trick after another. Not only that, but when West led the last diamond, I had to choose a discard from a holding of the K-Q of spades, ace of hearts and ace of clubs. (East's remaining cards were the A-10-9 of spades.)

I couldn't afford a spade, which would have allowed East to win the last three tricks, so I discarded the ace of clubs. In high glee West then cashed the eight of clubs—and I was squeezed again.

This time I discarded the ace of hearts, whereupon West cashed the eight of hearts and followed this with a spade to his partner's ace.

The outcome was that I lost all thirteen tricks—going down nine, 900 points—despite my 26 high-card points!

Of course, I realize you may think this hand never occurred at all, and I would not blame you one bit for thinkng that. In fact, if you look at the date, you may have even more reason to disbelieve my story. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Advice For Married Children Dished Out

Dear Ann Landers: Now that you've put the in-laws in their place by printing Eight Ways To Break Up A Son Or Daughter's Marriage, will you please give equal time to the other side?

I have prepared a simple list of rules which might help preserve the sanity and health of parents with married children.

(1) Settle your own arguments. Don't drag us into your family fights and ask us to take sides.

(2) Buy what you can afford. When you made the decision to marry, you announced to the world that you were old enough to stand on your own two feet. Prove it.

(3) Don't assume we are willing to sit with your children or have them dumped on us at your convenience. When we want them for the day or the night we'll let you know. We raised ours. Please raise yours.

(4) Don't assume that because you married Marcia or John that we enjoy the company of his or her parents. On certain occasions both in-laws should be present, but don't foist them on us.

(5) Don't take it for granted that you can borrow our car, our boat, our lawn mower, our silverware, and table linen for your parties, etc. Ask first. And be courteous enough to return our property in the same condition in which you received it — for example, gas in the tank of the car, tablecloth clean and ironed, etc.

Respectfully yours — Mother and Dad

Dear M and D: Your suggestions are excellent and I'm sure they'll be the topic of many dinner table discussions — by both generations! Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Tell Mrs. Pink ribbons to leave her ovaries alone. The theory that the left ovary produces girls and the right ovary produces boys is ridiculous. My right ovary was removed by necessity after one year of marriage. I have since given birth to two sons and two daughters with only one ovary — the left one. — Living Proof

Dear Living: I told Pinky that the theory was a lot of eyewash but readers have a tendency to listen to other readers rather than to me. Thanks for the documentation.

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever I hear about children who are opposed to a parent remarrying late in life I boil. The best argument in favor of a late second marriage is my own grandfather. Grandma died at 72. We all thought Gramp would die of a broken heart. He was so lonely for the next year it was pitiful.

Gramps' life changed when he started to keep company with a lovely widow. They have been married three years now and are wonderful together. Next month they leave on a cruise. You'd think they were in their 20's. A twilight-year second marriage can mean a new life. Our family is all for it. — Overjoyed in Lubbock

Dear Lub: Hooray for Gramps! How nice to know that he is enjoying "the last of life — for which the first was made."

Losing Both Feet Fails To Slow Down Youngster

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—People who've watched Mark Babcock learn to walk again report they've "never seen such spunk and spirit in a boy."

Last December, when Mark was 7, he crawled under a freight train at a crossing near his home, and when the train lurched, a wheel cut off both his feet.

Two motorists who heard Mark's screams stopped and applied tourniquets, then summoned an ambulance.

A public drive produced enough money to pay for Mark's hospital and doctor bills. Then, the Shriners in this West Michigan community pledged they'd pay to have Mark fitted every year or two with new artificial feet until he stops growing at about age 16 or 17.

Alvin Hoffert, the local Shriner who took Mark to the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children in Chicago, reports he's never seen such spunk and spirit in a boy."

"Normally, it takes about six weeks of training and therapy to get used to artificial limbs. Mark was fitted and on his own in just three weeks," said Hoffert.

Before he could leave the hospital, Hoffert said Mark had to prove to the doctors he could handle himself on his new feet.

"He bounded off down the corridor as if he'd been on the feet for years," Hoffert said.

Because the artificial feet are connected to special braces on each leg which in turn are connected to a belt around his waist, Mark requires clothing a bit larger than normal.

Hoffert and the boy's mother, Mrs. Jerald Babcock Sr., took Mark shopping on his return from the Chicago hospital.

At the shopping center, Mark got his new sport jacket and trousers, then tackled a new challenge — an escalator. He mastered it easily and proceeded to walk rapidly through the shopping center mall.

Although he has crutches, Mark refuses to use them except when he gets tired.

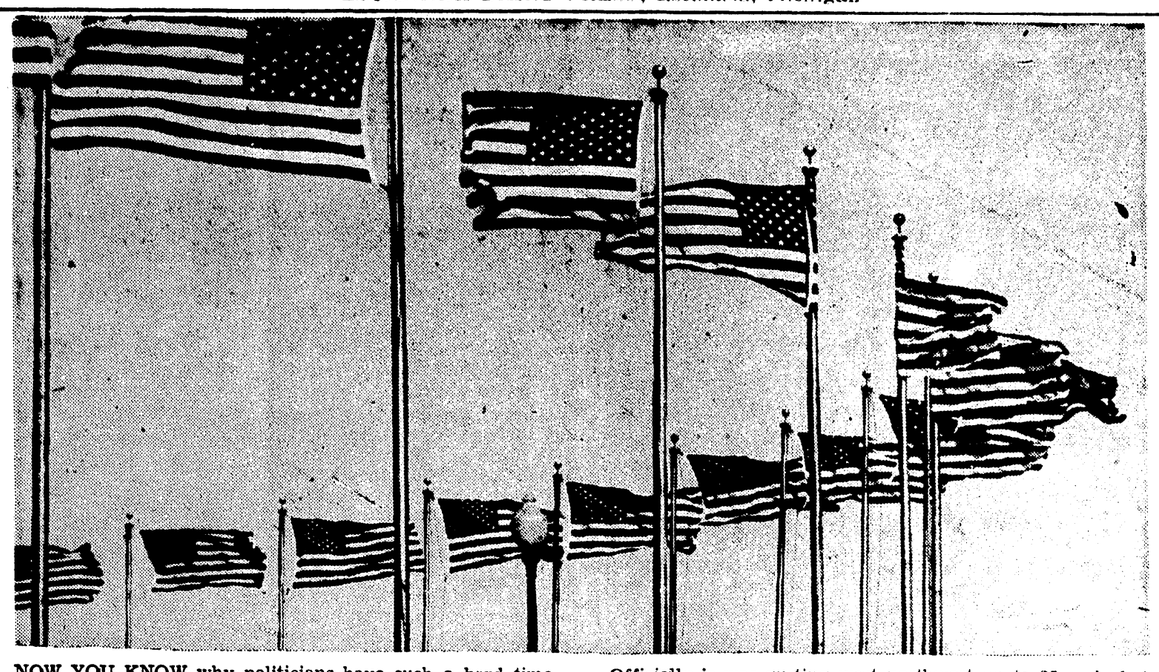

Now, after moving to a new home in suburban Wyoming, Mich., Mark is getting used to a new school. School, he says, is his "favorite thing."

Bonds Of Pontiac Pastor Forfeited

CHICAGO (AP)—The bond of the Rev. James Meyer was declared forfeited today by Magistrate John J. Moran when the Roman Catholic priest of Pontiac, Mich., failed to appear for his trial on charges stemming from street violence at the time of the 1968 Democratic Convention.

Father Meyer, who was arrested Aug. 28, at 18th Street and Michigan Avenue, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Kenneth Berg, assistant corporation counsel, said the charges have been continued nine times since the arrest.

Berg moved that the bond be forfeited and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of the defendant.

Magistrate Moran of Circuit Court entered an order forfeiting Meyer's $250 bond and authorizing issuance of a new warrant. He set the new bond at $1,000.

Surveyor Shot On Development Job

TROY (AP)—A Lincoln Park man was shot fatally Tuesday while he and his partner were surveying a development site in the 15-Mile-Rochester Road area of Troy.

Herbert Mee, 42, an employe of Urban Engineering Services of Royal Oak, was dead on arrival at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. His partner, Ray Davis of Madison Heights, told police he heard a shot, Mee yelled twice for help, then collapsed about 500 feet away.

Mee, who formerly was acting city engineer in Madison Heights, had one bullet wound in the body, police said.

Air Taxi Runs Facing Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is starting a safety crackdown today on the nation's growing commuter airlines and air taxi runs because of a deadly accident rate 10 times as high as the major airlines.

A fresh rash of fatal crashes has stretched from the edges of New York City to the ski resort of Aspen, Colo., already this year after a record toll of 140 deaths last year.

Twice in little more than a year, commuter airplanes have run out of fuel over open water. One plane managed an emergency landing in Canada; the other fuel failure was fatal.

Under the new safety rules that go into effect Wednesday, the Federal Aviation Administration will begin demanding better pilot training, tougher mechanic requirements, and regular aircraft inspections.

In the first three months of this year—between the time FAA approved the rules and their starting date—48 persons died in 13 air taxi crashes.

Martin Macy, executive director of the National Air Transportation Conference and spokesman for air taxi operators, said his industry welcomes the new standards.

"It hurts us to have this accident record," he said, "I don't believe it is necessary. We all can do better. Any time you get in an airplane, it is a risk, like getting in an elevator or walking down the stairs. But it shouldn't be a significant risk."

Federal safety statistics show a fatal accident rate for air taxis is estimated at 1.45 per 100,000 flying hours last year, compared with 0.14 for the major airlines.

Bonds Of Pontiac Pastor Forfeited

CHICAGO (AP)—The bond of the Rev. James Meyer was declared forfeited today by Magistrate John J. Moran when the Roman Catholic priest of Pontiac, Mich., failed to appear for his trial on charges stemming from street violence at the time of the 1968 Democratic Convention.

Father Meyer, who was arrested Aug. 28, at 18th Street and Michigan Avenue, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Kenneth Berg, assistant corporation counsel, said the charges have been continued nine times since the arrest.

Berg moved that the bond be forfeited and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of the defendant.

Magistrate Moran of Circuit Court entered an order forfeiting Meyer's $250 bond and authorizing issuance of a new warrant. He set the new bond at $1,000.

Auto Registration Error Troublesome

By CHUCK NOLAND

DES MOINES (AP) — "There it is," I told the lady at the Polk County Courthouse as she looked through her book to see how much it would cost to transfer my car's registration from New Mexico to Iowa. "A model 300 deluxe, two-door sedan. That's it."

"Wait a minute," she said after a few seconds. "There's something wrong here."

Somehow, you just knew it was going to be one of those experiences.

"According to the serial number on your New Mexico registration certificate you're driving a two-door station wagon," she said.

I've been driving that car for over two years, and while there are a lot things I don't know about it, I'm pretty sure it's a two-door sedan. I told her so. I don't think she believed me.

She called her supervisor over, explained the problem to him. The number listed on the registration certificate indicated the car was indeed a two-door sedan. But the first five numbers of the car's serial number —which are supposed to be the same as the registration number—indicated it was a two-door station wagon.

"Oh, that's the problem," said the supervisor.

"It's a two-door sedan," I mumbled, beginning to doubt my convictions.

I invited anyone who was interested to step outside and examine my two-door sedan. That was my second mistake.

"Even if it is a sedan, we can't correct the registration," the supervisor said. "The state boys would have to do that."

Trying to calculate the value of my time, I asked how much more it would cost to register a station wagon. I should have known I couldn't get away with it.

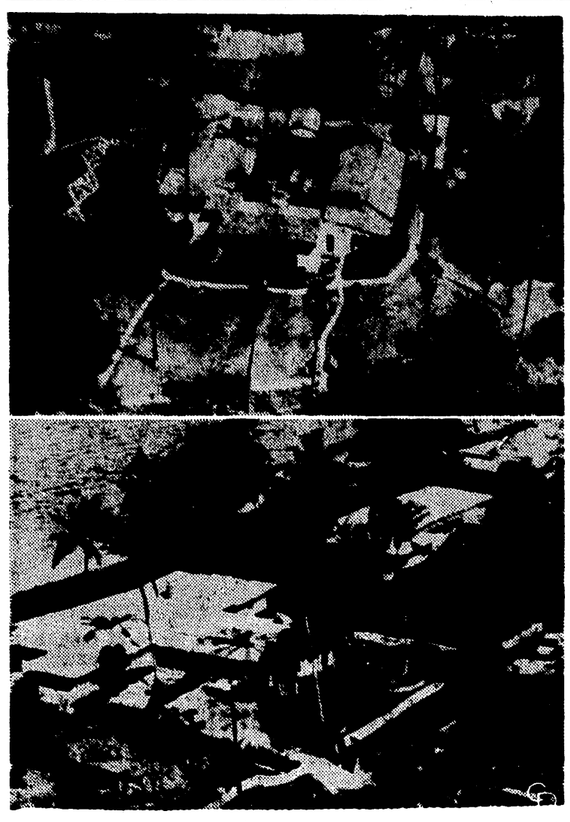

So, some time later, I found myself at the vehicle registration office of the Iowa Department of Public Safety, being ushered into a cubicle.

"Would you look at my car and tell if it's a two-door sedan or a two-door station wagon?" I asked.

He didn't appreciate my little joke. But he did come outside, where he determined to his satisfaction that my car was indeed a two-door sedan and that there was a typographical error in the serial number listed on the registration slip.

We went back inside and he called the supervisor at the county courthouse to tell him what had happened and advise him it would be all right to register my two-door sedan temporarily until I can write New Mexico and get the serial number straightened out on my title.

But by this time it was 4:30 and the offices were closed, so I had to wait and do it all over again Friday.

Funds Allocated For Inner City Project Grants

DETROIT (AP) — John Cardinal Dearden of Detroit has announced allocation of nearly $80,000 in six grants for inner city projects ranging from the Black-Polish Conference to an American Indian self-help plan.

Three of the grants were conditional, to be paid if a similar amount can be raised from other sources.

Aides to Dearden said Tuesday the new grants bring to 31 the number of projects approved with $138,000 still left from a $1-million special fund raised in 1968 to finance "creative solutions to urban problems."

The Archdiocesan office said all the grants "are designed to explore creative ways of breaking the cycle of poverty that holds millions of Americans captive.

"None is expected to solve a general problem in itself but, instead, the Cardinal's hope is that each will show the way towards a solution that may be adopted by other agencies and government units."

Typical of the latest grants was the $12,883 allocated to the Black-Polish Conference of Metropolitan Detroit to promote understanding between the groups and to promote programs of mutual interest.

Judges Should Be Encouraged By Courtroom Disorder Ruling

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's response to the tumult and shouting in the nation's courtrooms is that, above all, there must be order.

The virtually unanimous approval Tuesday of the removal of a madcap Chicago defendant should gratify and encourage trial judges whose nerves are frayed quickly.

Strangely, except for Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who spoke only for himself, no judicial notice was taken of modern means of maintaining both decorum and the defendant's right to face his accusers.

Judge May Be Wrong

And but for a single, vague sentence in Justice Hugo L. Black's opinion for the majority, only Justice William O. Douglas recognized that a trial judge may be wrong and the defendant may be shouting to assert his constitutional rights.

William Allen, who is now sitting in a New Orleans jail awaiting trial for robbery, was a most unruly defendant in Cook County criminal court 14 years ago. The judge, Grover Niemeyer, was a very patient man.

Allen, whose defense to a $200 tavern holdup was insanity, interrupted the examination of prospective jurors, tore up his file, ignored the judge's warnings that he should behave and finally told Niemeyer: "When I go out for lunchtime, you're going to be a corpse."

Ordered Removed

The judge ordered Allen removed, the trial proceeded without him and the defendant was convicted and sentenced to 10 to 30 years in prison.

Last July, the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago invalidated the conviction, saying Allen's constitutional right to face his accusers had been violated. If necessary, the appeals court said, Judge Niemeyer should have bound and gagged Allen.

This suggestion later was used by Judge Julius J. Hoffman in Chicago to bind and gag Bobby G. Seale, one of eight radicals charged with inciting riots at the 1968 Democratic convention.

Judges Backed

The net result of the Supreme Court's ruling is that all the judges evidently did the right thing.

If a defendant ignores the judge's admonition that he should behave and makes further proceedings impossible, he can be forcibly removed. If the judge decides the best way to deal with a rebellious defendant is to bind and gag him—that's all right, too.

And of course, Black's decision noted, trial judges may use their old standby contempt powers to cite a stubbornly defiant defendant and throw him in jail.

The heart of Black's opinion, in which technically all justices except Douglas joined, is this observation:

"It would degrade our country and our judicial system to permit our courts to be bullied, insulted and humiliated and their orderly progress thwarted and obstructed by defendants brought before them charged with crimes."

Outbursts Provoked

The only notice Black took of the fact judges sometimes provoke the outbursts by short-ending defendants on their rights was the observation that "being manned by humans, the courts are not perfect and are bound to make some errors."

Brennan's concurring opinion sought to soothe liberals' sensibilities by counseling that the guarantees of liberty, justice and equality "cannot endure if we allow our precious heritage of ordered liberty to be ripped apart amid the sound and fury of our time."

Significantly, though, even Brennan, a recognized liberal, coupled liberty with order.

Douglas Opinion

Only Douglas, in a separate opinion, stressed that "problems of political indictments and of political judge raise profound questions going to the heart of the social compact."

Douglas asked: "Would we tolerate removal of a defendant from the courtroom during a trial because he was insisting on his constitutional rights, albeit vociferously, no matter how obnoxious his philosophy might have been to the bench that tried him?

"Would we uphold contempt in that situation?"

Agrees With Colleagues

Douglas agreed with his colleagues that a criminal trial cannot exist in bedlam. But he said Allen evidently was mentally ill and a ruling on the sensitive issues of courtroom order should have been put off to another day.

Only Brennan, and he by indirection, noted there may be ways to observe both a need for decorum and the right granted by the 6th Amendment to defendants to face their accusers.

Allen's own appeals lawyer, H. Reed Harris of Chicago, said both needs could be met by placing the unruly defendant in a soundproof booth in the courtroom or televising the trial to him outside.

Asks Reasonable Efforts

Brennan did not suggest either method directly. But he advised trial judges to "make reasonable efforts to enable him (the excluded defendant) to communicate with his attorney and, if possible, to keep apprised of the progress of his trial."

"Once the court has removed the contumacious defendant," Brennan said, "it is not weakness to mitigate the disadvantages of his expulsion as far as technologically possible in the circumstances."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard W. Hecht says the ransom, all in new $100 bills, may be in a Swiss bank and the FBI "is looking into it."

Miller was fired as an IRS agent after he was arrested last Oct. 10 and charged with robbing $17,280 from a theater and a market in suburban Alhambra.

Those robbery cases are still pending, and Miller was in jail —unable to post $1,875 premium for a security bond for bail— when the FBI got a break in the kidnap case. An alleged accomplice implicated Miller, agents said.

Black Militants Apparently Bitter Over Arms Charge

federal firearms indictment he was sure that "the greatest mission of an oppressed people is to rid the country of tyranny by any means whatsoever."

Last year when Williams learned that Gov. Milliken would extradite him to North Carolina, he said:

"My last faith was in Gov. Milliken and I'll never have any faith in the white man or in white America again. The law book is out, the Constitution is out, there is nothing that will help us but the gun."

Won't Be Taken Alive

Williams said Tuesday that he would not be taken alive to North Carolina as the situation now stands. "They can kill me, but they can't force me to submit to a lynch mob in North Carolina," he said.

He resigned Dec. 3, as president of the Republic of New Africa, a movement which has as its objective the creation of an independent black nation out of five southern states.

He said he needed a broader base of support from whites and blacks to fight extradition.

Since then he has spoken before many organizations in the Detroit area about his experiences and legal problems.

He said he had been encouraged by the reactions of white persons in these organizations, but added, "Support alone, when a man is going to the gallows, is not enough."

Williams lamented that the new federal indictment would probably keep him from accepting a fellowship to attend the University of Michigan in nearby Ann Arbor, Mich.

Frameup Charged

The black nationalist claims the kidnap charges against him constitute a frameup. Recalling the night of violence in 1961, he said:

"We all thought we were going to have a war that night, and people were all dug in. I got a call saying state troopers would be at my house in 30 minutes and that I would be lynched in front of the court house.

"A crowd of colored people gathered around my home surrounding a white couple and they were screaming about killing them. I went into the crowd and led them into my house. They know today they would have been dead if I hadn't been there."

Williams said the incident started when he invited a busload of Negro Freedom Riders to stay overnight in Monroe.

New Postal Pay Offer Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has come across with a "new and unconditional" wage offer in the postal pay negotiations, apparently topping an earlier money proposal reported in the neighborhood of 6 per cent.

Three wage proposals were on the table as the negotiations, being held behind closed doors, moved into the sixth day.

After Nixon's newest offer Tuesday, union representatives countered with a three-point proposal of their own. By agreement beteen the parties, the spokesmen declined to elaborate on any of the offers.

Some unions have talked of seeking 20 per cent pay increases. Estimates of what the administration might agree to range from 6 per cent to the 11.1 per cent raise contained in the most liberal of the postal pay bills before Congress.

Accused Of Murder

MRS. JOAN WILKINSON, above, daughter of former world heavyweight boxing champion, Gene Tunney, will remain in custody until April 8 at Chesham, Buckinghamshire, England, after being accused of murdering her husband, Lynn, 31. Responsibility In My Lai Case Laid To Medina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. Ernest L. Medina, company commander at My Lai in Vietnam, was charged by the Army today with responsibility for murders of Vientamese civilians allegedly committed by men in his unit.

The charge was added to earlier formal allegations that Medina murdered four persons, maimed another, and committed assault with a deadly weapon.

The latest charge, the Army said, replaces an earlier allegation filed March 17 charging Medina with wrongfully concealing knowledge that members of his company had committed felonies at My Lai-Son My in South Vietnam, March 16, 1968.

Most of the 13 officers and enlisted men thus far charged in connection with alleged atrocities served under Medina in Company C, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Brigade.

The earlier charge of wrongful concealment, or "misprision of a felony," has been dropped, the Army said.

The latest charge of responsibility "for the alleged murders of Vietnamese noncombatant persons allegedly committed by members of his company" was based on evidence collected by Army criminal investigation agents in looking into reports of the alleged incident over the past six months, the Army said.

Wayne U. Woman Professor Victim Of Stabbing, Rape

PONTIAC (AP) — A 54-year-old professor of education at Wayne State University is reported in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital after being stabbed, beaten and raped near Milford Tuesday.

Dr. Marion McMillian reported to police that she was forced into her car about 4 p.m. near her office at the Wayne State campus in Detroit. Police say she was then driven at knife point to a field near Milford, stabbed, beaten, raped and left in the field as her assailant drove away in her car.

Three men found Dr McMillian walking along the road and took her to Milford where police brought her to the hospital.

Air Controllers Ease Sick Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slight back-to-work trend developed in some areas, but the air traffic controllers' strike went on today despite a call by union leaders to end the sick-call action that has crippled air travel for a week.

A U.S. district judge agreed, meantime, to postpone until Thursday a scheduled hearing today for attorney F. Lee Bailey, executive director of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, to answer contempt charges after hundreds of controllers reported sick in the face off federal court injunctions.

The request for the delay was made by attorneys for Bailey and two other PATCO officials.

Bailey, at a news conference Tuesday, urged the controllers to return to work unless they actually were ill. However, he expressed qualms that his "clarifying statement" might be taken as an effort to avoid the contempt proceedings.

"I do not advocate a sick-out," Bailey said. "It is an inconvenience to the American public and should be terminated at once."

Following Bailey's statement, the Federal Aviation Agency reported higher percentages of controllers reporting for the midnight shift, particularly in New York City, hardest-hit by the strike.

In Chicago, an FAA spokesman said all nine of scheduled controllers reported to work at the O'Hare tower for the early morning shift, while 12 of 22 scheduled to work reported for duty at the Aurora control center. Strength was at 70 per cent, compared with 40 per cent on the midnight shift.

Proxmire Hits GOP Cover-Ups

WASHNGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, accusing the Pentagon of lying to justify the cost of multibillion dollar weapons systems, has urged the power of the purse be stripped from the generals.

The Wisconsin Democrat said he wants an independent civilian agency to take charge of the procurement of military equipment under these marching orders: End waste, make sure weapons work and are ready on time, prevent the billion-dollar overruns of the past and knock heads if necessary to do the job.

"The disgraceful fact is that neither the contractors nor the Pentagon tell the truth about the cost of weapons," Proxmire said in a new book, "Report From Wasteland," his views of the military-industrial complex.

"They deliberately lie about the cost," he declared. "They purposely underestimate the cost of these weapons systems in order to get them established and to get the Congress and the country committed to them."

The book called for a reorganization of government institutions on every level—White House, Budget Bureau, Pentagon, Congress, General Accounting Office—in order that we may judge, analyse, criticize, review and recommend policies to control the procurement of modern weapons systems."

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

Tide Turning For Carswell?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buoyed by the support of two senior Republican senators with possible key votes, Senate GOP forces say the tide has been turned in the fight over Judge G. Harrold Carswell's Supreme Court nomination.

Acting GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin said the slippage in Carswell's support apparent last week has been stopped. He predicted confirmation by a three or four vote margin.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., said opponents of the Tallahassee, Fla., federal appeals court judge sense the momentum is running against them and are resorting to desperation tactics.

Supporters appeared to have wrested the initiative from opponents Monday with these developments:

—Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, who helped tip the scales against the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. last fall, gave strong backing to Carswell.

—Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, the 77-year-old dean of Republican senators, also declared his support for Carswell.

Williams and Aiken, previously uncommitted, were regarded by both sides as having possibly pivotal votes.

The first test of strength comes Monday on a move to kill the nomination by sending it back to the Senate Judiciary Committee. If that fails, the confirmation vote itself will come two days later.

Dole Monday formally declared his support of Carswell, a move that had long been anticipated. So was the announcement by Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., that he will vote against Carswell's confirmation and for recommittal of the nomination.

That left 43 senators on record in support of the nomination and 35 against.

Storms Remain 'Female' Despite Women's Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter what women's liberation groups think, the Weather Bureau says the first hurricane this year is going to be called Alma, not Ambrose, Alpha, Aardvark or anything else.

The flap started last Friday when Roxie Bolton of the National Organization of Women—NOW, a women's rights outfit, stormed into the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"Women are not disasters, destroying life and communities, and leaving a lasting and devastating effect," she said, demanding hurricanes be called something else.

If NOW's demand was not met in a week or 10 days, she said, the women would move on Weather Bureau headquarters in Washington.

Bureau spokesmen said Tuesday the 1970 list reads Alma, Beckey, Celia, Dorothy, Ella and so on. Roxie was on there in 1968 but no season has ever had enough hurricanes to get past Martha.

Black Militants Apparently Bitter Over Arms Charge

federal firearms indictment he was sure that "the greatest mission of an oppressed people is to rid the country of tyranny by any means whatsoever."

Last year when Williams learned that Gov. Milliken would extradite him to North Carolina, he said:

"My last faith was in Gov. Milliken and I'll never have any faith in the white man or in white America again. The law book is out, the Constitution is out, there is nothing that will help us but the gun."

Won't Be Taken Alive

Williams said Tuesday that he would not be taken alive to North Carolina as the situation now stands. "They can kill me, but they can't force me to submit to a lynch mob in North Carolina," he said.

He resigned Dec. 3, as president of the Republic of New Africa, a movement which has as its objective the creation of an independent black nation out of five southern states.

He said he needed a broader base of support from whites and blacks to fight extradition.

Since then he has spoken before many organizations in the Detroit area about his experiences and legal problems.

He said he had been encouraged by the reactions of white persons in these organizations, but added, "Support alone, when a man is going to the gallows, is not enough."

Williams lamented that the new federal indictment would probably keep him from accepting a fellowship to attend the University of Michigan in nearby Ann Arbor, Mich.

Frameup Charged

The black nationalist claims the kidnap charges against him constitute a frameup. Recalling the night of violence in 1961, he said:

"We all thought we were going to have a war that night, and people were all dug in. I got a call saying state troopers would be at my house in 30 minutes and that I would be lynched in front of the court house.

"A crowd of colored people gathered around my home surrounding a white couple and they were screaming about killing them. I went into the crowd and led them into my house. They know today they would have been dead if I hadn't been there."

Williams said the incident started when he invited a busload of Negro Freedom Riders to stay overnight in Monroe.

New Postal Pay Offer Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has come across with a "new and unconditional" wage offer in the postal pay negotiations, apparently topping an earlier money proposal reported in the neighborhood of 6 per cent.

Three wage proposals were on the table as the negotiations, being held behind closed doors, moved into the sixth day.

After Nixon's newest offer Tuesday, union representatives countered with a three-point proposal of their own. By agreement beteen the parties, the spokesmen declined to elaborate on any of the offers.

Some unions have talked of seeking 20 per cent pay increases. Estimates of what the administration might agree to range from 6 per cent to the 11.1 per cent raise contained in the most liberal of the postal pay bills before Congress.

Accused Of Murder

MRS. JOAN WILKINSON, above, daughter of former world heavyweight boxing champion, Gene Tunney, will remain in custody until April 8 at Chesham, Buckinghamshire, England, after being accused of murdering her husband, Lynn, 31. Responsibility In My Lai Case Laid To Medina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. Ernest L. Medina, company commander at My Lai in Vietnam, was charged by the Army today with responsibility for murders of Vientamese civilians allegedly committed by men in his unit.

The charge was added to earlier formal allegations that Medina murdered four persons, maimed another, and committed assault with a deadly weapon.

The latest charge, the Army said, replaces an earlier allegation filed March 17 charging Medina with wrongfully concealing knowledge that members of his company had committed felonies at My Lai-Son My in South Vietnam, March 16, 1968.

Most of the 13 officers and enlisted men thus far charged in connection with alleged atrocities served under Medina in Company C, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Brigade.

The earlier charge of wrongful concealment, or "misprision of a felony," has been dropped, the Army said.

The latest charge of responsibility "for the alleged murders of Vietnamese noncombatant persons allegedly committed by members of his company" was based on evidence collected by Army criminal investigation agents in looking into reports of the alleged incident over the past six months, the Army said.

Wayne U. Woman Professor Victim Of Stabbing, Rape

PONTIAC (AP) — A 54-year-old professor of education at Wayne State University is reported in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital after being stabbed, beaten and raped near Milford Tuesday.

Dr. Marion McMillian reported to police that she was forced into her car about 4 p.m. near her office at the Wayne State campus in Detroit. Police say she was then driven at knife point to a field near Milford, stabbed, beaten, raped and left in the field as her assailant drove away in her car.

Three men found Dr. McMillian walking along the road and took her to Milford where police brought her to the hospital.

Air Controllers Ease Sick Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slight back-to-work trend developed in some areas, but the air traffic controllers' strike went on today despite a call by union leaders to end the sick-call action that has crippled air travel for a week.

A U.S. district judge agreed, meantime, to postpone until Thursday a scheduled hearing today for attorney F. Lee Bailey, executive director of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, to answer contempt charges after hundreds of controllers reported sick in the face off federal court injunctions.

The request for the delay was made by attorneys for Bailey and two other PATCO officials.

Bailey, at a news conference Tuesday, urged the controllers to return to work unless they actually were ill. However, he expressed qualms that his "clarifying statement" might be taken as an effort to avoid the contempt proceedings.

"I do not advocate a sick-out," Bailey said. "It is an inconvenience to the American public and should be terminated at once."

Following Bailey's statement, the Federal Aviation Agency reported higher percentages of controllers reporting for the midnight shift, particularly in New York City, hardest-hit by the strike.

In Chicago, an FAA spokesman said all nine of scheduled controllers reported to work at the O'Hare tower for the early morning shift, while 12 of 22 scheduled to work reported for duty at the Aurora control center. Strength was at 70 per cent, compared with 40 per cent on the midnight shift.

Proxmire Hits GOP Cover-Ups

WASHNGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, accusing the Pentagon of lying to justify the cost of multibillion dollar weapons systems, has urged the power of the purse be stripped from the generals.

The Wisconsin Democrat said he wants an independent civilian agency to take charge of the procurement of military equipment under these marching orders: End waste, make sure weapons work and are ready on time, prevent the billion-dollar overruns of the past and knock heads if necessary to do the job.

"The disgraceful fact is that neither the contractors nor the Pentagon tell the truth about the cost of weapons," Proxmire said in a new book, "Report From Wasteland," his views of the military-industrial complex.

"They deliberately lie about the cost," he declared. "They purposely underestimate the cost of these weapons systems in order to get them established and to get the Congress and the country committed to them."

The book called for a reorganization of government institutions on every level—White House, Budget Bureau, Pentagon, Congress, General Accounting Office—in order that we may judge, analyse, criticize, review and recommend policies to control the procurement of modern weapons systems."

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

Tide Turning For Carswell?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buoyed by the support of two senior Republican senators with possible key votes, Senate GOP forces say the tide has been turned in the fight over Judge G. Harrold Carswell's Supreme Court nomination.

Acting GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin said the slippage in Carswell's support apparent last week has been stopped. He predicted confirmation by a three or four vote margin.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., said opponents of the Tallahassee, Fla., federal appeals court judge sense the momentum is running against them and are resorting to desperation tactics.

Supporters appeared to have wrested the initiative from opponents Monday with these developments:

—Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, who helped tip the scales against the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. last fall, gave strong backing to Carswell.

—Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, the 77-year-old dean of Republican senators, also declared his support for Carswell.

Williams and Aiken, previously uncommitted, were regarded by both sides as having possibly pivotal votes.

The first test of strength comes Monday on a move to kill the nomination by sending it back to the Senate Judiciary Committee. If that fails, the confirmation vote itself will come two days later.

Dole Monday formally declared his support of Carswell, a move that had long been anticipated. So was the announcement by Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., that he will vote against Carswell's confirmation and for recommittal of the nomination.

That left 43 senators on record in support of the nomination and 35 against.

Storms Remain 'Female' Despite Women's Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter what women's liberation groups think, the Weather Bureau says the first hurricane this year is going to be called Alma, not Ambrose, Alpha, Aardvark or anything else.

The flap started last Friday when Roxie Bolton of the National Organization of Women—NOW, a women's rights outfit, stormed into the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"Women are not disasters, destroying life and communities, and leaving a lasting and devastating effect," she said, demanding hurricanes be called something else.

If NOW's demand was not met in a week or 10 days, she said, the women would move on Weather Bureau headquarters in Washington.

Bureau spokesmen said Tuesday the 1970 list reads Alma, Beckey, Celia, Dorothy, Ella and so on. Roxie was on there in 1968 but no season has ever had enough hurricanes to get past Martha.

Fishermen, Officers Clash At Fairport

Delta County Prosecuting Attorney John Beauchamp said this morning that warrants will be issued later today or Thursday for the arrest of a number of persons involved in an incident Tuesday in which Department of Natural Resources officers allegedly were obstructed in performance of their duties at the commercial fish dock in Fairport.

State Police from Manistique and Gladstone posts were summoned to Fairport to assist five DNR officers at the dock. An estimated 40 to 45 concerned citizens had gathered, officers reported.

The incident lasted from 9:45 a.m., when DNR officers arrived at Fairport for the purpose of inspecting and monitoring commercial fishing, until about 6 p.m., Beauchamp said.

Officers were refused the right to perform checks and inspections, Beauchamp added. They also were obstructed in attempting to board some of the boats, in attempting to carry out their duties and when attempting to leave the area. The prosecutor said that some members of the group of citizens and fishermen were disorderly and insulting to the officers.

Beauchamp, who was reviewing the entire incident with Robert Timmer, Escanaba district law supervisor for the DNR today to determine what charges would be filed, said that warrants for hindering and obstructing officers in the performance of their duties are being considered.

He also said there could be charges against some individuals for violation of commercial fishing license provisions, fishing without a license and for being drunk and disorderly.

First State Police trooper to respond to the DNR request for assistance arrived from the Manistique Post about 3 p.m. A second officer from Manistique arrived about a half hour later and two more officers from Manistique and two from Gladstone reached the scene about 5 p.m.

Commercial fishermen in the Fairport area have been upset about the DNR's new zone management plan for regulating fishing in the Great Lakes. The plan became law earlier this year.

Fishermen also have complained bitterly about DNR restrictions on licensing and nets.

Students Aid Indian Youth

Escanaba Kiwanis heard Paul Haack of Escanaba, a student at Central Michigan University, tell of the Chippewa big brother and sister program as done on the campus at Mt. Pleasant.

The program was conceived about six years ago as an effort to keep Chippewa youngsters in school. Prior to the start of the program, the average Indian youngster only went to school 25-50 per cent of the time. Since the program, attendance has increased sharply. This in itself is an achivevment, the speaker said.

The emphasis is a one-to-one approach, with one student volunteer more or less adopting one Indian younster, he said. They meet at least once a week and work with the youngster.

The Indian young people are taken to any event that a student can gain admission to with his activity card, thus broadening the young person's outlook. Haack said that the faculty of Central Michigan University is cooperative and that use of state vehicles, on a mileage basis allows the students to visit their "brother or sister" frequently.

Haack said he is anxious to start a similar program in Escanaba, either with Bay de Noc or one of the high schools. He invited inquiries and these should be directed to Paul Haack, 906 7th Ave S., Escanaba r to him at Preston Apartments, Apartment G-6, Mt. Pleasant. 48858

He said it is one of the better programs working with Indians in Michigan and expansion into this area would "both help our Indian young people and help our students to mature in a manner which has heretofore been unavailable to them."

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY players will present "Comedy of Errors" in Escanaba Thursday night under sponsorship of Bay de Noc Community College. Escanaba Area Public High School auditorium will be the place, 8 p. m. is the time, and there is no admission charge to students and the general public.

College Sponsoring 'Comedy Of Errors'

Bay de Noc Community College invites students and the general public to an evening of theater as part of its community service program, at 8 p. m., Thursday, April 2, in the Escanaba High School Auditorium. There is no charge for the public.

The attraction for the evening will be the Michigan State University Performing Arts Company, presenting a "Comedy of Errors." This year's tour attraction by the University's Performing Arts company is directed by Frank Rutledge.

A "Comedy of Errors" is a delightful play borrowed from William Shakespeare. The production is set in the year 2200 A. D. Costumes and settings are of the space age, with imaginative use of plastics and fanciful interplanitary journies. Electronic music is used as background support in many scenes. The humor lies in the comical treatment of the many mistaken identities. There is the double mix-up of two sets of twins who can't even tell themselves apart.

The exciting costumes were created by Gretel Stensrud for the Company.

The members of the Performing Arts Company are talented graduate and undergraduate students who have come to Michigan State because of the outstanding opportunities offered by its University Theatre program.

Director Rutledge, assistant professor of theatre at Michigan State, has just returned from a year of study and travel in Europe.

Phelps Dodge Ups Price Of Copper; Trading Firmer

LONDON (AP) — Copper prices were firmer in early trading on the London Metal Exchange following the announcement of price rises by Phelps Dodge Corp., of the United States.

The Chicago and North Western continued moving iron ore out of Escanaba today—but it is the only port where marine traffic is under way on the upper Great Lakes.

At Escanaba the third boat of the current season—the Ford Motor Co.'s Dykstra—cleared for Dearborn this morning with 16,120 tons of pellet ore. The Cornelius is at the dock and is loading 19,500 tons of ore for Trenton.

But conditions at the Straits will have to improve before they try a return, it was indicated.

First vessels to load at Escanaba, the Sykes and L. E. Block of Inland Steel, are carrying cargoes of ore to Indiana Harbor on lower Michigan. They were delayed in Little Bay de Noc because of ice conditions.

Both the Sykes and the Block are scheduled to return for cargoes on Friday.

Fishermen, Officers Clash At Fairport

Delta County Prosecuting Attorney John Beauchamp said this morning that warrants will be issued later today or Thursday for the arrest of a number of persons involved in an incident Tuesday in which Department of Natural Resources officers allegedly were obstructed in performance of their duties at the commercial fish dock in Fairport.

State Police from Manistique and Gladstone posts were summoned to Fairport to assist five DNR officers at the dock. An estimated 40 to 45 concerned citizens had gathered, officers reported.

The incident lasted from 9:45 a.m., when DNR officers arrived at Fairport for the purpose of inspecting and monitoring commercial fishing, until about 6 p.m., Beauchamp said.

Officers were refused the right to perform checks and inspections, Beauchamp added. They also were obstructed in attempting to board some of the boats, in attempting to carry out their duties and when attempting to leave the area. The prosecutor said that some members of the group of citizens and fishermen were disorderly and insulting to the officers.

Beauchamp, who was reviewing the entire incident with Robert Timmer, Escanaba district law supervisor for the DNR today to determine what charges would be filed, said that warrants for hindering and obstructing officers in the performance of their duties are being considered.

He also said there could be charges against some individuals for violation of commercial fishing license provisions, fishing without a license and for being drunk and disorderly.

First State Police trooper to respond to the DNR request for assistance arrived from the Manistique Post about 3 p.m. A second officer from Manistique arrived about a half hour later and two more officers from Manistique and two from Gladstone reached the scene about 5 p.m.

Commercial fishermen in the Fairport area have been upset about the DNR's new zone management plan for regulating fishing in the Great Lakes. The plan became law earlier this year.

Fishermen also have complained bitterly about DNR restrictions on licensing and nets.

Offer Reward In Bomb Scare

A $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for Monday night's "bomb scare" telephone call is being offered by the Manistique Area Schools.

Anyone having information may contact the area schools or police department.

A thorough search of all area schools was made Monday night after a caller informed the Public Safety Dept. that "a bomb is set to go off in the next 48 hours in one of the Manistique Area Schools." Officer John Blomquist received the call at 7:15 p.m.

Both city and State Police officers and school officials took part in a seach which lasted until 11 p.m. Nothing was found and the call was assumed to be a hoax.

Classes were held as usual in all schools on Tuesday — the first back-to-school day after an Easter recess.

Births

GRIFFIN — Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin, Curtis, are the parents of a daughter born Monday, March 30, at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. The infant weighed six pounds and fifteen ounces. Mrs. Griffin is the former Esther Cleveland.

HOLMBERG—A son, weighseven pounds and seven and one-half ounces, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Holmberg, 135 New Delta Ave., on Monday, March 30, at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. The mother is the former Joanne Smits.

Dramatics Club To Present Play

"Tonight at Seven O'clock" is the theme of the Spring Festival of Drama which will be presented in the high school auditorium Saturday night. The MHS Dramatics Club presentations are under the direction of Mrs. Earl H. LeBrasseur assisted by student teacher John Wills of Northern Michigan University.

Elementary school children may attend a matinee performance Friday at 3:30 p. m.

The plays, all student directed, include "Never Trust A Man," Kay Gray and Barbara Clement; "Three Phone Calls," Kary Krumrey and Sally Boyd; "Where's That Report Card," Ruth Rogers and JoAnne Berger: "Sure As You're Born," Jeffie Orr and Karen Jetty; "Keep Your Halo Straight," Beckie Chartier and Maribeth Pawley; and "Itchin To Get Hitched," Cheryl Jetty and Janet Gillam.

The Festival involves 54 student actors plus business managers Susan Hanson and Jon Orhanen; student assistant director Barbara Beaton; and coffee house hostess Meg Moffat.

Proceeds of the Festival will be used for new stage lighting.

Rubick To Attend Science Program

Seb Rubick, mathematics instructor at the Manistique High School, will attend a special study program this summer at Utah State University sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

Those who successfully complete the three summer terms of study, and have eight additional quarter hours of graduate credits, will be eligible for a master's degree. Rubick will qualify for his advanced degree under this program.

Rubick will receive an annual grant of $1,080 to participate in the program which is designed to be of maximum benefit to high school teachers of advanced placement mathematics or those who seek qualifications to teach advanced algebra, analytic geometry, differential and integal calculus, linear algebra and probability.

Mr. and Mrs. Rubick and their two children plan to leave June 11 for Logan and will live in campus housing during the eight-week session which begins June 22 until Aug. 14.

Rubick and Mrs. Celestine Christensen, Hiawatha School principal, will attend the ninth annual conference of the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics at Northern Michigan University April 10-11.

School-Closing Plans Formulated In Grand Rapids

GRAND RAPDS (AP)—The Grand Rapids Board of Education has selected 20 schools it may have to close next fall if no further tax millage is approved to support the school system.

The list selected Tuesday includes 13 elementary schools and six junior high or middle schools. The austerity program, which may include half-day session for pupils above the third grade, is intended to trim $8.2 million from the board's $31.5 million budget.

Another portion of the contingency plan calls for dismissing 22 elementary school teachers plus 215 secondary school teachers, 35 administrative workers and 134 other school employes. The contingency planning became necessary when a 12-mill tax issue was defeated by margins of nearly 3 to 1, Feb. 6.

Ferris President Plans To Retire

BIG RAPIDS (AP) — Dr. Victor F. Spathelf announced his retirement today as president of Ferris State College and asked to be relieved of his duties by Dec. 15.

Spathelf, 10th president of the Big Rapids school, had told the board of control five years ago that he did not wish to remain in office beyond 1970.

The 60-year-old Spathelf has been in charge at Ferris for 18 years, since two years after it became a state-supported college.

During his presidency, enrollment at Ferris State leapt from less than 700 students to a predicted total of 9,000 this fall.

There have been vast changes to the campus itself during his tenure. When Spathelf took over in 1952, Ferris State had three buildings on 19 acres. Today, the school has more than 60 buildings on a 476-acre campus.

Spathelf said he has no immediate plans once he retires except for taking a vacation.

Wally Moses, Len Okrie, Grover Resinger and Mike Roarke are coaching with the Detroit Tigers this year.

Briefly Told

Reunion committee of the MHS Class of 1940 meets Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Elks Temple.

Ground beef and gravy, whipped potatoes, pickle chips, cheese slices, shoo fly pie and beverage is the hot lunch menu Thursday at the Manistique Area Schools.

State Police report an automobile driven by Lorraine Goodroe, Mt. Morris, struck and killed a deer at one o'clock Monday afternoon on U.S. 2, Doyle Township. Troopers ticketed Michael Cournaya, Lansing, for no insurance proof Monday.

Summer College Studies Ruled Favorable By MTU

HOUGHTON (AP) — College freshmen who begin their studies in the summer instead of the fall have a better record of success, according to a recent study at Michigan Technological University.

"Opportunities such as the summer freshman program at Michigan Tech enable students to adjust both academically and socially in a more relaxed atmosphere," explained Dr. Thomas G. Ellis, summer session director.

The study compared a group of summer freshmen at Michigan Tech with a similar group that started last fall. More than twice as many of the summer freshmen earned grades of at least a C and two thirds had a C average or higher.

A total of 94 per cent of the summer enrollees completed the quarter.

Snowmobile Back In Tip-Top Shape

ATLANTA (AP) — On Feb. 8, a 1970 snowmobile was stolen from Jim and Lon's Bait Shop in Atlanta.

The slide used to rotate the track was broken.

On Tuesday, the owners found the snowmachine sitting in the driveway again. And they got a bonus. The slide was fixed and the vehicle was washed.

Hearing Set On Mich-Con's Gas Service Plans

LANSING (AP)—The question of whether Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. should be required to establish gas service in three Upper Peninsula areas will be the topic of a public hearing slated for May 12 at Escanaba by the State Public Service Commission.

Three local units of government—Watersmeet and Marenisco townships in Gogebic County and Manistique in Schoolcraft County—have filed petitions asking the commission to require the company to provide service.

The state also petitioned to require Michigan Consolidated to serve the Newberry State Hospital.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. came to Manistique about two years ago and was given a franchise to supply the community with natural gas.

There was the promise to begin service in the fall of 1969.

The company then petitioned the state for permission to increase its rates, and did not proceed with service for Manistique, contending that it could not afford to effect the extension at Manistique under the present rate schedule. The company said it would lose money.

The action was construed locally as a lever to obtain favorable response on the rate increase request from the state. The petition for the rate increase is still pending.

Meanwhile, Michigan Power Co. of Marquette, although it does not have a direct natural gas source, has indicated an interest in serving the Manistique community. The franchise by Manistique to Michigan Consolidated has expired.

The City of Manistique has evinced interest in hearing the Michigan Power Co. proposal and appears inclined to negotiate for natural gas service, at least to determine what the offer may contain.

Schayes Named Buffalo Coach

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Dolph Schayes, an aggressive former star in the National Basketball Association, says he has satisfied an itch by becoming coach of Buffalo's new NBA team.

"I've been itching to get back into coaching," Schayes said at his news conference debut Tuesday, "and when I read where Eddie Donovan and Carl Scheer were heading the Buffalo operation, I wanted to become involved in it."

Donovan is the club's general manager, the same post he held with the New York Knicks until several weeks ago, and Scheer, former NBA assistant commissioner, is president.

Schayes, 41, supervisor of officials for the NBA since 1966, said he made the initial move when the coaching spot was opened.

Spartans Whip Fighting Irish

MIAMI (AP)— Three-run homers by third-baseman John Rohde and outfielder Ron Pruitt highlighted Michigan State's 11-3 triumph Tuesday over Notre Dame in the second phase of the Hurricane Baseball Tournament at the University of Miami.

MSU now is 2-0, after having lost the opening phase's championship game to Ohio State. For its spring training swing MSU is 7-1-1.

First baseman Rob Ellis contributed a fourth-inning home run, with no one aboard, to MSU's runaway victory in a game called after eight innings because of time.

Rohde's homer came in the first inning as the Spartans scored five times, while Pruitt's accounted for all three second-inning runs. Pruitt also had a single and drove in four runs, while Ellis had a triple and single in addition to his homer and scored three times.

Rick Kreuger and Elliott Moore shared the MSU pitching and limited Notre Dame to nine hits.

Teams competing the second-phase of the tournament include Colgate and Miami, in addition to MSU and Notre Dame.

GLADSTONE

Wood Resigns As Principal

William Wood, principal of Gladstone High School for the past two years, officially resigned his position at a special meeting of the Board of Education Monday evening.

Wood's resignation will become effective at the end of the current school year. He said his plans for the future are indefinite.

Wood came to Gladstone in 1958 after graduating from Lawrence College and served as basketball coach at Gladstone High School until his resignation at the end of the 1968-69 season. He received his master's degree at Northern Michigan University.

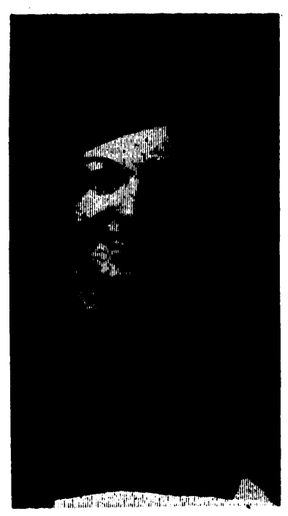

During his coaching career, Wood's teams compiled a record of 80 victories and 100 defeats, including district championships in Class C in 1962 and Class B in 1969.

Wood was named principal in March of 1968 and assumed the duties of acting superintendent during the following school year after the death of Supt. Wallace Cameron.

No successor to Wood has been named yet, but the Board announced that it will take applications for the position until May 15. At that time, the top eight candidates will be interviewed and the new principal will be named shortly after.

William Wood

Gladstone area blood donors responded "just wonderfully" to top the quota for the day at the Red Cross bloodmobile at the James T. Jones School on Tuesday, it is reported by Mrs. Edward Olsen, Red Cross blood program chairman.

"It was great," said Mrs. Olsen of the response that brought 60 walk-in donors during the day to bring the total units collected to 63. The quota for the day was 62.

The Red Cross presented donor pins to five persons who have given one or more gallons of blood. Recognized were: Marcel Verbrigghe, Perkins, 6 gallons; Don Hirn, Gladstone 4; Walter Houghton 3, and Ellen Jensen and James Barrett, each 1, all of Gladstone.

Special prizes were presented to three persons: Peggy Christiansen, N. 17th St., Jane Peterson, 1216 Wisconsin, and Francis Van Damme, Rock.

The bloodmobile today is in Escanaba at the First Presbyterian Church from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m.; and on Thursday it will be at the same location from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Walk-ins are invited.

Mercury Forces Ban On Lake Erie Fish Specimens

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — An official of the federal government announced a ban Tuesday the sale of pickerel and perch taken from the western portion of Lake Erie because of mercury contamination.

Mercury seepage from industrial plants resulted in a similar ban on the Lake St. Clair water system last week.

Lake Erie commercial fishermen were notified late Tuesday that all pickerel and perch taken from the lake's western basin, an area between Point Pelee and the Detroit River on the Canadian side, would be seized and held for inspection.

Dr. R. R. Logie of Ottawa, assistant deputy minister of the federal fisheries department, said analysis of pickerel taken from the western basin showed signs of mercury contamination similar to that found in Lake St. Clair pickerel.

He said perch from Lake Erie also have been tested by the federal fisheries research branch in Winnipeg, but because of a variety of levels found there will be another analysis.

Smelt from the lake were found to be "nearly free from the mercury contamination," Logie said.

"We find it necessary to hold under detention pickerel and perch because of our findings," Logie said. "We are not sure about the other fish species. Perch, of course, is the largest commercial interest".

Offer Reward In Bomb Scare

A $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for Monday night's "bomb scare" telephone call is being offered by the Manistique Area Schools.

Anyone having information may contact the area schools or police department.

A thorough search of all area schools was made Monday night after a caller informed the Public Safety Dept. that "a bomb is set to go off in the next 48 hours in one of the Manistique Area Schools." Officer John Blomquist received the call at 7:15 p.m.

Both city and State Police officers and school officials took part in a seach which lasted until 11 p.m. Nothing was found and the call was assumed to be a hoax.

Classes were held as usual in all schools on Tuesday — the first back-to-school day after an Easter recess.

School-Closing Plans Formulated In Grand Rapids

GRAND RAPDS (AP)—The Grand Rapids Board of Education has selected 20 schools it may have to close next fall if no further tax millage is approved to support the school system.

The list selected Tuesday includes 13 elementary schools and six junior high or middle schools. The austerity program, which may include half-day session for pupils above the third grade, is intended to trim $8.2 million from the board's $31.5 million budget.

Another portion of the contingency plan calls for dismissing 22 elementary school teachers plus 215 secondary school teachers, 35 administrative workers and 134 other school employes. The contingency planning became necessary when a 12-mill tax issue was defeated by margins of nearly 3 to 1, Feb. 6.

Ferris President Plans To Retire

BIG RAPIDS (AP) — Dr. Victor F. Spathelf announced his retirement today as president of Ferris State College and asked to be relieved of his duties by Dec. 15.

Spathelf, 10th president of the Big Rapids school, had told the board of control five years ago that he did not wish to remain in office beyond 1970.

The 60-year-old Spathelf has been in charge at Ferris for 18 years, since two years after it became a state-supported college.

During his presidency, enrollment at Ferris State leapt from less than 700 students to a predicted total of 9,000 this fall.

There have been vast changes to the campus itself during his tenure. When Spathelf took over in 1952, Ferris State had three buildings on 19 acres. Today, the school has more than 60 buildings on a 476-acre campus.

Spathelf said he has no immediate plans once he retires except for taking a vacation.

Wally Moses, Len Okrie, Grover Resinger and Mike Roarke are coaching with the Detroit Tigers this year.

Summer College Studies Ruled Favorable By MTU

HOUGHTON (AP) — College freshmen who begin their studies in the summer instead of the fall have a better record of success, according to a recent study at Michigan Technological University.

"Opportunities such as the summer freshman program at Michigan Tech enable students to adjust both academically and socially in a more relaxed atmosphere," explained Dr. Thomas G. Ellis, summer session director.

The study compared a group of summer freshmen at Michigan Tech with a similar group that started last fall. More than twice as many of the summer freshmen earned grades of at least a C and two thirds had a C average or higher.

A total of 94 per cent of the summer enrollees completed the quarter.

Snowmobile Back In Tip-Top Shape

ATLANTA (AP) — On Feb. 8, a 1970 snowmobile was stolen from Jim and Lon's Bait Shop in Atlanta.

The slide used to rotate the track was broken.

On Tuesday, the owners found the snowmachine sitting in the driveway again. And they got a bonus. The slide was fixed and the vehicle was washed.

Hearing Set On Mich-Con's Gas Service Plans

LANSING (AP)—The question of whether Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. should be required to establish gas service in three Upper Peninsula areas will be the topic of a public hearing slated for May 12 at Escanaba by the State Public Service Commission.

Three local units of government—Watersmeet and Marenisco townships in Gogebic County and Manistique in Schoolcraft County—have filed petitions asking the commission to require the company to provide service.

The state also petitioned to require Michigan Consolidated to serve the Newberry State Hospital.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. came to Manistique about two years ago and was given a franchise to supply the community with natural gas.

There was the promise to begin service in the fall of 1969.

The company then petitioned the state for permission to increase its rates, and did not proceed with service for Manistique, contending that it could not afford to effect the extension at Manistique under the present rate schedule. The company said it would lose money.

The action was construed locally as a lever to obtain favorable response on the rate increase request from the state. The petition for the rate increase is still pending.

Meanwhile, Michigan Power Co. of Marquette, although it does not have a direct natural gas source, has indicated an interest in serving the Manistique community. The franchise by Manistique to Michigan Consolidated has expired.

The City of Manistique has evinced interest in hearing the Michigan Power Co. proposal and appears inclined to negotiate for natural gas service, at least to determine what the offer may contain.

Spartans Whip Fighting Irish

MIAMI (AP)— Three-run homers by third-baseman John Rohde and outfielder Ron Pruitt highlighted Michigan State's 11-3 triumph Tuesday over Notre Dame in the second phase of the Hurricane Baseball Tournament at the University of Miami.

MSU now is 2-0, after having lost the opening phase's championship game to Ohio State. For its spring training swing MSU is 7-1-1.

First baseman Rob Ellis contributed a fourth-inning home run, with no one aboard, to MSU's runaway victory in a game called after eight innings because of time.

Rohde's homer came in the first inning as the Spartans scored five times, while Pruitt's accounted for all three second-inning runs. Pruitt also had a single and drove in four runs, while Ellis had a triple and single in addition to his homer and scored three times.

Rick Kreuger and Elliott Moore shared the MSU pitching and limited Notre Dame to nine hits.

Teams competing the second-phase of the tournament include Colgate and Miami, in addition to MSU and Notre Dame.

Schayes Named Buffalo Coach

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Dolph Schayes, an aggressive former star in the National Basketball Association, says he has satisfied an itch by becoming coach of Buffalo's new NBA team.

"I've been itching to get back into coaching," Schayes said at his news conference debut Tuesday, "and when I read where Eddie Donovan and Carl Scheer were heading the Buffalo operation, I wanted to become involved in it."

Donovan is the club's general manager, the same post he held with the New York Knicks until several weeks ago, and Scheer, former NBA assistant commissioner, is president.

Schayes, 41, supervisor of officials for the NBA since 1966, said he made the initial move when the coaching spot was opened.

Wood Resigns As Principal

William Wood, principal of Gladstone High School for the past two years, officially resigned his position at a special meeting of the Board of Education Monday evening.

Wood's resignation will become effective at the end of the current school year. He said his plans for the future are indefinite.

Wood came to Gladstone in 1958 after graduating from Lawrence College and served as basketball coach at Gladstone High School until his resignation at the end of the 1968-69 season. He received his master's degree at Northern Michigan University.

During his coaching career, Wood's teams compiled a record of 80 victories and 100 defeats, including district championships in Class C in 1962 and Class B in 1969.

Wood was named principal in March of 1968 and assumed the duties of acting superintendent during the following school year after the death of Supt. Wallace Cameron.

No successor to Wood has been named yet, but the Board announced that it will take applications for the position until May 15. At that time, the top eight candidates will be interviewed and the new principal will be named shortly after.

GM Faces New Suit By Nader; Wheels Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader brought suit against the government Tuesday to force the reopening of charges that General Motors used steel wheels "which disintegrate suddenly and explosively" on 200,000 pickup trucks manufactured between 1960-65.

The suit charged that the Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration ignored findings of government safety engineers in terminating administrative proceedings against GM last October.

Named in the suit filed here in U.S. District Court were Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe, FHA Administrator Francis C. Turner and Douglas Toms, directors of the National Highway Safety Bureau.

According to the suit, the government called off proceedings against GM after the auto manufacturer said the wheels were not defective, and that accidents involving the pickup trucks were caused by overloading with campers or other special truck bodies. GM said it would replace the wheels on those trucks, numbering about 50,000.

But Nader, in his suit, said government safety engineers rejected GM's contention that the safety hazard was limited to trucks equipped with campers or other special bodies. The engineers found that a safety defect affected all trucks equipped with wheels manufactured by the Kelsey-Hayes Corp., Nader said.

Joining Nader in the suit were his associate, Larry J. Silverman; the Center for Auto Safety, an affiliate of the Consumers Union; and a group calling itself Physicians for Automotive Safety.

Charges that GM used allegedly defective wheels on its pickup trucks were first brought by Nader in 1968 in a letter to the Highway Safety Bureau.

Timber Research Fund Hike Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., asked a Senate Appropriations subcommittee today to increase the administration's budget for research of timber resources.

It makes sense, he said, to increase research designed to increase the supply of and decrease the cost of lumber.

He asked for increases in funds for research on separating bark from wood chips which would enable pulp mills to use small and low-quality timber, and increase funds for a survey of national timber resources.

Research on bark-chip separation, he said, is centered at the forest engineering lab at Michigan Technological University.

He said development of an economical bark-chip separation method could save the timber industry $65 million each year.

GM Announces Recall Of Trucks

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. announced Tuesday it is recalling 5,760 light-duty four-wheel-drive GMC and Chevrolet trucks for replacement of front spring eye bolts.

GM said the eye bolts, which attach the spring to its front hanger, may be subject to breakage. A broken spring eye bolt could cause the car to veer to the side on which the bolt is broken when braking.

All trucks being recalled are 1969 models.

Chevrolet also announced it is sending corrected adhesive-backed tire pressure information sheets to owners of 16,712 early production 1970 Chevelles and Monte Carlos.

Milwaukee Obtains Baseball Team Again

Brewers Launch Season At Home

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Pilots became the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night when a federal bankruptcy referee approved the sale of the financially dying American League baseball team for $10.8 million.

The only formality left was referee Sidney C. Volinn's signature on the order today. Attorney Elwin Zarwell, the Brewers' representative, said Volinn's spoken decision Tuesday night was as good as his written approval.

The contract already had been signed and approved by the league, leaving the Brewers free to go about their baseball business.

Volinn approved the sale after saying the Pilots obviously couldn't pay $8.13 million in debts and didn't have the cash to survive a second season in Seattle. That paved the way for the expansion team to open the 1970 season next Tuesday in Milwaukee against the California Angels.

But the death of the Pilots also opened the way for a twofisted attack on baseball's exemption from federal antitrust laws. William L. Dwyer, special assistant state attorney general, said Seattle and the state of Washington would press their $82 million antitrust damage suit which already had been filed in state court and was awaiting removal of the team.

That suit contends that the league violated the state's antitrust laws by excluding competitors from the baseball business and restrained trade in various areas. As a result of the alleged antitrust violations the state, city and their citizens and businesses will suffer economic injury, the suit argues.

Washington's two powerful Democratic senators—Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson—have said they will introduce legislation taking away baseball's antitrust immunity as soon as Congress reconvenes next week.

There was no doubt that the club couldn't meet its debts as they came due and soon would be insolvent, Volinn said. With the baseball season only a week away, the Pilots were in an emergency situation, he added.

The only other solution was to force the American League to carry the team and with it deficit financing amounting to over $5 million during the next three years.

Volinn said it would be unfair to make the league bear that kind of financial burden with the team's only hope of profit, King County's $40 million domed stadium, itself in a legal bind.

The State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that the site selection for the stadium should go on a May ballot pending a court test.

Volinn said he was aware of the unique nature of baseball, but that didn't alter the fact that the team couldn't pay its bills, no matter how it got ino the financial mess in the first place.

In New York Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said "no comment" to the entire Seattle-Milwaukee situation.

But the newest American League executive, Allan "Bud" Selig, president of the Brewers, said "We are delighted with the decision of Federal Bankruptcy referee Sidney C. Volinn."

Volinn cleaned up the last traces of the Pilots by appointing a receiver to take charge after the sale while the reorganization was going on. He also ordered that any distribution of funds from the sale of the Pilots be made only on the order of his court.

Chances of a review of Volinn's decision appeared slim since Washington would have to put up a bond of at least $20 million.

Dwyer, who had pressed for an order making the league take over the club's operations, said after the decision the state would proceed "full steam ahead" with its suit. But that head of steam apparently will take time to build. He estimated that it would be as much as a year before the case went to the state courts.

"But we think we have a very strong damage case," Dwyer said. "We had to shoot a lot of our bullets in this hearing, but we can use those same bullets again. And by bringing out testimony here we had a chance to see what they (the American League) will shoot."

Max Soriano, the Pilots' minority shareholder and secretary treasurer, said he was relieved to be out of the financial and legal entanglements, but regretted Seattle's loss.

"I hope the stadium is built so someone else, and I emphasize here, can have the opportunity to bring major league baseball back to the Pacific Northwest."

MILWAUKEE COUNTY STADIUM will once again be the scene of an opening day celebration, as the sale of the Seattle Pilots became official Monday night, moving the Pilots to Milwaukee. The Brewers, as the team will be known, will open the 1970 baseball season against the California Angels in Milwaukee next Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto)

Antitrust Suit Underway Against American League

SEATTLE (AP) — Organized baseball's long immunity from antitrust laws came under attack today in state court, and was threatened with a federal-level assault in Congress next week.

The two-pronged offensive was launched as the result of the Seattle Pilots' sale to Milwaukee for $10.8 million.

A federal bankruptcy referee approved the sale Tuesday night after ruling that the Seattle club could not pay its $8.13 million in debts and did not have money to operate in Seattle this season.

The team is due to open play in Milwaukee as the Milwaukee Brewers next Tuesday.

The sale means Washington state and Seattle will go ahead with an $82 million antitrust suit filed in King County Superior Court March 16 against the American League and its individual club owners. The county is expected to join the case later.

State Atty. Gen. Slade Gorton had said in a letter to the league that "the suit would differ substantially from nearly all past and present cases" because it dealt "with conduct alleged to be predatory."

William L. Dwyer of Seattle, named by Gorton as his special assistant to handle the case, commented: "We think we have a very strong case. We're hot to go."

Dwyer said that although an antitrust conviction in state court would be binding only in Washington state "it could, and probably would, undermine baseball's antitrust protection in every other state and probably could affect its status under federal antitrust laws."

While the state was attacking under its own antitrust laws, Washington's two Democratic senators, Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, readied a bill to wipe out baseball's protection from federal antitrust provisions.

Jackson said the measure probably would be introduced next week "and we've been assured of a hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee."

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., who represents the Seattle area, plans to file similar legislation in the house.

Jackson conceded the bill might face hard going in Congress, but said its chances were good because baseball had changed so radically since it gained antitrust immunity as a sport—rather than a business—under a 1922 U. S. Supreme Court decision.

Since then, the high court has refused to review that position.

Magnuson said he and Jackson hoped to "save other communities the agony and type of treatment pressed upon Seattle by the American League."

'Bo' Pleased With Changes

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The Michigan Wolverines scrimmaged for about two hours Tuesday as coach Bo Schembechler continued to experiment with player switches in spring football practice.

Reserve quarterback Bill Betts, a senior who has seen varsity action both as backup quarterback to Don Moorhead and as a flanker, is being moved to safety to replace the graduated Tom Curtis.

Roverback Tom Darden, a junior, is moving to cornerback to replace standout Barry Pierson, who also has graduated.

Schembechler said he was "extremely pleased" with the progress of both Betts and Darden in their new positions.

Tuesday's practice also saw reserve quarterback Bill Berutti working out as a wingback, a position filled last year by John Gabler.

Schembechler said Mike Keller, a junior from Grand Rapids who was working out as a roverback until he suffered a knee injury last week, will play at his original position of defensive end next fall. Keller's injury has side lined him for the remainder of the spring practice season.

Bullets, Hawks Score Victories

By The Associated Press

The Bullets gunned down the Knicks again with Earl "The Pearl" pulling the trigger while the Hawks had a Hazzard for the Bulls.

That was the story Tuesday night in the National Basketball Association playoffs. Baltimore beat New York 102-92 to even their Eastern Division best-of-7 semifinals at 2-2 and Atlanta, winning its 10th straight, took a commanding 3-0 lead over Chicago with a 106-101 victory with Walt Hazzard scoring 32 points for the Hawks.

Atlanta's Hawks, already described by Coach Dick Motta of the Bulls "as the best team in basketball," can win the series Friday night in Chicago and get some rest while waiting on Phoenix and Los Angeles, tied 1-1, to complete their playoffs for the other Western Division championship berth.

The Knicks were the only team in the NBA to win four straight in the 1969 playoffs. New York, in the semifinals a year ago, knocked off Baltimore, which had won the Eastern Division championship, and the Bullets are just now starting to recover from the setback.

Milwaukee's Bucks, with super rookie Lew Alcindor, plays at Philadelphia in tonight's only NBA playoff game. The Bucks have a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Division series. Phoenix and Los Angeles resume their playoffs Thursday in Arizona.

"We're somewhat dented but undaunted," said Walt Frazier of the Knicks after New York's second straight loss to the Bullets.

And Willis Reed, the New York captain and the league's Most Valuable Player, said of the series: "We're starting all over. Now it's a best-of-3."

Earl Monroe's clutch shooting in the waning minutes kept the Knicks from overhauling Baltimore and denying the Bullets the chance to win two straight from New York for the first time since the 1968-69 season Monroe wound up with 34 points and has now scored 107 in the four playoff games.

"Monroe is as good an offensive player as there is in the game," chortled Bullets' coach Gene Shue. "No one can stop him He can be controlled some but he cannot be stopped."

Frazier was high for the Knicks with 25 points while Reed contributed 20.

The Hawks almost didn't get their 10th straight victory—they'd won the last seven in regular season play. Off to an early 14-point cushion, they trailed 73-63 late in the third quarter after Chicago had rallied behind Shaler Halimon to take a 54-51 halftime lead.

Hazzard and Hudson got hot for the Hawks early in the fourth quarter. Atlanta pulled into a tie and finally went ahead 93-91 on Hazzard's field goal. Hudson scored 30 points for Atlanta to go with Hazzard's 32. High for the Bulls was Halimon with 22.

The Senators take on the Detroit Tigers in the season opener Monday.

The White House announced earlier the President will not attend the opening day game due to prior commitments.

Kuhn's Final Decision On McLain Comes Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announces today whether Detroit Tiger superstar Denny McLain will be kept out of professional baseball this season.

Kuhn scheduled a news conference at 12 noon at the Americana Hotel to announce his decision on McLain, who was suspended indefinitely Feb. 19 pending Kuhn's investigation into gambling allegations.

In February, Kuhn said he suspended McLain for "involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities and his associations."

Kuhn said he made up his mind Tuesday on what he was going to do about McLain, who also has been plagued with financial troubles recently, despite earning an estimated $200,000 a year from baseball and his outside activities, such as playing the organ at nightclubs.

McLain Doesn't Know

"I still don't know what the commisssioner's decision will be,'" McLain insisted at his Lakeland home Tuesday night, adding he would find out what it was before the noon conference.

However, McLain, the two-time Cy Young Award winner as the best pitcher in the American League, said he would not be available for comment "until late this afternoon or tonight."

"I plan to be away all day," McLain said. "It's something that I planned a long time and it just turned out to be the same day as the decision."

"Do you feel you need time to decide what to tell reporters if Kuhn has an adverse decision?" McLain, who turned 26 Sunday, was asked.

Denny McLain

"Well, yes, that's part of it," he said. A friend of McLain's said Denny didn't want to fly off the handle if the news was bad, and that he wanted time to gather his thoughts.

Business Matter

He said he was going to spend the day on a business matter. There was a strong possibility the get-together was to include a round of golf within short driving distance of Lakeland.

McLain has been working out with his brother, Tim, at his Lakeland home across town from where the Detroit Tigers have their spring training camp.

The 31-game winner in 1968, insists he will be able to pitch on opening day in Washington Monday if he is allowed to.

Kuhn suspended McLain in February, a day after McLain voluntarily appeared before a federal grand jury in Detroit that is investigating organized crime and gambling.

Federal attorneys declined to say what the testimony concerned. However, U.S. District Attorney James Brickley said Tuesday the matter still was under invesigaion.

No Connection

Brickley said the matter in which McLain testified had no connection whatsoever to another Detroit grand jury investigation which resulted in 10 persons being indicted in late February on charges of conspiring to violate interstate gambling laws.

When Kuhn announced the suspension in February, he said it was based "substantially on certain admissions made candidly to me by Mr. McLain."

About Kuhn's action in February, McLain said "All I can say is I'm sorry. I caused a lot of people a lot of embarrassment —not only my wife, Sharyn, but my father-in-law, (Baseball Hall of Famer) Lou Boudreau, and my mother." McLain, who termed the indefinite suspension as being in limbo, said he has been offered several jobs, mainly by nightclubs. He said he would not make any decision on what to do pending Kuhn's final ruling.

Financial Woes

McLain's latest financial trouble came March 18, when the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) seized his furniture and belongings in his Beverly Hills, Mich., home for payment of $9,460 in back income tax.

The IRS then advertised for a public auction April 7 of McLain's goods, which ranged from a "kingsize bed and box springs and mattress" to "velvet pictures of 'Dancer and Bullfighter.'"

A court attempt to collect $2,450 allegedly owed in back rent for the Beverly Hills home was dropped recently, when the home was sublet. A McLain friend, Tom Weyland, said he was trying to work out a settlement with the landlord.

The pitcher has had myriad other financial troubles, concerning his business enterprises, which at one time included a paint firm in suburban Detroit.

Suits Filed

Among other items, suits brought against him call for repayment of a $7,000 loan from the Citizen's Commercial and Savings Bank in Flint, Mich., and $779 for unpaid electric bills to Consumers Power Co. in Michigan.

A suit for $10,000 was filed against a flying service firm McLain headed.

In addition, in early February, the Detroit Tigers confirmed reports that they were to mail his Tiger paychecks to the Detroit Bank & Trust Co. for $5,000 monthly repayment of a loan from Feb. 15, 1970 through July 15, 1970. The bank said the payments were to settle the balance owed on a $30,000 loan at seven per cent interest.

McLain's Tiger contract was estimated at $90,000 for the season.

"I extended myself on business deals and used some bad judgments," McLain has said in describing his financial problems.

Also in late February, McLain told reporters that "I'm in financial trouble. What am I going to do for money? I've got a family to take care of.

"Contrary to belief, 99 per cent of my problems stem from business. I made a lot of lousy investments," he said.

Milwaukee Obtains Baseball Team Again

Brewers Launch Season At Home

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Pilots became the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night when a federal bankruptcy referee approved the sale of the financially dying American League baseball team for $10.8 million.

The only formality left was referee Sidney C. Volinn's signature on the order today. Attorney Elwin Zarwell, the Brewers' representative, said Volinn's spoken decision Tuesday night was as good as his written approval.

The contract already had been signed and approved by the league, leaving the Brewers free to go about their baseball business.

Volinn approved the sale after saying the Pilots obviously couldn't pay $8.13 million in debts and didn't have the cash to survive a second season in Seattle. That paved the way for the expansion team to open the 1970 season next Tuesday in Milwaukee against the California Angels.

But the death of the Pilots also opened the way for a twofisted attack on baseball's exemption from federal antitrust laws. William L. Dwyer, special assistant state attorney general, said Seattle and the state of Washington would press their $82 million antitrust damage suit which already had been filed in state court and was awaiting removal of the team.

That suit contends that the league violated the state's antitrust laws by excluding competitors from the baseball business and restrained trade in various areas. As a result of the alleged antitrust violations the state, city and their citizens and businesses will suffer economic injury, the suit argues.

Washington's two powerful Democratic senators—Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson—have said they will introduce legislation taking away baseball's antitrust immunity as soon as Congress reconvenes next week.

There was no doubt that the club couldn't meet its debts as they came due and soon would be insolvent, Volinn said. With the baseball season only a week away, the Pilots were in an emergency situation, he added.

The only other solution was to force the American League to carry the team and with it deficit financing amounting to over $5 million during the next three years.

Volinn said it would be unfair to make the league bear that kind of financial burden with the team's only hope of profit, King County's $40 million domed stadium, itself in a legal bind.

The State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that the site selection for the stadium should go on a May ballot pending a court test.

Volinn said he was aware of the unique nature of baseball, but that didn't alter the fact that the team couldn't pay its bills, no matter how it got ino the financial mess in the first place.

In New York Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said "no comment" to the entire Seattle-Milwaukee situation.

But the newest American League executive, Allan "Bud" Selig, president of the Brewers, said "We are delighted with the decision of Federal Bankruptcy referee Sidney C. Volinn."

Volinn cleaned up the last traces of the Pilots by appointing a receiver to take charge after the sale while the reorganization was going on. He also ordered that any distribution of funds from the sale of the Pilots be made only on the order of his court.

Chances of a review of Volinn's decision appeared slim since Washington would have to put up a bond of at least $20 million.

Dwyer, who had pressed for an order making the league take over the club's operations, said after the decision the state would proceed "full steam ahead" with its suit. But that head of steam apparently will take time to build. He estimated that it would be as much as a year before the case went to the state courts.

"But we think we have a very strong damage case," Dwyer said. "We had to shoot a lot of our bullets in this hearing, but we can use those same bullets again. And by bringing out testimony here we had a chance to see what they (the American League) will shoot."

Max Soriano, the Pilots' minority shareholder and secretary treasurer, said he was relieved to be out of the financial and legal entanglements, but regretted Seattle's loss.

"I hope the stadium is built so someone else, and I emphasize here, can have the opportunity to bring major league baseball back to the Pacific Northwest."

MILWAUKEE COUNTY STADIUM will once again be the scene of an opening day celebration, as the sale of the Seattle Pilots became official Monday night, moving the Pilots to Milwaukee. The Brewers, as the team will be known, will open the 1970 baseball season against the California Angels in Milwaukee next Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto)

Antitrust Suit Underway Against American League

SEATTLE (AP) — Organized baseball's long immunity from antitrust laws came under attack today in state court, and was threatened with a federal-level assault in Congress next week.

The two-pronged offensive was launched as the result of the Seattle Pilots' sale to Milwaukee for $10.8 million.

A federal bankruptcy referee approved the sale Tuesday night after ruling that the Seattle club could not pay its $8.13 million in debts and did not have money to operate in Seattle this season.

The team is due to open play in Milwaukee as the Milwaukee Brewers next Tuesday.

The sale means Washington state and Seattle will go ahead with an $82 million antitrust suit filed in King County Superior Court March 16 against the American League and its individual club owners. The county is expected to join the case later.

Bullets, Hawks Score Victories

By The Associated Press

The Bullets gunned down the Knicks again with Earl "The Pearl" pulling the trigger while the Hawks had a Hazzard for the Bulls.

That was the story Tuesday night in the National Basketball Association playoffs. Baltimore beat New York 102-92 to even their Eastern Division best-of-7 semifinals at 2-2 and Atlanta, winning its 10th straight, took a commanding 3-0 lead over Chicago with a 106-101 victory with Walt Hazzard scoring 32 points for the Hawks.

Atlanta's Hawks, already described by Coach Dick Motta of the Bulls "as the best team in basketball," can win the series Friday night in Chicago and get some rest while waiting on Phoenix and Los Angeles, tied 1-1, to complete their playoffs for the other Western Division championship berth.

The Knicks were the only team in the NBA to win four straight in the 1969 playoffs. New York, in the semifinals a year ago, knocked off Baltimore, which had won the Eastern Division championship, and the Bullets are just now starting to recover from the setback.

Milwaukee's Bucks, with super rookie Lew Alcindor, plays at Philadelphia in tonight's only NBA playoff game. The Bucks have a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Division series. Phoenix and Los Angeles resume their playoffs Thursday in Arizona.

"We're somewhat dented but undaunted," said Walt Frazier of the Knicks after New York's second straight loss to the Bullets.

And Willis Reed, the New York captain and the league's Most Valuable Player, said of the series: "We're starting all over. Now it's a best-of-3."

Earl Monroe's clutch shooting in the waning minutes kept the Knicks from overhauling Baltimore and denying the Bullets the chance to win two straight from New York for the first time since the 1968-69 season Monroe wound up with 34 points and has now scored 107 in the four playoff games.

"Monroe is as good an offensive player as there is in the game," chortled Bullets' coach Gene Shue. "No one can stop him He can be controlled some but he cannot be stopped."

Frazier was high for the Knicks with 25 points while Reed contributed 20.

The Hawks almost didn't get their 10th straight victory—they'd won the last seven in regular season play. Off to an early 14-point cushion, they trailed 73-63 late in the third quarter after Chicago had rallied behind Shaler Halimon to take a 54-51 halftime lead.

Hazzard and Hudson got hot for the Hawks early in the fourth quarter. Atlanta pulled into a tie and finally went ahead 93-91 on Hazzard's field goal. Hudson scored 30 points for Atlanta to go with Hazzard's 32. High for the Bulls was Halimon with 22.

The Senators take on the Detroit Tigers in the season opener Monday.

The White House announced earlier the President will not attend the opening day game due to prior commitments.

Bengal Rookie May Be Starter

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Rookie Elliott Maddox may be the Detroit Tigers opening day centerfielder.

Manager Mayo Smith doesn't necessarily want to use the Big Ten batting champion if he doesn't have to. But he may have to.

Maddox played an impressive game Tuesday as the Tigers slugged their way out of their doldrums with an 8-4 exhibition baseball victory over Boston.

The 22-year-old former University of Michigan star belted a two-run homer in Detroit's six-run fourth inning. And he added a fine backhanded running catch at the wall to take a possible triple away from Rico Petrocelli in the second.

Veteran Al Kaline hit a three-run homer in the big inning as the Tigers won only their eighth game against 16 losses.

"Coach Wally Moses worked very hard with Maddox this morning. Otherwise he wouldn't have caught that ball," Smith said.

"He didn't get such a good jump on the ball in yesterday's game (a 6-2 loss to Kansas City)."

But Smith was clearly pleased with Maddox Tuesday.

"I may have to start him opening day," he said, adding that Mickey Stanley is still bothered by a sore arm and Jim Northrup by sore legs.

If either Stanley or Northrup are able to start when Detroit opens the American League season Monday in Washington, then Maddox will be used in center between leftfielder Willie Horton and rightfielder Kaline.

"I'd hate to have to put that much pressure on the kid," Smith said. "Especially in Washington with the President there and everything. But I wouldn't hesitate to do it if I had to."

The Tigers, who were scheduled to have a rematch against the Red Sox today in nearby Winter Haven, trailed Boston 4-0 after the top of the third inning. Don Pavletich tagged Mike Kilkenny for a two-run homer in the second and Tony Conigliaro also got a two-run blast in the third."

Detroit got its first run on a sacrifice fly by Norm Cash in the bottom off the third and then surged ahead in the fourth with six runs on seven hits.

Horton knocked in the Tigers' final run in the eighth with a single after a double by Dick McAuliffe.

Yanks, Pirates Continue Impressive Spring Play

By The Associated Press

The baseball establishment is taking great pains to put its troubled house in order before next week's season openers, but spring cleaning has been a pleasure trip for the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Yankees.

While two off-the-field dilemmas—the Denny McLain case and the Seattle Pilots caper—neared resolution Tuesday, the Pirates and Yanks continued to roll up scores in exhibition play.

Pittsburgh bombed the world champion New York Mets 12-3 for its seventh straight victory and the Yankees brought their spring record to 15-7, best in the majors, with an eight-run ninth inning volley that flattened Minnesota 9-2.

In New York, meanwhile, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn scheduled a noon, EST, press conference at which he will announce the fate of McLain, the Detroit pitching ace who has been under indefinite suspension since Feb. 19 for involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities.

In Seattle, a federal bankruptcy referee cleared the way for the transfer of the financially-crippled Pilots to Milwaukee. Formal announcement of the sale of the American League club, to be renamed the Brewers, was expected today.

Back in New York, a federal judge set May 18 as trial date for Curt Flood's suit challenging the reserve clause and Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, recommended a 30-day extension in contract negotiations with major league club owners.

The Pirates stung the Mets with a 15-hit assault including homers by Roberto Clemente, Richie Hebner and Jerry May. Rookie John Ellis doubled to launch the Yankees' ninth inning explosion and climaxed the rally with a three-run homer.

Philadelphia withstood a five-run St. Louis burst in the ninth and edged the Cardinals 12-11. Ex-Cards Byron Browne and Tim McCarver paced the Phillies with four RBI and three hits, respectively.

Oakland snapped a seven-game losing streak by thumping the Chicago Cubs 13-7 as Sal Bando cracked a bases-loaded homer. A two-run homer by rookie Elliott Maddox helped Detroit whip Boston 8-4.

San Diego trimmed Cleveland 6-1 on the three-hit pitching of Mike Corkins and Dave Roberts; Montreal nipped Kansas City 2-1; the Chicago White Sox shaded Washington 6-5; California topped the Pilots 4-2 and Baltimore downed Houston 5-2 in a night game at the Astrodome.

Atlanta slipped past its Richmond farm club 1-0 in 11 innings and Cincinnati beat its Indianapolis affiliate 4-2.

San Francisco, back home from a Japanese exhibition tour, cut nine players, including slugger Jim Ray Hart, who was sent to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League. Minnesota made 11 squad cuts and asked waivers on veteran Bob Allison.

Other cutdown casualties included pitchers Dick Hughes and Jerry Johnson and outfielder Lee Thomas of St. Louis, pitcher Gary Neibauer of Atlanta, outfielder Joe Lahoud on Boston and pitcher Sam Ellis of Cleveland.

Pitcher Rudy May, apparently upset over his demotion to No. 4 man in California's starting rotation, jumped the club in Tempe, Ariz., and returned to his Los Angeles home.

Veteran Orioles Rated Favorites

MIAMI (AP) — "We didn't blow the World Series," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said. "The Mets beat us.

Earl Weaver has been saying it over and over and over again since Oct. 16 last year, the day the World Series ended with the Mets on top of the baseball world and the Orioles getting the hee-haw all the way back to Baltimore.

But neither the result nor the questions seriously disturbed Weaver's winter — according to him—and there doesn't seem to be a team in the American League that can disturb the Orioles' run to another pennant.

Weaver all but admitted as much when he took another retrospective look at the World Se-Series, admitted he hasn't seen "A club for five straight days that played as great as the Mets" and then added:

"I think we have as much or more talent. And I think we're a little deeper than the Mets."

The Orioles are so deep that some of the players who spend their time on the Baltimore bench trying to keep interested might very well be playing regularly with several other clubs.

And it should be emphasized that no one in the American League touched the Orioles last season as they won the Eastern title by 19 games over Detroit and then swept Minnesota in the playoffs.

There's not much left to give the other contenders hope—and any rundown of the line-up just reinforces that estimate.

At first base is Boog Powell, an awesome power hitter who last season hit .304 and slugged 37 homers while driving in 121 runs

Dave Johnson is a .280 hitting second baseman and Mark Belanger a .287 hitting shortstop —a combination that's virtually impossible to duplicate in this era and at third is irrepressible Brooks Robinson, slick fielder, heavy veteran and still a slugging threat (23 homers 84 RBI).

In the outfield, it's Frank Robinson, one of only three $125,000 players in the American League—a .308 hitter with 32 homers and 100 RBI—who ended the 1969 season with 450 career homers.

In center field is quick Paul Blair, a 171 pounder who has the power to slam 26 homers, and the left field spot belongs to Don Buford, a consistent hitter and stolen base threat.

That line-up is so sound that the latest gem from the Orioles' farm system, Terry Crowley, who hit .282 at Rochester with 28 homers and 83 RBI, likely will sit along with Curt Motton, Merv Rettenmund, Dave May and others considered good enough to challenge for regular jobs elsewhere.

If there is an inconsistency, it's in the catching, where Andy Etchebarren and Elrod Hendricks share the job since it takes two of them to provide the hitting needed from one.

One light-hitter in a line-up that includes the aforementioned arsenal hardly is cause for concern particularly when it is all complemented by a pitching staff that put together the best earned run average in the majors last season, 2.83.

Weaver has three spots in the starting rotation set aside for 23-game winner Mike Cuellar, 20-game winner Dave McNally and 16-game winner Jim Palmer. Tom Phoebus and Jim Hardin likely will fill out the rotation.

The bullpen, like the rest of the line-up, is tops with Ed Watt, 1.65 ERA, the No. 1 right-handed stopper, and Pete Richert, 2.21 ERA, the No. 1 left-handed stopper.

King's Bar Wins Pool Tournament

The championship of the Men's Pool League was played at King's Bar March 10, 1970 between the winner of the first half, the Arcadia Bar of Gladstone and King's Bar, the second half winner. In a real close match King's Bar defeated the Arcadia team 8-7 to win this year's championship. In the playoff for the high individual avreage for the season, Jim Brimer of the Buck Inn beat Jerry Hansen of King's Bar.

These are the final results for the second half:

Top Draft Picks Ink Celtic Pacts

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics now have signed their top three choices in the recent National Basketball Association draft.

Rex Morgan, the 6-foot-5 Jacksonville backcourt man who was the No. 2 draft selection, was the latest to come to terms, following the earlier signings of No. 1 pick Dave Cowens of Florida State and No. 3 choice Willie Williams, also off Florida State.

Morgan was the nation's 10th leading scorer in his junior season with a 26.7 average.

He turned more to a playmaking role this past season with the advent of 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, leading the team with 112 assists, but still managed to score at an 18.7 clip.

Red Wings Face Hawks In Crucial Showdown

DETROIT (AP) — The sick-out by air traffic controllers has cramped the Detroit Red Wings' travel style but hopefully won't hurt their style of play in a crucial showdown with the Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

Rather than risk long delays forced by the crippling slowdown at O'Hare Airport in Chicago, coach and general manager Sid Abel decided to load the team on the bus for the five- to six-hour trip to the Windy City.

Going into tonight's game, the Wings are in fourth place in the tight NHL East Division playoff race. Chicago and Boston are tied for first with 95 points, Montreal is third with 90, the Red Wings have 89 and New York is fifth with 88. But the Wings have played one game less than any of the other four contenders.

The Wings have four games remaining in the season.

Elsewhere in the Eastern Division, Boston plays at Montreal and New York visits Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Bill Collins enjoyed another $200 night, and the Minnesota North Stars jumped into fourth place in the NHL's West Division.

The North Stars, with Collins getting two goals and an assist, handed the Los Angeles Kings a record-tying 5-2 setback Tuesday night to keep their Stanley Cup playoff hopes alive.

The Oakland Seals, who play tonight at St. Louis, fell one point behind the North Stars in their battle for the final playoff spot in the West. The Seals have three more games to play compared with Minnesota's two.

"We're in fourth now," Collins bubbled after the game. "They have to catch us now."

Collins scored his 27th and 28th goals of the season to raise his bonus money to $1,800—$100 for every goal he makes past 10.

"I guess Wren Blair thought I would only get nine this year," Collins said about his general manager and the 1969-70 contract that carried the bonus provision.

Collins netted only nine goals each of his first two years with the North Stars.

But his goals against the Kings were two of the most important for the North Stars this season.

The first, a lunging shot over goalie Denis DeJordy, gave the North Stars a 2-0 lead. And the second pushed his club ahead 4-2 in the third period after Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago made some brilliant saves against the pressing Kings.

Barry Gibbs and Claude Larose also scored for the North Stars in the first period sending the Kings down 3-0.

But then Eddie Shack beat Maniago on a breakaway and with a shot from behind the blue line to cut the margin to 3-2.

That was all the Kings got in losing their 51st game of the season and tying the 1953-54 Chicago Black Hawks for the most losses in one year.

"If we play like we did tonight," said Larose, "it will be a very interesting finish. I think L. S. will give Oakland trouble this week. If L.A. can take one and we win Saturday, we'll be all right."

Oakland finishes against Los Angeles on a home-and-home basis Friday and Saturday nights. Minnesota winds up with Philadelphia Saturday afternoon and Pittsburgh Sunday night.

Dr. Reizen New Health Director

LANSING (AP) — Dr. Maurice S. Reizen, director of the Ingham County Health Department since 1966, has been named director of the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Reizen, 51, will take over May 4, succeeding Dr. R. Gerald Rice, whose resignation becomes effective Wednesday. In the interim, the job will be filled by Dr. Kenneth Wilcox, director of the department's Bureau of Laboratories.

Rice announced several months ago his intention to leave the post.

In announcing the appointment of Reizen, Gov. William Milliken said the new appointee "possesses the unusual and admirable combination of keen social awareness, medical expertise and experience in hospital administration and public health. He has amply demonstrated a deep concern for the young and the poor."

Reizen is a specialist in general preventive medicine and public health. A 1940 graduate of the University of Michigan, he received a master's degree in public health from that school and a teacher's certificate from Wayne State University in 1946. He received his medical degree in 1950 from the University of Rochester and practiced medicine in Warren for 15 years before taking the job as Ingham County health director.

While in Warren, he served as chief of general practice at South Macomb Hospital and deputy medical examiner for Macomb County.

He also served in the Air Force for five years, being discharged in 1945.

Reizen will serve for a term subject to determination by the governor. Senate confirmation of the appointment is required.

Rice, the outgoing department director, served in the position for some three years.

Solon Against Transportation Planning Program

LANSING (AP)—A $2.38 million transportation planning program for the Detroit metropolitan area has been termed by Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Pontiac, as "another million dollar planning boondoggle."

Anderson said "let's use the over-all plan we've already paid for and put our money into results, not more planning."

Anderson said a multimillion dollar, five-year study plan known as Talus, has just been completed. However, he called attention to a recently announced contract between the State Highway Commission and the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) for yet another study.

The TALUS study, Anderson said, "was supposed to be a wonderful, long range plan for transportation and land use in Southeastern Michigan...Why, with this sparking new plan just completed, is it necessary to immediately begin another project costing millions of tax dollars?"

The new program is to cost $2.38 million, Anderson said, with roughly half coming out of state funds and the other half coming from SEMCOG member communities.

"If the highway commission has nothing better to do with its money than restudy a bunch of earlier studies," Anderson said, "I've sure got plenty of ideas for better use of that cash."

Pumpkin-Stealing Shooting Brings 45-Night Sentence

CASSOPOLIS (AP) — A 38-year-old Cass County farmer has been sentenced to 45 nights in jail after pleading guilty to careless use of firearms in the shooting death of a teen-aged boy, who allegedly stole pumpkins from the farmer's yard.

Circuit Judge James E. Hoff said the sentence against Louis Corwin may be reduced because of good behavior. The judge fined Corwin $100 plus court costs of $100. The judge said that because of Corwin's lack of any previous arrest record, he may work during the day and spend only nights in jail while paying $2.10 per day for board at the jail.

Corwin was originally charged with manslaughter in the Oct. 29 slaying of Steven Cook, 16, but the charge was dismissed on recommendation of the county prosecutor. The farmer said he fired a .22-caliber rifle into the air to frighten boys stealing his pumpkins.

Daughter Dies In Fall From Car

OVID, Mich. (AP) — A seven-year-old Fremont, Ind., girl died Tuesday when she fell out a door of a car driven by her father in Ovid Township of Branch County, Mich., near the Michigan-Indiana border.

Branch County Sheriff's deputies quoted the child's father, Robert L. Snyder, 31, as saying that his daughter Laurynda Lee Snyder, was seated near the front right door of the car when the door suddenly opened and the girl fell out.

The only other passenger, Laurynda's sister, Denise, 3, was seated next to her father and was not injured, deputies said.

TODAY IS THE DAY HISTORY WILL KNOW AS G-DAY

THE 1970 GREMLIN

This is April 1, 1970. But more importantly, this is the day we introduce the 1970 Gremlin from American Motors. Break out the hats and horns. Gremlin is the car this country has needed for 18 yrs. It's a car that's fun to drive and ride in and easy to look at. It's only 2½ inches longer than the bug. But it's almost 10 inches longer than the bug. But it's almost 10 inches wider and 800 pounds heavier. There's a 128 hp proved engine (compared to VW's 57 hp) that commands 23 miles from a gallon of regular gas. Predictably, Gremlin will call a halt to foreign infiltration. We encourage you to assault our showrooms and arm yourself with a Gremlin.

If you do, you'll never forget April 1, 1970, as G-Day . . . the day we turned them back in the streets and beat them at their own game on the freeways.

Dr. Reizen New Health Director

LANSING (AP) — Dr. Maurice S. Reizen, director of the Ingham County Health Department since 1966, has been named director of the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Reizen, 51, will take over May 4, succeeding Dr. R. Gerald Rice, whose resignation becomes effective Wednesday. In the interim, the job will be filled by Dr. Kenneth Wilcox, director of the department's Bureau of Laboratories.

Rice announced several months ago his intention to leave the post.

In announcing the appointment of Reizen, Gov. William Milliken said the new appointee "possesses the unusual and admirable combination of keen social awareness, medical expertise and experience in hospital administration and public health. He has amply demonstrated a deep concern for the young and the poor."

Reizen is a specialist in general preventive medicine and public health. A 1940 graduate of the University of Michigan, he received a master's degree in public health from that school and a teacher's certificate from Wayne State University in 1946. He received his medical degree in 1950 from the University of Rochester and practiced medicine in Warren for 15 years before taking the job as Ingham County health director.

While in Warren, he served as chief of general practice at South Macomb Hospital and deputy medical examiner for Macomb County.

He also served in the Air Force for five years, being discharged in 1945.

Reizen will serve for a term subject to determination by the governor. Senate confirmation of the appointment is required.

Rice, the outgoing department director, served in the position for some three years.

Solon Against Transportation Planning Program

LANSING (AP)—A $2.38 million transportation planning program for the Detroit metropolitan area has been termed by Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Pontiac, as "another million dollar planning boondoggle."

Anderson said "let's use the over-all plan we've already paid for and put our money into results, not more planning."

Anderson said a multimillion dollar, five-year study plan known as Talus, has just been completed. However, he called attention to a recently announced contract between the State Highway Commission and the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) for yet another study.

The TALUS study, Anderson said, "was supposed to be a wonderful, long range plan for transportation and land use in Southeastern Michigan...Why, with this sparking new plan just completed, is it necessary to immediately begin another project costing millions of tax dollars?"

The new program is to cost $2.38 million, Anderson said, with roughly half coming out of state funds and the other half coming from SEMCOG member communities.

"If the highway commission has nothing better to do with its money than restudy a bunch of earlier studies," Anderson said, "I've sure got plenty of ideas for better use of that cash."

Pumpkin-Stealing Shooting Brings 45-Night Sentence

CASSOPOLIS (AP) — A 38-year-old Cass County farmer has been sentenced to 45 nights in jail after pleading guilty to careless use of firearms in the shooting death of a teen-aged boy, who allegedly stole pumpkins from the farmer's yard.

Circuit Judge James E. Hoff said the sentence against Louis Corwin may be reduced because of good behavior. The judge fined Corwin $100 plus court costs of $100. The judge said that because of Corwin's lack of any previous arrest record, he may work during the day and spend only nights in jail while paying $2.10 per day for board at the jail.

Corwin was originally charged with manslaughter in the Oct. 29 slaying of Steven Cook, 16, but the charge was dismissed on recommendation of the county prosecutor. The farmer said he fired a .22-caliber rifle into the air to frighten boys stealing his pumpkins.

Daughter Dies In Fall From Car

OVID, Mich. (AP) — A seven-year-old Fremont, Ind., girl died Tuesday when she fell out a door of a car driven by her father in Ovid Township of Branch County, Mich., near the Michigan-Indiana border.

Branch County Sheriff's deputies quoted the child's father, Robert L. Snyder, 31, as saying that his daughter Laurynda Lee Snyder, was seated near the front right door of the car when the door suddenly opened and the girl fell out.

The only other passenger, Laurynda's sister, Denise, 3, was seated next to her father and was not injured, deputies said.

TODAY IS THE DAY HISTORY WILL KNOW AS G-DAY

THE 1970 GREMLIN

This is April 1, 1970. But more importantly, this is the day we introduce the 1970 Gremlin from American Motors. Break out the hats and horns. Gremlin is the car this country has needed for 18 yrs. It's a car that's fun to drive and ride in and easy to look at. It's only 2½ inches longer than the bug. But it's almost 10 inches longer than the bug. But it's almost 10 inches wider and 800 pounds heavier. There's a 128 hp proved engine (compared to VW's 57 hp) that commands 23 miles from a gallon of regular gas. Predictably, Gremlin will call a halt to foreign infiltration. We encourage you to assault our showrooms and arm yourself with a Gremlin.

If you do, you'll never forget April 1, 1970, as G-Day . . . the day we turned them back in the streets and beat them at their own game on the freeways.

U-M Events Spoil Public Confidence, Republican Says

LANSING (AP) — A ranking House Republican says events at the University of Michigan are "destroying the public's confidence in the university" and could provoke "dire consequences."

Rep. Hal Ziegler of Jackson, assistant House minority floor leader, called on the U-M Board of Regents to "completely inform" the public about the 12-day strike precipitated by the Black Action Movement (BAM).

BAM representatives and U-M officials had been conducting secret negotiations on student demands.

"The hell with these secret negotiations," Ziegler said. "The people want to know what's going on."

Ziegler said calls to his office indicated people believe the university is "being mismanaged. I feel the conflicting stories coming out of Ann Arbor are the main reason that the public feels the university is not being properly administered," he said in a letter to board members.

"Whether this opinion is right or wrong is immaterial, because it is the conclusion that the public reaches that matters," he said.

Ziegler indicated expectations of public pressures to cut the university's budget, a move he said would be "improper as it would be punishing the innocent."

"Further, I would feel that pressure would be exerted to try to change the constitutional autonomy that presently exists and which certainly is desirable," he added.

Regents, Ziegler said, should "immediately ask all of the news media to make available whatever time is necessary to completely inform the public as to what is occurring at the university, what the university's reaction is and has been, and what is contemplated for the future.

"Anything short of a complete effort to restore the public's support and confidence in the university would have dire consequences," he said.

Ziegler said also that any agreements made with officials and students should be approved by the regents, as "the voice of the people in their elected capacity."

Newspaper Want Ads are a big sell! One billion, twenty-one million was spent on classified ads last year . . . more than for all magazine advertising combined and more than 300 million more than radio advertising.

With Care, Seed Becomes Lawn

A grass seed is one of Nature's most successful inventions. It needs only a little help to transform barren ground into a beautiful lawn.

Seed is easy to handle, and lawn spreaders make light of distributing seed uniformly.

Seed can lie dormant until weather is just right. It carries its own energy supply, sufficient to push a seedling several inches tall before the grass plant itself takes over. It is not harmed by freezing and is too small to be of great interest to bird and beast.

Needs Moisture

Lawnseed does need moisture and warmth in order to sprout. If it contacts the soil, moisture should be adequate in spring. Warmth will come as spring advances, with germination starting slowly and accelerating later.

There is generally no cause for concern here. But you do have to provide for the seed-soil contact.

Lawn seeding is most satisfactory when made to a cultivated, fertilized soil. Then there is a tumble of loose soil into which the seed can settle and become partly buried. But you can seed successfully even to uncultivated soil, though it is best to scratch the surface in order to better hold the seed.

Where soil cannot be cultivated, be sure to mulch the new seeding. A mulch over the seeding retains moisture and prevents the seed from washing away.

Early As Possible

Mulch may be of any inert material that retards moisture evaporation but is porous enough to let rain and light through. Clean straw a few straws deep, excelsior mats, woven nettings or fiberglass blankets are much used.

Seed the lawn as early in spring as is feasible, in order to let the grass root deeply before hot weather comes. Begin mowing when the soil has dried sufficiently to be firm, about when the new grass reaches twice what will be its customary mowing height.

Grass will then be old enough to endure chemical weed control.

U-M Events Spoil Public Confidence, Republican Says

LANSING (AP) — A ranking House Republican says events at the University of Michigan are "destroying the public's confidence in the university" and could provoke "dire consequences."

Rep. Hal Ziegler of Jackson, assistant House minority floor leader, called on the U-M Board of Regents to "completely inform" the public about the 12-day strike precipitated by the Black Action Movement (BAM).

BAM representatives and U-M officials had been conducting secret negotiations on student demands.

"The hell with these secret negotiations," Ziegler said. "The people want to know what's going on."

Ziegler said calls to his office indicated people believe the university is "being mismanaged. I feel the conflicting stories coming out of Ann Arbor are the main reason that the public feels the university is not being properly administered," he said in a letter to board members.

"Whether this opinion is right or wrong is immaterial, because it is the conclusion that the public reaches that matters," he said.

Ziegler indicated expectations of public pressures to cut the university's budget, a move he said would be "improper as it would be punishing the innocent."

"Further, I would feel that pressure would be exerted to try to change the constitutional autonomy that presently exists and which certainly is desirable," he added.

Regents, Ziegler said, should "immediately ask all of the news media to make available whatever time is necessary to completely inform the public as to what is occurring at the university, what the university's reaction is and has been, and what is contemplated for the future.

"Anything short of a complete effort to restore the public's support and confidence in the university would have dire consequences," he said.

Ziegler said also that any agreements made with officials and students should be approved by the regents, as "the voice of the people in their elected capacity."

With Care, Seed Becomes Lawn

A grass seed is one of Nature's most successful inventions. It needs only a little help to transform barren ground into a beautiful lawn.

Seed is easy to handle, and lawn spreaders make light of distributing seed uniformly.

Seed can lie dormant until weather is just right. It carries its own energy supply, sufficient to push a seedling several inches tall before the grass plant itself takes over. It is not harmed by freezing and is too small to be of great interest to bird and beast.

Needs Moisture

Lawnseed does need moisture and warmth in order to sprout. If it contacts the soil, moisture should be adequate in spring. Warmth will come as spring advances, with germination starting slowly and accelerating later.

There is generally no cause for concern here. But you do have to provide for the seed-soil contact.

Lawn seeding is most satisfactory when made to a cultivated, fertilized soil. Then there is a tumble of loose soil into which the seed can settle and become partly buried. But you can seed successfully even to uncultivated soil, though it is best to scratch the surface in order to better hold the seed.

Where soil cannot be cultivated, be sure to mulch the new seeding. A mulch over the seeding retains moisture and prevents the seed from washing away.

Early As Possible

Mulch may be of any inert material that retards moisture evaporation but is porous enough to let rain and light through. Clean straw a few straws deep, excelsior mats, woven nettings or fiberglass blankets are much used.

Contract Expires

Truckers Leave Cabs To Join Picket Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Truck drivers stepped down from their cabs and picketed terminals in several major cities today with the expiration of nationwide trucking contracts and talks deadlocked over a new pact.

The pattern was one of scattered and local action, but some 10,000 St. Louis Teamsters were reported staying away from work. A St. Louis trucker said the trucking industry "is shut down from St. Louis to Kansas City."

All 5,000 Teamsters walked off the job in Denver, 1,000 of them forming picket lines.

Teamster pickets also were walking in Kansas City, San Francisco and San Jose, Calif.

In Chicago where separate talks are being conducted, union officials said the 50,000 members in that area would not strike this morning. "We may get this thing solved very shortly," said a Teamster leader in Chicago.

Nationally, the Teamsters Union has not issued a strike call for its 425,000 members. But some walkouts were expected with the contract expiration at midnight and sources have admitted more pressure would be helpful at the bargaining table.

The Teamsters union and Trucking Employers Inc. had narrowed their wage differences slightly before the Tuesday talk recess but were still some 80 cents an hour apart.

Early indications pointed to efforts by Teamsters offifcials to head off any scattered work stoppages. Union officials in Detroit reported receiving a call from Teamsters leaders in Washington saying telegrams were going out to all locals asking members to stay at work pending today's talks.

An officer of the Houston, Tex., Teamsters local also said his members would work under the old contract as long as negotiations continue.

U.P. Normal

Trucking operations in the upper Peninsula remain normal today despite walkouts by Teamsters Union members at various sites in the United States, according to officials of Clairmont Transfer Co. and C. W. Transport, Inc., in Escanaba. Clairmont employes at Evansville and Indianapolis, Ind., have walked off jobs but the only effect this will have on the U.P. will be in the freight going to and coming from those two terminals, said Jack Winters, vice president of operations.

Deputies Find Going Rugged Over Evictions

CHICAGO (AP) — With furniture strewn over the snowy lawns and 100 policemen standing by, bricks and stones flew as deputy sheriffs evicted 12 families for not making monthly payments on their homes.

The deputies were in the midst of the eviction Tuesday when members of a crowd of more than 300 began throwing things at the police guard.

Reinforcements were called in and 25 persons were arrested. Two policemen were injured, neither seriously.

Most of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct and assault. Police said one pointed a revolver and was charged with aggravated assault and unlawful use of a weapon.

A crowd attempted to overturn a police car, but its driver sped away without difficulty.

As vans hauled the family possessions away, Arthur Williams, a steel worker and one of the persons evicted, asked: "Where to now? Maybe back to the ghetto."

"It isn't right. Still, there's no sense in violence," he said.

The 12 families are members of the Contract Buyers League, which has been withholding monthly payments on home purchases because, they maintain in a suit seeking to upset the contracts, the agreements are unfair.

The families contend that the sellers overcharged them for the property and took advantage of their inability to understand contract language.

In contract buying, the seller retains title to the property until the full amount of the purchase price is paid.

An attorney for the sellers said his clients had a waiting list of new buyers ready to move into the small frame houses in a Negro neighborhood.

Army Deserter Serving Robbery Term In Sweden

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — U.S. Army deserter John Martin Babcock, 23, was sentenced to five years in prison here Tuesday for armed robbery.

The trial came a week after he was overpowered by passers-by and arrested as he fled down a street with 25,000 kroner — $3,300.

Babcock, who deserted from his unit in West Germany in May and went to Sweden, got the fastest trial of any robber in Denmark since World War II, officials said.

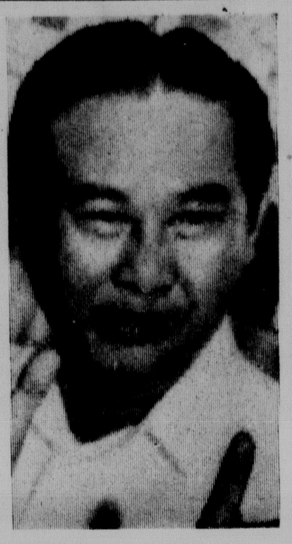

The prosecutor told the court the trial was in line with a new policy aimed at using quick justice to counter a wave of armed robberies in the Copenhagen area over the last six months. Several of the robberies were committed by foreigners.

Babcock, whose only available home address is Michigan, made a full admission in court and said he had made several trips to Copenhagen from Sweden to plan the robbery. But he also blamed desperate conditions as a deserter in Sweden for making him a robber.

He told the court he lost a factory job in Sweden after an accident, could not afford medical treatment for an injured wrist and failed to get aid-mainly to learn the Swedish language - from Swedish social welfare authorities.

Stepped-Up VC Attacks Noted; 38 Yanks Killed

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong launched their heaviest coordinated attacks across South Vietnam in seven months Tuesday night, hitting more than 100 bases and towns and inflicting the heaviest allied casualties since last August.

Reports were still incomplete, but the allied commands and other sources in Saigon said casualties were at least 38 Americans killed and 184 wounded, 65 South Vietnamese troops killed and 176 wounded, and 240 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

The enemy inflicted serious American and South Vietnamese casualties in more than a dozen of the attacks and at the same time kept their own casualties down by employing rockets, mortars and small commando-sapper units hurling dynamite bombs and firing rocket grenades.

The U.S. Command termed the attacks a "highpoint" of enemy activity but said the sharp increase in activity would not be considered a spring offensive unless it continued.

The U.S. Command also announced that a U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bomber was hit by ground fire over North Vietnam Monday but said the two crewmen nursed it to within 4½ miles of their base in Thailand before the plane crashed. The two crewmen ejected safely, but two Thai civilians were injured.

A communique from U.S. headquarters reported 114 rocket and mortar attacks Tuesday night, 39 of them against American air bases, divisional and brigade headquarters. A spokesman said 44 of the 114 attacks caused casualties or damage.

Hands Off Plan For Cambodia Given Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two veteran Senate Republicans have joined in praising Democratic leader Mike Mansfield for warning of the pitfalls of U.S. involvement in the deteriorating Cambodian situation.

The senators, George D. Aiken of Vermont and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky also said they expect President Nixon to resist any pressures for deeper Southeast Asian involvement which Mansfield said he feared.

"We should not intervene in the Cambodia situation in any way, shape or form," Mansfield told the Senate Tuesday. He said his constitutents were against intervention and added:

"The time to clamp down the lid on a further U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia is now."

Aiken, senior GOP member of both the Senate and its Foreign Relations Committee, called Mansfield's statement "the sort of speech that can be very helpful to the President of the United States and to the secretary of state."

Cooper, also a Foreign Relations Committee member, said he hopes Mansfield's advice "will be followed. I have every expectation that it will be."

Meanwhile, Secretary of State William P. Rogers advised the committee he would prefer his testimony Thursday be behind closed doors, rather than in public as had been planned. The request was granted.

25 Survive Jetliner Crash In Morocco

2 Wings, Tail Ripped Apart From Fuselage

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — A Moroccan twin-jet Caravelle crashed within two miles of the Nouasseur Airport while coming in for a landing today. Airline officials said 25 of the 82 persons aboard survived the crash and a fire which roared through the front part of the plane.

The Royal Aur Morac flight from Agadir, an Atlantic resort in southern Morocco, to Paris, with a stop at Casablanca, carried 76 passengers and a crew of six. Among the passengers were 26 tourists returning from a stay at the Club Mediterranee vacation colony at Agadir.

Debris was scattered over an area of nearly a mile. The wings were found 350 yards apart. The tail of the plane was 300 yards from the main part of the fuselage.

Most of the survivors were believed to have been sitting in the tail section which was spared from fire after the craft tore apart under the impact.

Abdeslam Ben Hammou, governor of Agadir Province, was one of the survivors. Two cabin stewards were reported to have escaped.

The control tower at Nouasseur Airport—a former U.S. Air Force Base which is now Casablanca's principal landing field —said that the last message from the pilot was that everything was normal and that he was making his approach.

The plane apparently lost altitude for unknown reasons, and the left wing seemed to dip sharply. It tore through a cluster of telephone wires.

The front part of the cabin was badly burned. Charred luggage, souvenirs and clothing were scattered over a wide area.

Ambulances from surrounding villages and helicopters from police headquarters in Rabat went to the scene. The wounded, many of them in serious condition, were taken to hospitals in Casablanca.

The pilot of the plane, Roger Emond, a veteran of 20,000 flying hours, was on loan to Royal Air Maroc from Air France.

Arts Session

ALLENDALE (AP) — Faculty members from the Fine Arts departments of 13 Michigan colleges will hold an informal discussion session at Grand Valley State College Saturday.

The meeting titled "Culture in the Cornfields" is designed to offer the teachers a chance to discuss common problems.

RELEASED BY HIJACKERS — Twenty-three passengers, mostly women and children, who were aboard the Japanese plane, "Yodo" are being directed by an airport official as they left the jetliner prior to takeoff. N. Koreans OK Landing

SEOUL (AP) — North Korea gave a go-ahead today for a hijacked Japanese airliner grounded here to land in Pyongyang, and the plane's hijackers demanded to be flown north at daybreak Thursday.

In a radiotelephone conversation with a Japanese official, a spokesman for the 15-odd Japanese radical students who seized the plane Tuesday demanded that the plane depart for Pyongyang at 6 a.m. local time—4 p.m. EST today.

In the past the students have demanded that the plane's 100 crew members and passengers —among them two Americans —make the trip to North Korea with them. The North Korean announcement said the passengers and crew would be sent back to Japan immediately.

South Korean officials today reiterated their demand that the students allow the passengers of the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 get off befofre it flew northward.

The hostages, after more than 30 hours inside the Boeing 727 jet, were reported in generally fair condition. The pilot reported some were suffering from exhaustion and tension.

The official North Korean news agency KCNA said in a brief broadcast from Pyongyang that the United Nations Command had contacted North Korea this morning in an attempt to solve the deadlock between the hijackers and the South Koreans.

The Communist broadcast promised that the "safety of the plane . . . would be ensured during the flight in the territorial air of our side and those on board the plane would be given humanitarian treatment if the plane came to our side." But it added: "Our side cannot assume responsibility for a possible accident on the plane itself."

The Japanese Red Cross reported in Tokyo that it had cabled the North Korean Red Cross asking for all possible help in gaining the early release of all aboard the plane should the aircraft fly to North Korea.

Body Of Man, 83, Found On Ice Near Sault Ste. Marie

SAULT STE. MARIE (AP)— The body of an 83-year-old man was found Tuesday on the ice of Lake George on the southern tip of Sugar Island between the Michigan and Ontario cities of Sault Ste. Marie.

August Saari of Sugar Island was reported missing earlier Tuesday, police said.

McLain Out For 90 Days

NEW YORK (AP) — Denny McLain, award-winning pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, was suspended to July 1 by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn today.

The commissioner cited the reason as McLain's "becoming the victim of a confidence scheme" involving Flint, Mich., gamblers.

The announcement was made by the commissioner at a noon press conference in a mid-town hotel.

In a two-page statement, Kuhn said:

"In January, 1967, McLain played an engagement at a bar in Flint, Mich., and there became acquainted with certain gamblers said to be involved in bookmaking operations.

"McLain at that time commenced placing basketball bets with this operation and subsequently he was persuaded to make financial contributions totaling approximately $5,700."

The commissioner's statement continued:

"While McLain believed he had become a partner in this operation and has so admitted to me in the presence of his personal attorney, it would appear that in fact he was the victim of a confidence scheme.

"I would thus conclude that McLain was never a partner and had no proprietary interest in the bookmaking operation.

"The fair inference is that his own gullibility and avarice had permitted him to become a dupe of gamblers with whom he associated.

Kuhn said the action did not remove dereliction on McLain's part for association with the Flint gamblers.

He added:

"A thorough ivestigation has not revealed any other material facts beyond those I have described."

McLain was not present at the press conference. He was reported at Lakeland, Fla., where the Tigers are training, and where he said he probably will have a statement later this evening.

Favors Returned; Rich GOP Backer Gets Interior Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred J. Russell, a multimillionaire who contributed liberally to President Nixon's 1968 campaign, has been named to the Interior Department's second highest post.

Although it praised him highly when he was appointed to a lesser government job a year ago, the White House declined to go into detail Tuesday when asked Russell's qualifications for the new post.

President Nixon named the 53-year-old Beverly Hills, Calif., real estate operator as undersecretary of the interior to succeed Russell E. Train, appointed in January to head the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

Russell moves up from deputy director of the Office of Emergency Planning, a post he was named to shortly after Nixon's election in 1968.

Black Militant Bitter Over Firearms Charge

DETROIT (AP) — Black militant Robert Williams, charged Tuesday with violating a federal firearms law, noted bitterly, "If they changed that I killed Christ, I would be arrested and convicted."

Federal authorities said Williams, who is fighting extradition in North Carolina on 1961 kidnap charges, carried a rifle from Michigan to New York State March 19 while driving to Washington to testify before the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Released On Bond

Federal Judge Theodore Levin released Williams on $1,000 personal bond Tuesday after the defendant stood mute. A hearing was set for May 20.

Williams was stopped after crossing from Canada into the United States near Buffalo, N.Y. He told newsmen he knew there was a rifle in the borrowed car he was driving but insisted that it was not his and that the weapon was legally registered. He explained in an interview he did not consider himself to be carryng the weapon, snce he said it was not part of his belongs.

"I was driving through Canada because I felt safer there than on this side of the border," said Williams, former president of the Detroit-based black separatist Republic of New Africa.

They're going to make a changed man out of me," he said shortly after his federal court arraignment Tuesday. "I had hoped that I could live a normal life in this country, but that was an illusion. This morning I lost any hope in obtaining any justice in this country."

Williams was dressed in a Western-cut suit, white shirt and tie, attire far different from the Chinese - style clothing he wore when he returned to the United States last September ending eight years of exile, in Cuba and Communist China.

Fled U. S. In 1961

He fled the country in 1961 to avoid charges of kidnaping an elderly white couple in Monroe, N.C., during a night of racial violence. He said he returned to the United States to clear himself of the accusation.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken has honored a North Carolna request for extradition, but attorneys for Williams are appealing the decision. Government and defense attorneys agree the appeal process could take years.

The former president of the Monroe branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People appeared under subpoena three times during March to testify before the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Quizzed About Travel

He said most of the subcommittee questions related to his travels and activities in Cuba and Chna.

"I would rather go to jail than escape to Canada," Williams said. "It is better to have the government punish me as an innocent man, than to flee. The more the government is forced to crush, the more it destroys itself.

"By the end of this year, America will be changed beyond any recogniition as we know her today . . . and it's not because of a conspiracy, it is what America is dong to herself," he said, predicting the rise of fascism and then anarchy.

Destruction Near

Fleming's Future At Stake In Crisis

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The next move in the protracted dispute over black admissions at the University of Michigan seems to be in the hands of the school's Board of Regents and word of what that move will be may come after a regents' meeting today.

The eight regents met secretly for six houre Tuesday with university President Robben W. Fleming and executive officers of the school at a secluded university-owned mansion on the outskirts of Ann Arbor.

Following the meeting, Fleming would say only: "I have no other comment than to say we have met and discussed these issues and will meet again tomorrow."

The Black Action Movement (BAM) has presented a list of demands, the most important of which call for a black enrollment of 10 per cent by the fall of 1973, the hiring of recruiters to attract the black students and the funding of recruitment and minority-scholarship programs.

At a meeting March 19, the regents agreed to a goal of seven per cent black enrollment with scholarship funding by 1973, but said the funds were unavailable for the additional three per cent demanded by BAM. The school's enrollment is currently about three per cent black.

BAM called the strike after the regents failed to approve the 10 per cent demand at the March 19 meeting.

BAM called a moratorium on the picketing of classrooms Tuesday and Darryl Gorman, a leader of BAM, said the moratorium would continue today.

Ed Fabre, another of the top BAM leaders, said BAM would not make any public statement at this time concerning the reasons for calling off the picket lines. Both Gorman and Fabre said that despite the lack of picketing, the strike was continuing.

There was speculation Tuesday that a decision to end picketing was reached after BAM came to a tentative agreement with Fleming on the demands. Neither BAM nor spokesmen for the university would comment on the reports.

'Pick Up The Pace'

Levin Says Pollution Reassessment Needed

By DAVE ANDREWS

State Sen. Sander Levin, asserting that Michigan's $335 million clean water bond issue passed last year already is out of date, told a group of Escanaba area residents Wednesday night that the state should "pick up the pace on pollution" control efforts.

Levin, who announced Monday that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, spent his first full day on the campaign trail in the Upper Peninsula, meeting and speaking to groups in Calumet, Houghton and Marquette before the session in Escanaba at the Civic Center.

In Houghton he charged that the "Nixon-Romney-Milliken axis has calculatingly imposed unemployment as a way of life in Michgian."

He said the result of Nixon administration policies is "6.6 per cent unemployment in Michigan compared to 4.1 per cent in February of 1969—a 60 per cent increase in unemployment since Nixon became president."

Levin said the preliminary February estimated unemployment for the Upper Peninsula is 12.4 per cent.

SEN. SANDER LEVIN, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, makes a point in a discussion of environmental problems Tuesday night at the Civic Center. (Daily Press Photo)

Symbolizes State

The meeting in Escanaba, arranged by Nino Green of Gladstone, announced Democratic candidate for the 11th District Congressional seat now held by Republican Phil Ruppe of Houghton, was designed to discuss local concerns with environmental pollution and how the state could help in their solution, Green said.

"Your problem here symbolizes an enigma for Michigan," Levin said, pointing out that Delta County has received national publicity because of the environmental protection efforts underway in the area for the past year.

Citizens at the meeting, including representatives of industry, government, the news media, the Save Our Air committee and other local citizen groups, discussed the Mead Corp. and Chicago & North Western Railway Co. situations, along with other environmental problems — litter, pesticides, thermal pollution wastewater disposal, etc—and the various approaches to protection of the environment.

Reassessment Coming?

"My guess is that within the next few months the state is going to have to totally reassess what it's going to do in terms of pollution," Levin commented. "Everybody in Lansing knows that the first phase (the $335 million clean water bond issue) already is out of date."

He said current estimates indicate that three or four times that amount will be needed in Michigan.

Levin asked whether or not the state has a "completely thought out program, a blueprint for the 70s" to control pollution, then answered by saying the discussion indicated "we do not."

He said the state must face the questions of who protects, who pays the price and do we have a different set of standards for new and old polluters.

Financial Approach

In financing pollution control efforts, Levin said the problem boils down to three approaches — taxpayer pays, consumer pays or a combination of the two.

If the state undertakes a program of heavy subsidization to industry in the form of tax credits for anti-pollution equipment the bill will fall on the taxpayer, he said. If the state takes the position that "one of the costs of doing business is non-polluting equipment" then the consumer will pay through higher product costs.

Levin said government "can be both reasonable and tough" and cited California's anti-automobile emission standards as an example. When the bill was first passed, people questioned its wisdom, he said, but now the automobile industry is talking about producing pollution free vehicles within a few years.

More Citizen Control

Levin also supported the idea of giving the individual citizen more to say about controlling pollution through the courts, said the present processes in Michigan are too slow to respond to the needs of the people, that in applying a uniform law to the entire state limits the places of pressure and that the state is going through the "painful process" of reordering priorities.

"We can't go on saying waste now, pay later," he said.

Members of the Save Our Air committee said the Delta County area isn't willing to accept Wayne County as a common denominator for pollution standards in the state and that the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission is composed of "honorable people, but is much too slow" in reacting to local problems.

Publisher Of Smallest Paper Dies At Age 81

HART (AP) — Swift Lathers, a dedicated journalist who published what he described as the world's smallest newspaper, died today from a heart attack which struck him Friday as he gathered news for his paper.

The 81-year-old Lathers had edited and published the 5½ by 7½-inch Mears Newz for 54 years.

The four-page Newz was written in a single paragraph and often reflected Lathers' interest in conservation and school affairs. Lathers was frequently involved in law suits because of his editorials and he generally acted as his own lawyer, winning many of the legal battles.

His customary costume of green trousers and a blue shirt with a bright red tie made him a familiar sight to the residents of Oceana County.

Lathers suffered his heart attack while gathering items for the Newz in downtown Hart last Friday. He died at Oceana Hospital in Hart today.

At the time of his death, Lathers was involved in a battle over the sand dunes near Silver Lake.

Lathers argued that the motor vehicles were destroying the natural beauty of the area.

The editor was a staunch foe of the automobile and insisted upon gathering his news afoot.

Type for the Newz was set at a newspaper plant in Shelby but then Lathers took over.

He carried the type home and turned out the paper on an antique handpress in his home. In addition, he addressed copies of the paper by hand before mailing them to thousands of subscribers in dozens of other states and some foreign lands.

Lathers charged $2 for a three-month subscription to the Newz, $1 for six months and just 50 cents for a full year.

The editor, a teacher for a while after his graduation from Eastern Michigan University, once said he decided to come to Oceana County and stayed there because it was "that part of the world where I would rather be than anywhere else."

French Gunmen Seize Hostages, Shoot One

VILLEGRANCHE - SURMER, France (AP) — Four gunmen wearing red sweaters, their leader a mental hospital escapee, sized four tourists as hostages today and shot one in a day-long siege at a Riviera hotel.

The gunmen hurled a grenade, fired a burst at a policemen and shot down an elderly West German tourist, Mrs. Hans Tische, with a volley of machine-gun bullets. The woman, wounded when she tried to flee, was in serious condition in a hospital.

"Give us a car in front of the door and don't follow us," the men in Room 100 of the luxurious Versailles Hotel told the police at midafternoon. "Let us have the time to make 100 kilometers"—about 60 miles— "in the direction of Italy and we'll let the hostages go."

But the demand was turned down by Rene Mathieu, the police chief. He also said no to an offer by the bandits to free the hostages if Mathieu would ride away with them in a car.

Held by bandits were Mrs. Tische's 73-year-old husband and a middle-aged couple from Paris.

The siege began at 6 a.m. when police, called to the hotel by employees who noticd a weapon in the baggage of four male guests, began to make door-to-door checks. A burst of pistol fire answered the police search.

The gunmen tried to leave the hotel by sliding down knotted bed sheets but gave up, and crawled along a balcony that led to other rooms. One of the gunmen clutched a valise believed to contain loot from a holdup.

Then, the gunmen moved the four persons into a single room. Mrs. Tische was shot when she tried to escape. Later the gang's leader, Maurice Sorini, 25, who fled from Timone Psychiatric Hospital in Marseille six weeks ago, agreed to allow a doctor to evacuate her.

During the morning vans full of black uniformed riot police surrounded the three-story hotel and sealed off access to it. At the same time Mathieu began negotiating with Sorini, but the conversations got nowhere. The police agreed only to allow a bell boy to carry two packs of cigarettes to the gunmen on a silver platter.

Mathieu is an old adversary of Sorini whom he arrested last year. Sorini has been charged with eight holdups. His conversations with Sorini were by telephone.

"Be reasonable," Mathieu said on the phone. "You think you're a Chicago gangster but you're not. Don't be a fool."

Schweigert Will Not Seek Re-Election

LANSING (AP) — Acting Lt. Gov. Thomas Schweigert, a Republican state senator from Petoskey, announced today he will not seek re-election to the Senate seat he has held for 10 years.

Schweigert, whose district includes 14 counties in northern Lower Michigan and the eastern Upper Peninsula, did not reveal any future plans.

Schweigert, in the past, however, has expressed interest in running for lieutenant governor on a ticket headed by Gov. William G. Milliken.

House Minority Floor Leader William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, another lieutenant governor aspirant, also has announced he will not seek re-election to his House seat.

Schweigert also has indicated interest in a federal post, either with the U.S. Department of Interior or the Agriculture Department.

Schweigert, who holds a degree in forestry from Michigan State University, recently took on the official titles of Senate president and acting lieutenant governor, under terms of legislation passed last year when Milliken stepped into former Gov. George Romney's executive seat.

Tickets For Shrine Ball Now Available

Tickets for the Shrine Charity Ball which will be held Saturday, May 2 at the Terrace Ballroom went on sale today, announced Committee Chairman Hans P. Johnson.

All members have been sent tickets and an early response is desired. Tickets are also available at the Leader Store, Andrea's Boutique, the Morrison Shop, Gust Asp's and the Ivory Drug Store.

As in past years, all proceeds realized from this colorful spring event will be used to further the work of the Shrine Crippled Children's Hospitals and Shrine Burns Centers.

Shrine hospitals, located throughout the United States and Canada, receive no assistance from federal, state or local government agencies. They are maintained soley through the work of Shriners and treatment is available to any child regardless of race, color or creed.

All treatment received at these hospitals is given absolutely free of cost.

The ball has been a popular social affair in past years and plans for this year's event are equally as festive, including dancing, a late buffet and numerous prizes. A large attendance is desired. As one Shriner expressed it, "Come and dance so that some unfortunate crippled child may walk."

Donaldson Voted Vice Chairman Of Commission

Charles E. Donaldson Jr., of Daggett was elected vice chairman of the Michigan Commission of Agriculture at the organization's meeting in Lansing.

He succeeds H. Thomas Dewhirst of Benton Harbor, who was named chairman. Mrs. Rebecca (Seth) Tompkins of Traverse City was elected secretary. Walter Lange of Sebewaing, retiring chairman, and David Diehl of Dansville, are the other members of the bipartisan Commission, policy-making body for the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Donaldson, a Menominee County dairyman, operates a 360-acre farm, part of which his grandfather homesteaded in the last century. Chief crops are hay, corn and barley, used to feed his dairy herd.

Active in state and local affairs of the Michigan Farm Bureau, Michigan Milk Producers Association, and the State Extension Advisory Council, Donaldson was honored earlier this year with a "Distinguished Service to Agriculture" award during Farmers' Week at Michigan State University.

He has been a member of the Michigan Commission of Agriculture since 1966.

Smelt Dipping Legal In Area Until May 31

Use of hand nets for smelt dipping became legal March 1 and continues thru May 31, the Department of Natural Resources said today.

In Delta County, all streams and portions thereof south of US-2 except the entire Days River, Rapid River and Whitefish River are open. The Bark River is open only from the M-35 bridge down.

Past indications are that after ice breaking the ice then generally moves out with the first favorable wind movement. Open water generally sparks several spring fishing activities, among the first of which are the smelt runs and perch runs.

Beaver trapping season is in full swing, having opened on March 28, officers said. License sales were slow and the catch will probably be down proportionately. Only 324 licenses were sold this spring as compared to 389 in 1969 and 478 in 1968. The take last year in the Delta - Marquette - Alger county area was 1,033 beavers and 99 otter.

Fishing activity is slow, however, reports continue to be had of fair perch fishing in Upper Bay de Noc and in Big Shag Lake near Gwinn, and good rainbow trout fishing in Johnson Lake near Gwinn and at the mouth of Thompson Creek near Manistique. The early trout season opens April 4.

Correction

A report in Tuesday's Escanaba Daily Press on a three-car accident in Brampton Township was incorrect. Victoria LaFave, 621 Michigan Ave., Gladstone, was the driver of a disabled vehicle which was struck by vehicles driven by Dorothy Spevacek and Roger Nelson. The Press reported in error that the Spevacek car was disabled and hit by the LaFave and Nelson cars.

Rotary Club Hears Green

Nino Green, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 11th District, addressed the Rotary Club at its luncheon meeting at the House of Ludington Tuesday.

Thomas Straebel, Rotary president, conducted the meeting, and the speaker was introduced by Robert Haack. A question period followed the talk by Green, Gladstone attorney.

"Government exists to serve people," Green said, "and it is time for the people of this District to send a working Congressman to Washington."

"As a Congressman I would continue to work to make government and other institutions respond to the needs of the people," Green said. "A Congressman who rolls up his sleeves only to pose for campaign posters does not earn his salary."

Green suggested that "We take a good, hard look at the issues of inflation, unemployment, crime and pollution and ask 'Where are we going and who is leading us?' Those who think that they lead a 'silent' majority are obviously not listening to the American people."

"The people of this District deserve more than they are now getting by way of representation in Washington. I believe that I can do that job for them; and I wanted to work hard to earn that privilege," Green concluded.

Census Starts Across Nation

Today is Census Day for the United States—no fooling.

Mrs. Robert Hansley, manager of the temporary census office in Escanaba, reports that 350 census takers, after being sworn in this morning, started visiting households throughout the Upper Peninsula.

Census questionnaires were distributed to households in these places by the Post Offcie a few days ago. They are to be filled out and held for the census taker to pick up. Mrs. Hansley said it will probably take from three to five weeks for the census takers to get around to all households.

It is possible that some households did not receive a questionnaire, but Mrs. Hansley said persons need not fear they will be missed because a census taker will find them and have a questionnaire for them.

Householders will not have any difficulty identifying enumerators for the Census she pointed out.

Each census taker will wear a red, white, and blue identification card. This card bears the seal of the Department of Commerce, and the words "Census Enumerator, Official Credential" are printed across its face. It bears the census taker's signature and certifies that she is authorized to perform the duties of a census enumerator and has sworn to kep confidential all census information you provide.

Persons purporting to be census takers who do not have this identification card should be reported immediately to the local police or to the census district office at Escanaba.

Census takers will be further identified by the portfolio containing their supplies. The portfolio is blue and bears the legend, "1970 Census." In the portfolio, the census taker carries report forms, maps, pencils, and other tools necessary.

General Education Testing Offered At Bay College

Bay de Noc Community College has again been designated as an official general educational development testing center by the Michigan Department of Education for a test to be given in two parts on April 4 and 11.

Persons passing the G E D test who have not completed their high school education may be eligible for the G E D high school equivalency certificate awarded by the Michigan Department of Education.

The equivalency certificate is awarded on the basis of the G E D examination to residents who demonstrate a reasonable skill in comprehension and interpretation of subject matter. The G E D subjects include: Effectiveness of Expression, Social Studies, Natural Science, Literature, and General Arithmetic.

Persons applying for the test must be 18 years of age and out of full time attendance at school for at least two calendar years. No previous high school attendance is required for earning the high school equivalency certificate.

Bay de Noc College will conduct the G E D test in two parts. Parts 1, 2 and 3 will be given on April 4 and Parts 4 and 5 on April 11, in Room 10 of the College.

Residents who would meet the eligibility requirements should contact the Student Personnel Office at the College for reservations and additional information. A fee of $10 is required to cover the cost of materials and may be paid at the College test center on the date of the examination, April 4.

Lansing Survey Backs Reforming Abortion Laws

LANSING (AP) — Some Lansing area residents favor reforming Michigan abortion laws but oppose reducing the penalties for possession or use of marijuana, says a sat representative who polled constituents.

Rep. Thomas Brown, R-Lansing, said preliminary results of his recent questionnaire show some 60 per cent of those replying favor liberalizing the abortion law that allows termination of pregnancy only when the life of the mother is endangered.

Some 40 per cent oppose such action, said Brown. He reported responses from some 2,000 of the 15,000 to whom queseionnaires were mailed.

The preliminary results also show 60 per cent opposed to reducing the marijuana penalties, with 40 per cent in favor of reduction, Brown said.

Survey results show 90 per cent of those replying "want something done about selling motor vehicle registration lists," he said. Brown proposed increasing the cost of those lists to discourage speculators from buying them and reselling them to solicitors.

Police Ticketing Cars With Plates From Last Year

By The Associated Press

Police around Michigan began ticketing cars with 1969 license plates at 12:01 this morning as the deadline for installation of 1970 plates passed.

No figures were immediately available on the number of cars still without the new plates, but many cars were seen in the Detroit area late Tuesday with 1969 tags.

This is the first year for the April 1 expiration date; in previous years, Michigan plates expired on the last day of February. The change was made to allow motorists to install the plates in warmer weather.

Long lines formed at Secretary of State's offices Tuesday as car owners attempted to make it under the wire and avoid the $10 fine.

Population Hike Of Million Seen In State Census

LANSING (AP) — The 1970 Census will show Michigan with a population of 8.9 million—up more than one million from the 1960 census—says the Michigan Department of Commerce.

A recently completed analysis of population projections by the department's Office of Economic Expansion also indicates Michigan's population will be 13.5 million by the year 2000.

The forecast says Michigan will top 10 million in the late 1970s, climbing to 11.8 million in 1990.

Richard Whitmer, commerce department director, noted that in 1954 the U.S. Department of Commerce predicted Michigan would have more than nine million in 1970.

He said one reason the state's population fell short of that was "the decline in the birth rate experienced throughout the U.S. in that period."

"Our forecasts are constantly adjusted as new data becomes available," Whitmer said. "As soon as the official 1970 Census statistics are available, the projections we have just made will be revised again."

The best one-game passing effort in the Big Ten last season was turned in by Mike Phipps of Purdue. He completed 28 of 39 passes, for 429 yards against Stanford.

County Police?

In the past several months, suggestions have come from several directions urging consolidation of governmental functions in the Upper Peninsula.

Last fall, Gov. William Milliken proposed reorganization of the Intermediate School district structure in the state by combining many of the intermediate districts into broader-based units. Richard Whitmer, director of the Michigan Department of Commerce, made a part of his 10-point program for economic development of the Upper Peninsula the recommendation that many existing village and municipal governments be combined at a savings in tax dollars while at the same time providing better and more coordinated services and approach to local problems. There also has been a continued state effort in recent years encouraging local school district consolidations.

And now comes a report on crime and law enforcement in the U. P. developed for the Upper Peninsula Committee on Area Progress (UPCAP) which suggests consolidation of local police departments as a means toward an overall improvement in law enforcement.

Consolidation, of course, should only be considered when there would be some direct economic or service benefit to the communities concerned. It would serve little purpose for the City of Escanaba to join forces with Ironwood or Sault Ste. Marie. But there may be definite merit in taking a closer look at specific local situations.

Take Delta County, for example.

Law enforcement in the county presently falls under four departments — the Michigan State Police with a post at Gladstone, the city police at Escanaba, the city police at Gladstone and the Delta County Sheriff's Department. Although the departments work together quite closely and there is some coordination of purpose through the office of Prosecuting Attorney John Beauchamp, each department's responsibility is concentrated to its own constituency. Escanaba police patrol in Escanaba. Gladstone police work in Gladstone. The Sheriff's Department and State Police are primarily concerned with the county with the bulk of the patrol and investigative assignments going to the State Police because the Sheriff's Dept. is limited by its small staff and the responsibilities of maintaining the county jail.

Additionally, the Sheriff's Dept. is involved in marine law enforcement and search-rescue operations and the Department of Natural Resources has officers working on conservation-oriented problems.

Except for the State Police, which is an arm of state government, and the DNR, also a state department, which is concerned primarily with a different form of law violation, the possibiliaty of combining the city police forces of Escanaba and Gladstone with the Sheriff's Dept. deserves a reexamination. The suggestion has been made before, but it has never really gotten off the ground.

There would be problems to be workd out in any such merger, of course, including the rather formidable obstacle of working out an equitable financial settlement. But the benefits from a unified department in a coordinated approach to purchasing, training, investigation, manpower and facilities seem to be strong enough to override that consideration.

The county jail would be the logical place to headquarter a city-county police department, but it might be considered wise to maintain a sub-station or police precinct in Gladstone. At any rate, it is likely that the police station in Escanaba could be eliminated. There might be an opportunity in a joint department to expand the present marine law enforcement operation from summers only to a year-around patrol incorporating snowmobiles in winter.

Undoubtedly, other thoughts and problems would arise in any serious consideration of the proposal, but the suggestion still deserves consideration. It just might work.

Peculiar Bias

A peculiar bias colors the way the articles of the U. N. Charter are being interpreted and prevents the organization from living up to its expectations.

Angie Brooks, current president of the U. N. General Assembly, recently condemned the United States for involvement in Laos, citing Article 27 of the Charter which prohibits interference in the internal affairs of another nation.

At that very moment, North Vietnam was invading neighboring Laos, but Miss Brooks could not muster even a mild reproach to the aggressors.

It is estimated that over 20,000 North Vietnamese troops participated in this latest aggression. Occupying the Plain of Jars and other strategic points, they strengthen the position of Laotian Communists who have not been notably successful on their own in toppling the Vientiane government.

The North Vietnamese are there, moreover, without the consent of the legitimate Laotian government.

No American ground troops, by contrast, are in Laos. Those Americans who are present, pilots and advisers, function in support capacity for government military operations.

Their presence in Laos is with the consent of the Laotian government.

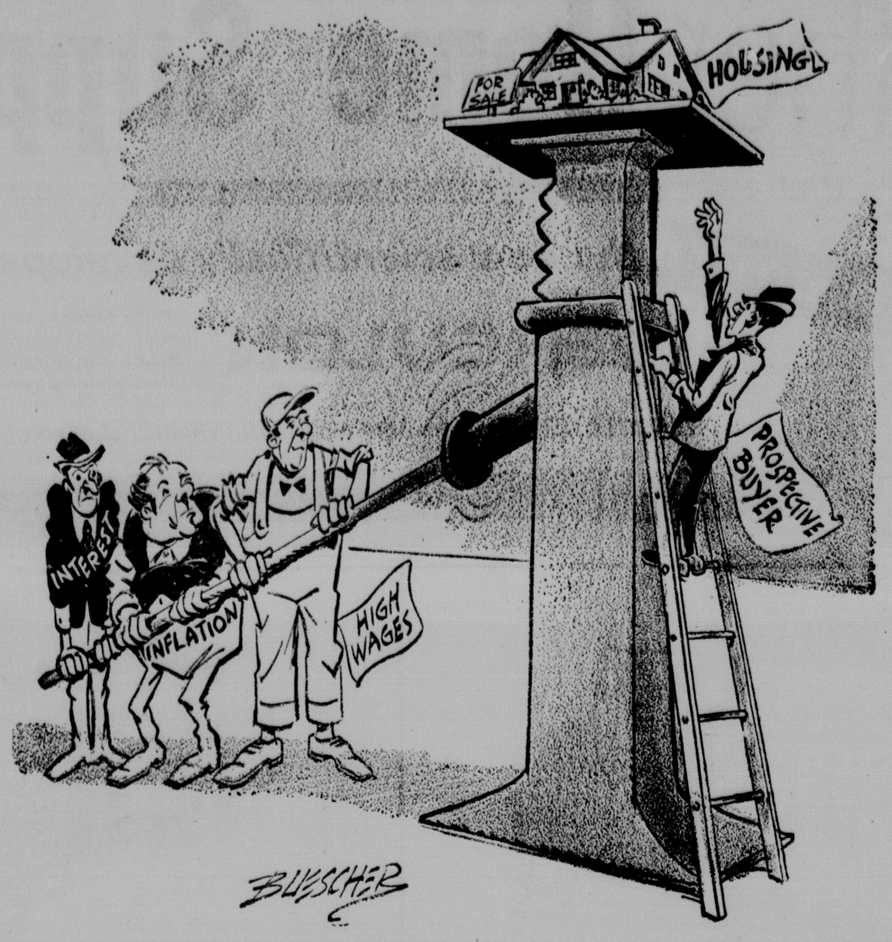

Yet, in the peculiar atmosphere that prevails at the United Nations, America's invited presence in Laos qualifies as "internal interference" but North Vietnam's obvious military aggression in violating Laotian territory does not.

In view of this kind of response, it isn't surprising that the U. N. exercises so little moral influence on the course of world affairs.

Peninsula Potpourri

Menominee property owners would be assessed about $1.67 per $1,000 valuation to finance the city's share of the cost of constructing a new Menekaunee bridge if a bond issue proposal is approved by voters April 6.

JACK OF ALL TRADES

Capitol Corner:

Williams, Romney Find Comeback Trail Tough

By DON HOENSHELL
Of Panax Newspapers

LANSING — Old politicians never fade away, they just try —again and again.

Sometimes there are enough followers of a legend to tap this wealth of experience, of savvy, to rekindle the fire and brilliance if there was any there in the first place.

So let us update the views of former Govs. G. Mennen Williams and George W Romney, who as contemporaries in other fields found rapport for what each could gain.

Romney was head of American Motors Corp. at a time when Williams was grateful for a figure in industry succeeding when Michigan's image as a chaser-away of industry was at its ripest.

And Williams, concerned as he was, became a favorite of Industrialist Romney because of what a strong partisan could do for industry as the No. 1 politician in Michigan.

Headed Study

Then Romney became head of the Detroit Citizens School Study Committee. The result lifted a political worry about Detroit schools for Williams, and a sigh arose which was both political and practical.

Williams in 1960 went on to the John F. Kennedy administration as assistant secretary of state in charge of African affairs. Romney went on to be one of two vice presidents of the state's Constitutional Convention.

We'll skip over the next few years because everybody knows that Williams distinguished himself in Africa and later in the Philippines, and Romney became governor following former Gov. John B. Swainson, then departed to be secretary of the Housing and Urban Development in the Nixon administration.

Both Lose, But . . .

Now we leapfrog to 1966 when Williams sought the United States Senate seat vacated by the death of Senator Patrick V. McNamara and to 1968 when Romney went for the GOP presidential nomination.

Both lost, but . . .

Williams defeated Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh in the primary for the chance to go against Robert P. Griffin, which was in retrospect like choosing a winning route at Las Vegas. You get off the plane and walk into the propeller.

Romney announced for the presidency, then for the first time encountered critics. He bowed out in a cloud of horsefeathers, posed before a one-way mirror at Miami Beach, then accepted HUD.

Now both are trying comebacks.

Williams, who appointed a handful of lawyers to the Michigan Supreme Court, now is willing to try for election to the same spot.

Ranged against him for the party nominations for two open seats are Swainson and T. John Lesinski, both canny politicians in their own right. Williams, only once a loser, has a fight.

Misjudged Milliken

And Romney, once also a loser, is using up his due bills trying to run the Michigan Republican party from Washington. The concensus debacle that finally resulted in his wife, Lenore, getting the organization nod as the nominee against Democratic Senator Philip A. Hart.

Romney's mistake was trying to run Gov. William G. Milliken, his heir but now a man who must and can use sharp steel to stay alive. Milliken has powerful allies and a mind of his own.

In their days, Williams rewrote Michigan's political book. Romney wrote a sequel and improved upon it. Now they're in the position of trying to come back when a question has arisen whether time has passed them by.

Later generations are in charge now—and their leaders are as hungry as Romney and Williams once were to serve and have their political beings.

They served Michigan well in their time, when the needs of the state demanded them.

Both Legends

Romney's light in Michigan is glimmering. The six months of work on behalf of Lenore's candidacy, and the result, show that legends never get a booster shot.

Williams knows all of this and is saddened by it. Now he wants a job he could have had by crooking his finger—before he became a legend.

For both of them all the streets are uphill and all the lights are red.

And fading away for them both is worse than disaster.

That's why they're legends, each in his own way.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Dear Mr. Becker: The strangest things have been happening to me lately. I don't claim to be a good player, and I'm sure I'm not, but the fact is that I usually come out ahead when I play.

However, I have been on a losing streak lately and it is starting to get under my skin. I not only lost with bad hands, but also with good ones. For example, look at what happened to me on this deal.

I was South and opened three notrump. Of course, I realize this was not a perfect bid, even with 26 points, since I had no diamond stopper, but it seemed to be the best bid under the circumstances.

Unfortunately, West had a string of diamonds and cashed the first ten tricks as I unhappily discarded one good trick after another. Not only that, but when West led the last diamond, I had to choose a discard from a holding of the K-Q of spades, ace of hearts and ace of clubs. (East's remaining cards were the A-10-9 of spades.)

I couldn't afford a spade, which would have allowed East to win the last three tricks, so I discarded the ace of clubs. In high glee West then cashed the eight of clubs—and I was squeezed again.

This time I discarded the ace of hearts, whereupon West cashed the eight of hearts and followed this with a spade to his partner's ace.

The outcome was that I lost all thirteen tricks—going down nine, 900 points—despite my 26 high-card points!

Of course, I realize you may think this hand never occurred at all, and I would not blame you one bit for thinkng that. In fact, if you look at the date, you may have even more reason to disbelieve my story. Cordially yours, Constant Reader.

Advice For Married Children Dished Out

Dear Ann Landers: Now that you've put the in-laws in their place by printing Eight Ways To Break Up A Son Or Daughter's Marriage, will you please give equal time to the other side?

I have prepared a simple list of rules which might help preserve the sanity and health of parents with married children.

(1) Settle your own arguments. Don't drag us into your family fights and ask us to take sides.

(2) Buy what you can afford. When you made the decision to marry, you announced to the world that you were old enough to stand on your own two feet. Prove it.

(3) Don't assume we are willing to sit with your children or have them dumped on us at your convenience. When we want them for the day or the night we'll let you know. We raised ours. Please raise yours.

(4) Don't assume that because you married Marcia or John that we enjoy the company of his or her parents. On certain occasions both in-laws should be present, but don't foist them on us.

(5) Don't take it for granted that you can borrow our car, our boat, our lawn mower, our silverware, and table linen for your parties, etc. Ask first. And be courteous enough to return our property in the same condition in which you received it — for example, gas in the tank of the car, tablecloth clean and ironed, etc.

Respectfully yours — Mother and Dad

Dear M and D: Your suggestions are excellent and I'm sure they'll be the topic of many dinner table discussions — by both generations! Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Tell Mrs. Pink ribbons to leave her ovaries alone. The theory that the left ovary produces girls and the right ovary produces boys is ridiculous. My right ovary was removed by necessity after one year of marriage. I have since given birth to two sons and two daughters with only one ovary — the left one. — Living Proof

Dear Living: I told Pinky that the theory was a lot of eyewash but readers have a tendency to listen to other readers rather than to me. Thanks for the documentation.

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever I hear about children who are opposed to a parent remarrying late in life I boil. The best argument in favor of a late second marriage is my own grandfather. Grandma died at 72. We all thought Gramp would die of a broken heart. He was so lonely for the next year it was pitiful.

Gramps' life changed when he started to keep company with a lovely widow. They have been married three years now and are wonderful together. Next month they leave on a cruise. You'd think they were in their 20's. A twilight-year second marriage can mean a new life. Our family is all for it. — Overjoyed in Lubbock

Dear Lub: Hooray for Gramps! How nice to know that he is enjoying "the last of life — for which the first was made."

Suppliers 'Take Beating' Due To High Interest Rates

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Unable to obtain loans or unwilling to pay the current high interest rates, many business customers today are sponging off their suppliers' working capital.

The motive behind the trend is obvious: to have possession of money that should have been used in paying bills; moreover, to have use of the money at a zero rate of interest.

Suppliers Wait

Says A. A. Dilworth, president of American Credit Indemnity Co., "It's much easier to make your supplier wait a month or so instead of going to the bank and paying high rates."

Some companies make no effort to hide their practice of slow pay. But others are offering collection agencies and credit rating organizations some ingenious explanations.

Said the head of a Chicago rating firm: "It's surprising how many companies have trouble with their computers when it comes time to pay the bills." The real problem, he said, is that they have adoppted slow pay as a policy.

Slow Pay Filings Up

American Credit, a leader in the field of credit insurance, reports a 20 per cent increase over a year ago in the number of slow pay filings. And the size of overdue accounts has risen to $1,000 from $800.

The danger, said Dilworth, is that the situation has a snowballing effect that grows as business conditions become tighter. "Some of the best customers are now slowing up," he said.

Perhaps accentuating the pattern is a tendency of business in recent years to be less liquid. Rather than keep large sums of cash or securities, many companies would rather invest in inventories or in bigger sales.

Expansion Blamed

The present situation developed from a period of unprecedented economic expansion, when almost all businesses emphasized sales and often simplified terms to a degree that would have frightened old time businessmen.

During a slowdown, however, sales play a less important role and collections grow in relative importance. But this sudden interest in collections comes at a time that many businesses are unable or unwilling to comply.

Not Epidemic

Dilworth describes the problem as "not epidemic but increasing," and feels it is likely to continue increasing so long as corporate profits and liquidity deteriorate.

The increase in overdue filings, in fact, is believed to represent only the very top of the iceberg. Feeling that the slowdown will be over soon, some sellers are reluctant to press old but slow paying customers.

In the event of an upturn—and surveys show that many businessmen are discounting the bad economic news and looking over the valley to an uptrend in sales—the company that declines to dun its slow paying customers might stand to benefit.

Losing Both Feet Fails To Slow Down Youngster

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—People who've watched Mark Babcock learn to walk again report they've "never seen such spunk and spirit in a boy."

Last December, when Mark was 7, he crawled under a freight train at a crossing near his home, and when the train lurched, a wheel cut off both his feet.

Two motorists who heard Mark's screams stopped and applied tourniquets, then summoned an ambulance.

A public drive produced enough money to pay for Mark's hospital and doctor bills. Then, the Shriners in this West Michigan community pledged they'd pay to have Mark fitted every year or two with new artificial feet until he stops growing at about age 16 or 17.

Alvin Hoffert, the local Shriner who took Mark to the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children in Chicago, reports he's never seen such spunk and spirit in a boy."

"Normally, it takes about six weeks of training and therapy to get used to artificial limbs. Mark was fitted and on his own in just three weeks," said Hoffert.

Before he could leave the hospital, Hoffert said Mark had to prove to the doctors he could handle himself on his new feet.

"He bounded off down the corridor as if he'd been on the feet for years," Hoffert said.

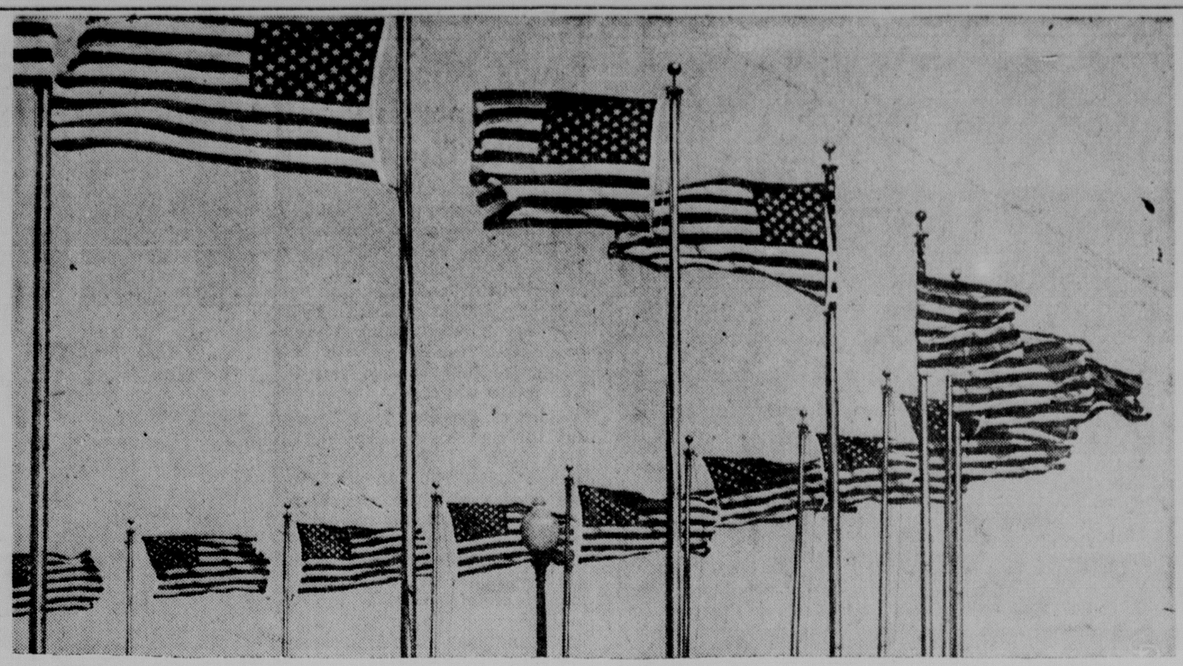

Because the artificial feet are connected to special braces on each leg which in turn are connected to a belt around his waist, Mark requires clothing a bit larger than normal.

Hoffert and the boy's mother, Mrs. Jerald Babcock Sr., took Mark shopping on his return from the Chicago hospital.

At the shopping center, Mark got his new sport jacket and trousers, then tackled a new challenge — an escalator. He mastered it easily and proceeded to walk rapidly through the shopping center mall.

Although he has crutches, Mark refuses to use them except when he gets tired.

Now, after moving to a new home in suburban Wyoming, Mich., Mark is getting used to a new school. School, he says, is his "favorite thing."

Bonds Of Pontiac Pastor Forfeited

CHICAGO (AP)—The bond of the Rev. James Meyer was declared forfeited today by Magistrate John J. Moran when the Roman Catholic priest of Pontiac, Mich., failed to appear for his trial on charges stemming from street violence at the time of the 1968 Democratic Convention.

Father Meyer, who was arrested Aug. 28, at 18th Street and Michigan Avenue, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Kenneth Berg, assistant corporation counsel, said the charges have been continued nine times since the arrest.

Berg moved that the bond be forfeited and asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of the defendant.

Magistrate Moran of Circuit Court entered an order forfeiting Meyer's $250 bond and authorizing issuance of a new warrant. He set the new bond at $1,000.

Surveyor Shot On Development Job

TROY (AP)—A Lincoln Park man was shot fatally Tuesday while he and his partner were surveying a development site in the 15-Mile-Rochester Road area of Troy.

Herbert Mee, 42, an employe of Urban Engineering Services of Royal Oak, was dead on arrival at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. His partner, Ray Davis of Madison Heights, told police he heard a shot, Mee yelled twice for help, then collapsed about 500 feet away.

Mee, who formerly was acting city engineer in Madison Heights, had one bullet wound in the body, police said.

Air Taxi Runs Facing Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is starting a safety crackdown today on the nation's growing commuter airlines and air taxi runs because of a deadly accident rate 10 times as high as the major airlines.

A fresh rash of fatal crashes has stretched from the edges of New York City to the ski resort of Aspen, Colo., already this year after a record toll of 140 deaths last year.

Twice in little more than a year, commuter airplanes have run out of fuel over open water. One plane managed an emergency landing in Canada; the other fuel failure was fatal.

Under the new safety rules that go into effect Wednesday, the Federal Aviation Administration will begin demanding better pilot training, tougher mechanic requirements, and regular aircraft inspections.

In the first three months of this year—between the time FAA approved the rules and their starting date—48 persons died in 13 air taxi crashes.

Martin Macy, executive director of the National Air Transportation Conference and spokesman for air taxi operators, said his industry welcomes the new standards.

"It hurts us to have this accident record," he said, "I don't believe it is necessary. We all can do better. Any time you get in an airplane, it is a risk, like getting in an elevator or walking down the stairs. But it shouldn't be a significant risk."

Federal safety statistics show a fatal accident rate for air taxis is estimated at 1.45 per 100,000 flying hours last year, compared with 0.14 for the major airlines.

Auto Registration Error Troublesome

By CHUCK NOLAND

DES MOINES (AP) — "There it is," I told the lady at the Polk County Courthouse as she looked through her book to see how much it would cost to transfer my car's registration from New Mexico to Iowa. "A model 300 deluxe, two-door sedan. That's it."

"Wait a minute," she said after a few seconds. "There's something wrong here."

Somehow, you just knew it was going to be one of those experiences.

"According to the serial number on your New Mexico registration certificate you're driving a two-door station wagon," she said.

I've been driving that car for over two years, and while there are a lot things I don't know about it, I'm pretty sure it's a two-door sedan. I told her so. I don't think she believed me.

She called her supervisor over, explained the problem to him. The number listed on the registration certificate indicated the car was indeed a two-door sedan. But the first five numbers of the car's serial number —which are supposed to be the same as the registration number—indicated it was a two-door station wagon.

"Oh, that's the problem," said the supervisor.

"It's a two-door sedan," I mumbled, beginning to doubt my convictions.

I invited anyone who was interested to step outside and examine my two-door sedan. That was my second mistake.

"Even if it is a sedan, we can't correct the registration," the supervisor said. "The state boys would have to do that."

Trying to calculate the value of my time, I asked how much more it would cost to register a station wagon. I should have known I couldn't get away with it.

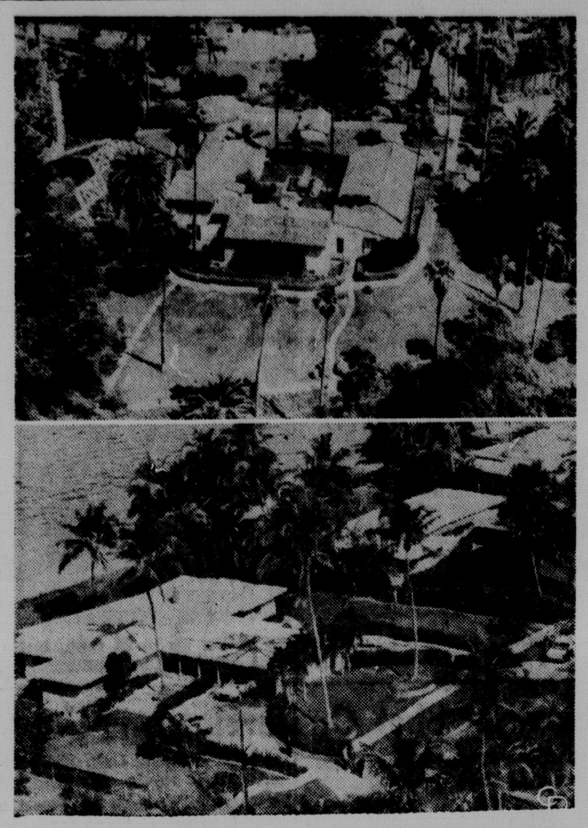

So, some time later, I found myself at the vehicle registration office of the Iowa Department of Public Safety, being ushered into a cubicle.

"Would you look at my car and tell if it's a two-door sedan or a two-door station wagon?" I asked.

He didn't appreciate my little joke. But he did come outside, where he determined to his satisfaction that my car was indeed a two-door sedan and that there was a typographical error in the serial number listed on the registration slip.

We went back inside and he called the supervisor at the county courthouse to tell him what had happened and advise him it would be all right to register my two-door sedan temporarily until I can write New Mexico and get the serial number straightened out on my title.

But by this time it was 4:30 and the offices were closed, so I had to wait and do it all over again Friday.

Funds Allocated For Inner City Project Grants

DETROIT (AP) — John Cardinal Dearden of Detroit has announced allocation of nearly $80,000 in six grants for inner city projects ranging from the Black-Polish Conference to an American Indian self-help plan.

Three of the grants were conditional, to be paid if a similar amount can be raised from other sources.

Aides to Dearden said Tuesday the new grants bring to 31 the number of projects approved with $138,000 still left from a $1-million special fund raised in 1968 to finance "creative solutions to urban problems."

The Archdiocesan office said all the grants "are designed to explore creative ways of breaking the cycle of poverty that holds millions of Americans captive.

"None is expected to solve a general problem in itself but, instead, the Cardinal's hope is that each will show the way towards a solution that may be adopted by other agencies and government units."

Typical of the latest grants was the $12,883 allocated to the Black-Polish Conference of Metropolitan Detroit to promote understanding between the groups and to promote programs of mutual interest.

Judges Should Be Encouraged By Courtroom Disorder Ruling

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's response to the tumult and shouting in the nation's courtrooms is that, above all, there must be order.

The virtually unanimous approval Tuesday of the removal of a madcap Chicago defendant should gratify and encourage trial judges whose nerves are frayed quickly.

Strangely, except for Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who spoke only for himself, no judicial notice was taken of modern means of maintaining both decorum and the defendant's right to face his accusers.

Judge May Be Wrong

And but for a single, vague sentence in Justice Hugo L. Black's opinion for the majority, only Justice William O. Douglas recognized that a trial judge may be wrong and the defendant may be shouting to assert his constitutional rights.

William Allen, who is now sitting in a New Orleans jail awaiting trial for robbery, was a most unruly defendant in Cook County criminal court 14 years ago. The judge, Grover Niemeyer, was a very patient man.

Allen, whose defense to a $200 tavern holdup was insanity, interrupted the examination of prospective jurors, tore up his file, ignored the judge's warnings that he should behave and finally told Niemeyer: "When I go out for lunchtime, you're going to be a corpse."

Ordered Removed

The judge ordered Allen removed, the trial proceeded without him and the defendant was convicted and sentenced to 10 to 30 years in prison.

Last July, the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago invalidated the conviction, saying Allen's constitutional right to face his accusers had been violated. If necessary, the appeals court said, Judge Niemeyer should have bound and gagged Allen.

This suggestion later was used by Judge Julius J. Hoffman in Chicago to bind and gag Bobby G. Seale, one of eight radicals charged with inciting riots at the 1968 Democratic convention.

Judges Backed

The net result of the Supreme Court's ruling is that all the judges evidently did the right thing.

If a defendant ignores the judge's admonition that he should behave and makes further proceedings impossible, he can be forcibly removed. If the judge decides the best way to deal with a rebellious defendant is to bind and gag him—that's all right, too.

And of course, Black's decision noted, trial judges may use their old standby contempt powers to cite a stubbornly defiant defendant and throw him in jail.

The heart of Black's opinion, in which technically all justices except Douglas joined, is this observation:

"It would degrade our country and our judicial system to permit our courts to be bullied, insulted and humiliated and their orderly progress thwarted and obstructed by defendants brought before them charged with crimes."

Outbursts Provoked

The only notice Black took of the fact judges sometimes provoke the outbursts by short-ending defendants on their rights was the observation that "being manned by humans, the courts are not perfect and are bound to make some errors."

Brennan's concurring opinion sought to soothe liberals' sensibilities by counseling that the guarantees of liberty, justice and equality "cannot endure if we allow our precious heritage of ordered liberty to be ripped apart amid the sound and fury of our time."

Significantly, though, even Brennan, a recognized liberal, coupled liberty with order.

Douglas Opinion

Only Douglas, in a separate opinion, stressed that "problems of political indictments and of political judge raise profound questions going to the heart of the social compact."

Douglas asked: "Would we tolerate removal of a defendant from the courtroom during a trial because he was insisting on his constitutional rights, albeit vociferously, no matter how obnoxious his philosophy might have been to the bench that tried him?

"Would we uphold contempt in that situation?"

Agrees With Colleagues

Douglas agreed with his colleagues that a criminal trial cannot exist in bedlam. But he said Allen evidently was mentally ill and a ruling on the sensitive issues of courtroom order should have been put off to another day.

Only Brennan, and he by indirection, noted there may be ways to observe both a need for decorum and the right granted by the 6th Amendment to defendants to face their accusers.

Allen's own appeals lawyer, H. Reed Harris of Chicago, said both needs could be met by placing the unruly defendant in a soundproof booth in the courtroom or televising the trial to him outside.

Asks Reasonable Efforts

Brennan did not suggest either method directly. But he advised trial judges to "make reasonable efforts to enable him (the excluded defendant) to communicate with his attorney and, if possible, to keep apprised of the progress of his trial."

"Once the court has removed the contumacious defendant," Brennan said, "it is not weakness to mitigate the disadvantages of his expulsion as far as technologically possible in the circumstances."

IRS Official Near Success As Night Thief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man authorities say was an Internal Revenue Service intelligence agent by day and a thief by night has been charged in what the FBI rated the nation's biggest unsolved kidnap case.

The accused, Ronald Lee Miller, 38, came within three days of escaping the three-year statute of limitations after which he couldn't be prosecuted for the April 3, 1967, kidnap of Kenneth John Young.

Miller was indicted Tuesday by the Los Angeles grand jury. His attorney said "he told me he had nothing to do with it."

The FBI says it threw 300 agents into the case in all. But still a mystery is the whereabouts of $250,000 ransom that Herbert J. Young, president of Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association, paid for the safe return of his son, Kenneth, now 14.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard W. Hecht says the ransom, all in new $100 bills, may be in a Swiss bank and the FBI "is looking into it."

Miller was fired as an IRS agent after he was arrested last Oct. 10 and charged with robbing $17,280 from a theater and a market in suburban Alhambra.

Those robbery cases are still pending, and Miller was in jail —unable to post $1,875 premium for a security bond for bail— when the FBI got a break in the kidnap case. An alleged accomplice implicated Miller, agents said.

W. German Latest Kidnaping Victim

GUATEMALA (AP) — Kidnapers of West Germany's ambassador to Guatemala were expected today to demand the release of five terrorists captured a week ago.

Officials awaited word from the abductors of Count Karl von Spreti, believed to be leftist guerillas. Hours passed without a ransom demand, but the pattern in past kidnapings of diplomats has been to secure the freedom of political prisoners.

It was the seventh kidnaping of a diplomat in Latin America since last September and Guatemala's third. Three of the seven diplomats have been Americans.

Black Militants Apparently Bitter Over Arms Charge

federal firearms indictment he was sure that "the greatest mission of an oppressed people is to rid the country of tyranny by any means whatsoever."

Last year when Williams learned that Gov. Milliken would extradite him to North Carolina, he said:

"My last faith was in Gov. Milliken and I'll never have any faith in the white man or in white America again. The law book is out, the Constitution is out, there is nothing that will help us but the gun."

Won't Be Taken Alive

Williams said Tuesday that he would not be taken alive to North Carolina as the situation now stands. "They can kill me, but they can't force me to submit to a lynch mob in North Carolina," he said.

He resigned Dec. 3, as president of the Republic of New Africa, a movement which has as its objective the creation of an independent black nation out of five southern states.

He said he needed a broader base of support from whites and blacks to fight extradition.

Since then he has spoken before many organizations in the Detroit area about his experiences and legal problems.

He said he had been encouraged by the reactions of white persons in these organizations, but added, "Support alone, when a man is going to the gallows, is not enough."

Williams lamented that the new federal indictment would probably keep him from accepting a fellowship to attend the University of Michigan in nearby Ann Arbor, Mich.

Frameup Charged

The black nationalist claims the kidnap charges against him constitute a frameup. Recalling the nght of violence in 1961, he said:

"We all thought we were going to have a war that night, and people were all dug in. I got a call saying state troopers would be at my house in 30 minutes and that I would be lynched in front of the court house.

"A crowd of colored people gathered around my home surrounding a white couple and they were screaming about killing them. I went into the crowd and led them into my house. They know today they would have been dead if I hadn't been there."

Williams said the incident started when he invited a busload of Negro Freedom Riders to stay overnight in Monroe.

New Postal Pay Offer Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has come across with a "new and unconditional" wage offer in the postal pay negotiations, apparently topping an earlier money proposal reported in the neighborhood of 6 per cent.

Three wage proposals were on the table as the negotiations, being held behind closed doors, moved into the sixth day.

After Nixon's newest offer Tuesday, union representatives countered with a three-point proposal of their own. By agreement beteen the parties, the spokesmen declined to elaborate on any of the offers.

Some unions have talked of seeking 20 per cent pay increases. Estimates of what the administration might agree to range from 6 per cent to the 11.1 per cent raise contained in the most liberal of the postal pay bills before Congress.

Accused Of Murder

JOAN WILKINSON, above, daughter of former world heavyweight boxing champion, Gene Tunney, will remain in custody until April 8 at Chesham, Buckinghamshire, England, after being accused of murdering her husband, Lynn, 31. Responsibility In My Lai Case Laid To Medina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. Ernest L. Medina, company commander at My Lai in Vietnam, was charged by the Army today with responsibility for murders of Vientamese civilians allegedly committed by men in his unit.

The charge was added to earlier formal allegations that Medina murdered four persons, maimed another, and committed assault with a deadly weapon.

The latest charge, the Army said, replaces an earlier allegation filed March 17 charging Medina with wrongfully concealing knowledge that members of his company had committed felonies at My Lai-Son My in South Vietnam, March 16, 1968.

Most of the 13 officers and enlisted men thus far charged in connection with alleged atrocities served under Medina in Company C, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Brigade.

The earlier charge of wrongful concealment, or "misprision of a felony," has been dropped, the Army said.

The latest charge of responsibility "for the alleged murders of Vietnamese noncombatant persons allegedly committed by members of his company" was based on evidence collected by Army criminal investigation agents in looking into reports of the alleged incident over the past six months, the Army said.

Wayne U. Woman Professor Victim Of Stabbing, Rape

PONTIAC (AP) — A 54-year-old professor of education at Wayne State University is reported in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital after being stabbed, beaten and raped near Milford Tuesday.

Dr. Marion McMillian reported to police that she was forced into her car about 4 p.m. near her office at the Wayne State campus in Detroit. Police say she was then driven at knife point to a field near Milford, stabbed, beaten, raped and left in the field as her assailant drove away in her car.

Three men found Dr. McMillian walking along the road and took her to Milford where police brought her to the hospital.

Air Controllers Ease Sick Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slight back-to-work trend developed in some areas, but the air traffic controllers' strike went on today despite a call by union leaders to end the sick-call action that has crippled air travel for a week.

A U.S. district judge agreed, meantime, to postpone until Thursday a scheduled hearing today for attorney F. Lee Bailey, executive director of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, to answer contempt charges after hundreds of controllers reported sick in the face off federal court injunctions.

The request for the delay was made by attorneys for Bailey and two other PATCO officials.

Bailey, at a news conference Tuesday, urged the controllers to return to work unless they actually were ill. However, he expressed qualms that his "clarifying statement" might be taken as an effort to avoid the contempt proceedings.

"I do not advocate a sick-out," Bailey said. "It is an inconvenience to the American public and should be terminated at once."

Following Bailey's statement, the Federal Aviation Agency reported higher percentages of controllers reporting for the midnight shift, particularly in New York City, hardest-hit by the strike.

In Chicago, an FAA spokesman said all nine of scheduled controllers reported to work at the O'Hare tower for the early morning shift, while 12 of 22 scheduled to work reported for duty at the Aurora control center. Strength was at 70 per cent, compared with 40 per cent on the midnight shift.

Proxmire Hits GOP Cover-Ups

WASHNGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, accusing the Pentagon of lying to justify the cost of multibillion dollar weapons systems, has urged the power of the purse be stripped from the generals.

The Wisconsin Democrat said he wants an independent civilian agency to take charge of the procurement of military equipment under these marching orders: End waste, make sure weapons work and are ready on time, prevent the billion-dollar overruns of the past and knock heads if necessary to do the job.

"The disgraceful fact is that neither the contractors nor the Pentagon tell the truth about the cost of weapons," Proxmire said in a new book, "Report From Wasteland," his views of the military-industrial complex.

"They deliberately lie about the cost," he declared. "They purposely underestimate the cost of these weapons systems in order to get them established and to get the Congress and the country committed to them."

The book called for a reorganization of government institutions on every level—White House, Budget Bureau, Pentagon, Congress, General Accounting Office—in order that we may judge, analyse, criticize, review and recommend policies to control the procurement of modern weapons systems."

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

Tide Turning For Carswell?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buoyed by the support of two senior Republican senators with possible key votes, Senate GOP forces say the tide has been turned in the fight over Judge G. Harrold Carswell's Supreme Court nomination.

Acting GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin said the slippage in Carswell's support apparent last week has been stopped. He predicted confirmation by a three or four vote margin.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., said opponents of the Tallahassee, Fla., federal appeals court judge sense the momentum is running against them and are resorting to desperation tactics.

Supporters appeared to have wrested the initiative from opponents Monday with these developments:

—Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, who helped tip the scales against the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. last fall, gave strong backing to Carswell.

—Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, the 77-year-old dean of Republican senators, also declared his support for Carswell.

Williams and Aiken, previously uncommitted, were regarded by both sides as having possibly pivotal votes.

The first test of strength comes Monday on a move to kill the nomination by sending it back to the Senate Judiciary Committee. If that fails, the confirmation vote itself will come two days later.

Dole Monday formally declared his support of Carswell, a move that had long been anticipated. So was the announcement by Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., that he will vote against Carswell's confirmation and for recommittal of the nomination.

That left 43 senators on record in support of the nomination and 35 against.

Storms Remain 'Female' Despite Women's Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter what women's liberation groups think, the Weather Bureau says the first hurricane this year is going to be called Alma, not Ambrose, Alpha, Aardvark or anything else.

The flap started last Friday when Roxie Bolton of the National Organization of Women—NOW, a women's rights outfit, stormed into the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"Women are not disasters, destroying life and communities, and leaving a lasting and devastating effect," she said, demanding hurricanes be called something else.

If NOW's demand was not met in a week or 10 days, she said, the women would move on Weather Bureau headquarters in Washington.

Bureau spokesmen said Tuesday the 1970 list reads Alma, Beckey, Celia, Dorothy, Ella and so on. Roxie was on there in 1968 but no season has ever had enough hurricanes to get past Martha.

Fishermen, Officers Clash At Fairport

Delta County Prosecuting Attorney John Beauchamp said this morning that warrants will be issued later today or Thursday for the arrest of a number of persons involved in an incident Tuesday in which Department of Natural Resources officers allegedly were obstructed in performance of their duties at the commercial fish dock in Fairport.

State Police from Manistique and Gladstone posts were summoned to Fairport to assist five DNR officers at the dock. An estimated 40 to 45 concerned citizens had gathered, officers reported.

The incident lasted from 9:45 a.m., when DNR officers arrived at Fairport for the purpose of inspecting and monitoring commercial fishing, until about 6 p.m., Beauchamp said.

Officers were refused the right to perform checks and inspections, Beauchamp added. They also were obstructed in attempting to board some of the boats, in attempting to carry out their duties and when attempting to leave the area. The prosecutor said that some members of the group of citizens and fishermen were disorderly and insulting to the officers.

Beauchamp, who was reviewing the entire incident with Robert Timmer, Escanaba district law supervisor for the DNR today to determine what charges would be filed, said that warrants for hindering and obstructing officers in the performance of their duties are being considered.

He also said there could be charges against some individuals for violation of commercial fishing license provisions, fishing without a license and for being drunk and disorderly.

First State Police trooper to respond to the DNR request for assistance arrived from the Manistique Post about 3 p.m. A second officer from Manistique arrived about a half hour later and two more officers from Manistique and two from Gladstone reached the scene about 5 p.m.

Commercial fishermen in the Fairport area have been upset about the DNR's new zone management plan for regulating fishing in the Great Lakes. The plan became law earlier this year.

Fishermen also have complained bitterly about DNR restrictions on licensing and nets.

Students Aid Indian Youth

Escanaba Kiwanis heard Paul Haack of Escanaba, a student at Central Michigan University, tell of the Chippewa big brother and sister program as done on the campus at Mt. Pleasant.

The program was conceived about six years ago as an effort to keep Chippewa youngsters in school. Prior to the start of the program, the average Indian youngster only went to school 25-50 per cent of the time. Since the program, attendance has increased sharply. This in itself is an achievment, the speaker said.

The emphasis is a one-to-one approach, with one student volunteer more or less adopting one Indian younster, he said. They meet at least once a week and work with the youngster.

The Indian young people are taken to any event that a student can gain admission to with his activity card, thus broadening the young person's outlook. Haack said that the faculty of Central Michigan University is cooperative and that use of state vehicles, on a mileage basis allows the students to visit their "brother or sister" frequently.

Haack said he is anxious to start a similar program in Escanaba, either with Bay de Noc or one of the high schools. He invited inquiries and these should be directed to Paul Haack, 906 7th Ave S., Escanaba r to him at Preston Apartments, Apartment G-6, Mt. Pleasant. 48858

He said it is one of the better programs working with Indians in Michigan and expansion into this area would "both help our Indian young people and help our students to mature in a manner which has heretofore been unavailable to them."

Escanaba police are continuing their investigation of the breaking and entering of the Honda Shop at 1415 N. Lincoln Rd., where two new motor bikes were taken Tuesday night. The bikes were later found abandoned. Entrance was gained by breaking open a rear door of the shop.

Traffic court violations summonses have been issued by Escanaba police to Gary LaBelle, 718 S. 16th St., speeding; Donald J. Mahoney, 1100 S. 19th St., improper lane usage, no proof of insurance; Mary Ann Lorey, 605 Ludington St., Mary Sue LaMarche, 203 N. 19th St., Dwayne W. Klein, Bark River Rte. 1, Michael J. Van Effen, Gladstone Rte. 1, Dale P. Nault, 214 N. 18th St. and Gerald A. Romaine, 629 N. 18th St., all for illegal u-turn.

The right door of a 1965 Ford Bronco was stolen from an automobile at the Riverside Auto Sales, 2511 Ludington St., it was reported to city police today. The theft occurred last night.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY players will present "Comedy of Errors" in Escanaba Thursday night under sponsorship of Bay de Noc Community College. Escanaba Area Public High School auditorium will be the place, 8 p. m. is the time, and there is no admission charge to students and the general public.

College Sponsoring 'Comedy Of Errors'

Bay de Noc Community College invites students and the general public to an evening of theater as part of its community service program, at 8 p. m., Thursday, April 2, in the Escanaba High School Auditorium. There is no charge for the public.

The attraction for the evening will be the Michigan State University Performing Arts Company, presenting a "Comedy of Errors." This year's tour attraction by the University's Performing Arts company is directed by Frank Rutledge.

A "Comedy of Errors" is a delightful play borrowed from William Shakespeare. The production is set in the year 2200 A. D. Costumes and settings are of the space age, with imaginative use of plastics and fanciful interplanitary journies. Electronic music is used as background support in many scenes. The humor lies in the comical treatment of the many mistaken identities. There is the double mix-up of two sets of twins who can't even tell themselves apart.

The exciting costumes were created by Gretel Stensrud for the Company.

The members of the Performing Arts Company are talented graduate and undergraduate students who have come to Michigan State because of the outstanding opportunities offered by its University Theatre program.

Director Rutledge, assistant professor of theatre at Michigan State, has just returned from a year of study and travel in Europe.

Donald Porath Dies Today

Donald R. Porath, 50, of 413 S. 13th St., died early this morning at St. Francis Hospital after a lengthy illness. He was born May 28, 1919 in Escanaba and had lived in Hyde until his marriage to Dorothy Wollershiem, June 13, 1946. He had resided in Escanaba for 24 years.

Mr. Porath was a veteran of World War II, serving with the U.S. Army in the Asiatic Pacific Theater.

He is survived by his widow; one son, Raymond, at home; two daughters, Mrs. Emil (Susan) Couillard and Mrs. Roger (Kathryn) Richards of Escanaba and three grandchildren; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Porath of Hyde; one sister, Mrs. Clarence (Phyllis) Theoret of Rte. 1 Gladstone and seven brothers, Robert of Schaffer, Leslie of Escanaba, Lawrence of Albion, James of California, Jack, Earl and William of Hyde.

The body has been removed to the Degnan-Crawford Funeral Home and funeral arrangements are incomplete at this time.

Coins Taken In Break-In

The home of Mrs. Linda Beauchamp, Rte. 1, Gladstone, was the scene of a breaking and entering Tuesday, according to State Police.

Officers said entry was made by opening a window on the front porch, between 8 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.

A coin collection including at least 32 half dollars was reported missing, State Police said.

Phelps Dodge Ups Price Of Copper; Trading Firmer

LONDON (AP) — Copper prices were firmer in early trading on the London Metal Exchange following the announcement of price rises by Phelps Dodge Corp., of the United States.

Further price increases are likely in the London market, since most London traders expect other producers to follow the Phelps Dodge move, a leading London broker said.

The ringneck pheasant may not be a native species, but he's no newcomer either. He landed in New York State first between 1728 and 1731 when Governor James Montgomery stocked several dozen on what is now known as Governor's Island in New York harbor.

Ice Hampers Lake Traffic

The Chicago and North Western continued moving iron ore out of Escanaba today—but it is the only port where marine traffic is under way on the upper Great Lakes.

Early-season shipping was fighting ice-choked channels at the Straits of Mackinac and in St. Marys Canal. The Coast Guard was lending full assistance in the effort to start the fleet moving.

At Escanaba the third boat of the current season—the Ford Motor Co.'s Dykstra—cleared for Dearborn this morning with 16,120 tons of pellet ore. The Cornelius is at the dock and is loading 19,500 tons of ore for Trenton.

But conditions at the Straits will have to improve before they try a return, it was indicated.

First vessels to load at Escanaba, the Sykes and L. E. Block of Inland Steel, are carrying cargoes of ore to Indiana Harbor on lower Michigan. They were delayed in Little Bay de Noc because of ice conditions.

Both the Sykes and the Block are scheduled to return for cargoes on Friday.

Marquette Youths Arraigned After Drug Raid Monday

MARQUETTE — Cash bonds of $1,000 were set by George E. Hill for each of two young men who were arraigned Tuesday in District Court on charges of possession of narcotics.

Arrested by Marquette City Police in a raid late Monday afternoon were Alan Johnson, 22, of Marquette and Donald N. Borim, 21, of Kendall Park, N. J., both students at Northern Michigan University.

According to Det. Marvin J. Gauthier of the Marquette City Police, a third warrant has been issued for an unidentified third young man allegedly living at 1518 Fitch Ave., the site of the raid, with the pair arrested.

Possession of narcotics is a circuit felony carrying a penalty, upon conviction, up to 10 years in prison.

West Michigan Ski Area Reports Record Season

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Western Michigan ski resorts have set records this season for the number of skiers and the length of their stays, the president of the West Michigan Tourist Association says.

Wesley Tebeau made the comment Tuesday, without providing specific figures, after a spot check of reports from the area's 38 ski resorts. He said there were more persons skiing Tuesday than on weeknds only a few years ago.

Tebeau said many areas still have one to three feet of snow on their slopes so the ski season may last for a few more weeks unless there is a sudden thaw.

Offer Reward In Bomb Scare

A $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for Monday night's "bomb scare" telephone call is being offered by the Manistique Area Schools.

Anyone having information may contact the area schools or police department.

A thorough search of all area schools was made Monday night after a caller informed the Public Safety Dept. that "a bomb is set to go off in the next 48 hours in one of the Manistique Area Schools." Officer John Blomquist received the call at 7:15 p.m.

Both city and State Police officers and school officials took part in a seach which lasted until 11 p.m. Nothing was found and the call was assumed to be a hoax.

Classes were held as usual in all schools on Tuesday — the first back-to-school day after an Easter recess.

Elementary school children may attend a matinee performance Friday at 3:30 p. m.

The plays, all student directed, include "Never Trust A Man," Kay Gray and Barbara Clement; "Three Phone Calls," Kary Krumrey and Sally Boyd; "Where's That Report Card," Ruth Rogers and JoAnne Berger: "Sure As You're Born," Jeffie Orr and Karen Jetty; "Keep Your Halo Straight," Beckie Chartier and Maribeth Pawley; and "Itchin To Get Hitched," Cheryl Jetty and Janet Gillam.

Mr. and Mrs. Rubick and their two children plan to leave June 11 for Logan and will live in campus housing during the eight-week session which begins June 22 until Aug. 14.

School-Closing Plans Formulated In Grand Rapids

GRAND RAPDS (AP)—The Grand Rapids Board of Education has selected 20 schools it may have to close next fall if no further tax millage is approved to support the school system.

The list selected Tuesday includes 13 elementary schools and six junior high or middle schools. The austerity program, which may include half-day session for pupils above the third grade, is intended to trim $8.2 million from the board's $31.5 million budget.

Another portion of the contingency plan calls for dismissing 22 elementary school teachers plus 215 secondary school teachers, 35 administrative workers and 134 other school employes. The contingency planning became necessary when a 12-mill tax issue was defeated by margins of nearly 3 to 1, Feb. 6.

Ferris President Plans To Retire

BIG RAPIDS (AP) — Dr. Victor F. Spathelf announced his retirement today as president of Ferris State College and asked to be relieved of his duties by Dec. 15.

Spathelf, 10th president of the Big Rapids school, had told the board of control five years ago that he did not wish to remain in office beyond 1970.

The 60-year-old Spathelf has been in charge at Ferris for 18 years, since two years after it became a state-supported college.

During his presidency, enrollment at Ferris State leapt from less than 700 students to a predicted total of 9,000 this fall.

There have been vast changes to the campus itself during his tenure. When Spathelf took over in 1952, Ferris State had three buildings on 19 acres. Today, the school has more than 30 buildings on a 476-acre campus

Spathelf said he has no immediate plans once he retires except for taking a vacation.

Wally Moses, Len Okrie, Grover Resinger and Mike Roarke are coaching with the Detroit Tigers this year.

Briefly Told

Reunion committee of the MHS Class of 1940 meets Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Elks Temple.

Ground beef and gravy, whipped potatoes, pickle chips, cheese slices, shoo fly pie and beverage is the hot lunch menu Thursday at the Manistique Area Schools.

State Police report an automobile driven by Lorraine Goodroe, Mt. Morris, struck and killed a deer at one o'clock Monday afternoon on U.S. 2, Doyle Township. Troopers ticketed Michael Cournaya, Lansing, for no insurance proof Monday.

Summer College Studies Ruled Favorable By MTU

HOUGHTON (AP) — College freshmen who begin their studies in the summer instead of the fall have a better record of success, according to a recent study at Michigan Technological University.

"Opportunities such as the summer freshman program at Michigan Tech enable students to adjust both academically and socially in a more relaxed atmosphere," explained Dr. Thomas G. Ellis, summer session director.

The study compared a group of summer freshmen at Michigan Tech with a similar group that started last fall. More than twice as many of the summer freshmen earned grades of at least a C and two thirds had a C average or higher.

A total of 94 per cent of the summer enrollees completed the quarter.

Snowmobile Back In Tip-Top Shape

ATLANTA (AP) — On Feb. 8, a 1970 snowmobile was stolen from Jim and Lon's Bait Shop in Atlanta.

The slide used to rotate the track was broken.

On Tuesday, the owners found the snowmachine sitting in the driveway again. And they got a bonus. The slide was fixed and the vehicle was washed.

Hearing Set On Mich-Con's Gas Service Plans

LANSING (AP)—The question of whether Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. should be required to establish gas service in three Upper Peninsula areas will be the topic of a public hearing slated for May 12 at Escanaba by the State Public Service Commission.

Three local units of government—Watersmeet and Marenisco townships in Gogebic County and Manistique in Schoolcraft County—have filed petitions asking the commission to require the company to provide service.

The state also petitioned to require Michigan Consolidated to serve the Newberry State Hospital.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. came to Manistique about two years ago and was given a franchise to supply the community with natural gas.

There was the promise to begin service in the fall of 1969.

The company then petitioned the state for permission to increase its rates, and did not proceed with service for Manistique, contending that it could not afford to effect the extension at Manistique under the present rate schedule. The company said it would lose money.

The action was construed locally as a lever to obtain favorable response on the rate increase request from the state. The petition for the rate increase is still pending.

Meanwhile, Michigan Power Co. of Marquette, although it does not have a direct natural gas source, has indicated an interest in serving the Manistique community. The franchise by Manistique to Michigan Consolidated has expired.

The City of Manistique has evinced interest in hearing the Michigan Power Co. proposal and appears inclined to negotiate for natural gas service, at least to determine what the offer may contain.

Spartans Whip Fighting Irish

MIAMI (AP)— Three-run homers by third-baseman John Rohde and outfielder Ron Pruitt highlighted Michigan State's 11-3 triumph Tuesday over Notre Dame in the second phase of the Hurricane Baseball Tournament at the University of Miami.

MSU now is 2-0, after having lost the opening phase's championship game to Ohio State. For its spring training swing MSU is 7-1-1.

First baseman Rob Ellis contributed a fourth-inning home run, with no one aboard, to MSU's runaway victory in a game called after eight innings because of time.

Rohde's homer came in the first inning as the Spartans scored five times, while Pruitt's accounted for all three second-inning runs. Pruitt also had a single and drove in four runs, while Ellis had a triple and single in addition to his homer and scored three times.

Rick Kreuger and Elliott Moore shared the MSU pitching and limited Notre Dame to nine hits.

Teams competing the second-phase of the tournament include Colgate and Miami, in addition to MSU and Notre Dame.

Schayes Named Buffalo Coach

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Dolph Schayes, an aggressive former star in the National Basketball Association, says he has satisfied an itch by becoming coach of Buffalo's new NBA team.

"I've been itching to get back into coaching," Schayes said at his news conference debut Tuesday, "and when I read where Eddie Donovan and Carl Scheer were heading the Buffalo operation, I wanted to become involved in it."

Donovan is the club's general manager, the same post he held with the New York Knicks until several weeks ago, and Scheer, former NBA assistant commissioner, is president.

Schayes, 41, supervisor of officials for the NBA since 1966, said he made the initial move when the coaching spot was opened.

Wood Resigns As Principal

William Wood, principal of Gladstone High School for the past two years, officially resigned his position at a special meeting of the Board of Education Monday evening.

Wood's resignation will become effective at the end of the current school year. He said his plans for the future are indefinite.

Wood came to Gladstone in 1958 after graduating from Lawrence College and served as basketball coach at Gladstone High School until his resignation at the end of the 1968-69 season. He received his master's degree at Northern Michigan University.

During his coaching career, Wood's teams compiled a record of 80 victories and 100 defeats, including district championships in Class C in 1962 and Class B in 1969.

Wood was named principal in March of 1968 and assumed the duties of acting superintendent during the following school year after the death of Supt. Wallace Cameron.

No successor to Wood has been named yet, but the Board announced that it will take applications for the position until May 15. At that time, the top eight candidates will be interviewed and the new principal will be named shortly after.

Mercury Forces Ban On Lake Erie Fish Specimens

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — An official of the federal government announced a ban Tuesday the sale of pickerel and perch taken from the western portion of Lake Erie because of mercury contamination.

Mercury seepage from industrial plants resulted in a similar ban on the Lake St. Clair water system last week.

Lake Erie commercial fishermen were notified late Tuesday that all pickerel and perch taken from the lake's western basin, an area between Point Pelee and the Detroit River on the Canadian side, would be seized and held for inspection.

Dr. R. R. Logie of Ottawa, assistant deputy minister of the federal fisheries department, said analysis of pickerel taken from the western basin showed signs of mercury contamination similar to that found in Lake St. Clair pickerel.

He said perch from Lake Erie also have been tested by the federal fisheries research branch in Winnipeg, but because of a variety of levels found there will be another analysis.

Smelt from the lake were found to be "nearly free from the mercury contamination," Logie said.

"We find it necessary to hold under detention pickerel and perch because of our findings," Logie said. "We are not sure about the other fish species. Perch, of course, is the largest commercial interest".

GM Faces New Suit By Nader; Wheels Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader brought suit against the government Tuesday to force the reopening of charges that General Motors used steel wheels "which disintegrate suddenly and explosively" on 200,000 pickup trucks manufactured between 1960-65.

The suit charged that the Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration ignored findings of government safety engineers in terminating administrative proceedings against GM last October.

Named in the suit filed here in U.S. District Court were Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe, FHA Administrator Francis C. Turner and Douglas Toms, directors of the National Highway Safety Bureau.

According to the suit, the government called off proceedings against GM after the auto manufacturer said the wheels were not defective, and that accidents involving the pickup trucks were caused by overloading with campers or other special truck bodies. GM said it would replace the wheels on those trucks, numbering about 50,000.

But Nader, in his suit, said government safety engineers rejected GM's contention that the safety hazard was limited to trucks equipped with campers or other special bodies. The engineers found that a safety defect affected all trucks equipped with wheels manufactured by the Kelsey-Hayes Corp., Nader said.

Joining Nader in the suit were his associate, Larry J. Silverman; the Center for Auto Safety, an affiliate of the Consumers Union; and a group calling itself Physicians for Automotive Safety.

Charges that GM used allegedly defective wheels on its pickup trucks were first brought by Nader in 1968 in a letter to the Highway Safety Bureau.

Timber Research Fund Hike Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., asked a Senate Appropriations subcommittee today to increase the administration's budget for research of timber resources.

It makes sense, he said, to increase research designed to increase the supply of and decrease the cost of lumber.

He asked for increases in funds for research on separating bark from wood chips which would enable pulp mills to use small and low-quality timber, and increase funds for a survey of national timber resources.

Research on bark-chip separation, he said, is centered at the forest engineering lab at Michigan Technological University.

He said development of an economical bark-chip separation method could save the timber industry $65 million each year.

GM Announces Recall Of Trucks

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. announced Tuesday it is recalling 5,760 light-duty four-wheel-drive GMC and Chevrolet trucks for replacement of front spring eye bolts.

GM said the eye bolts, which attach the spring to its front hanger, may be subject to breakage. A broken spring eye bolt could cause the car to veer to the side on which the bolt is broken when braking.

All trucks being recalled are 1969 models.

Chevrolet also announced it is sending corrected adhesive-backed tire pressure information sheets to owners of 16,712 early production 1970 Chevelles and Monte Carlos.

Milwaukee Obtains Baseball Team Again

Brewers Launch Season At Home

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Pilots became the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday night when a federal bankruptcy referee approved the sale of the financially dying American League baseball team for $10.8 million.

The only formality left was referee Sidney C. Volinn's signature on the order today. Attorney Elwin Zarwell, the Brewers' representative, said Volinn's spoken decision Tuesday night was as good as his written approval.

The contract already had been signed and approved by the league, leaving the Brewers free to go about their baseball business.

Volinn approved the sale after saying the Pilots obviously couldn't pay $8.13 million in debts and didn't have the cash to survive a second season in Seattle. That paved the way for the expansion team to open the 1970 season next Tuesday in Milwaukee against the California Angels.

But the death of the Pilots also opened the way for a twofisted attack on baseball's exemption from federal antitrust laws. William L. Dwyer, special assistant state attorney general, said Seattle and the state of Washington would press their $82 million antitrust damage suit which already had been filed in state court and was awaiting removal of the team.

That suit contends that the league violated the state's antitrust laws by excluding competitors from the baseball business and restrained trade in various areas. As a result of the alleged antitrust violations the state, city and their citizens and businesses will suffer economic injury, the suit argues.

Washington's two powerful Democratic senators—Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson—have said they will introduce legislation taking away baseball's antitrust immunity as soon as Congress reconvenes next week.

There was no doubt that the club couldn't meet its debts as they came due and soon would be insolvent, Volinn said. With the baseball season only a week away, the Pilots were in an emergency situation, he added.

The only other solution was to force the American League to carry the team and with it deficit financing amounting to over $5 million during the next three years.

Volinn said it would be unfair to make the league bear that kind of financial burden with the team's only hope of profit, King County's $40 million domed stadium, itself in a legal bind.

The State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that the site selection for the stadium should go on a May ballot pending a court test.

Volinn said he was aware of the unique nature of baseball, but that didn't alter the fact that the team couldn't pay its bills, no matter how it got ino the financial mess in the first place.

In New York Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said "no comment" to the entire Seattle-Milwaukee situation.

But the newest American League executive, Allan "Bud" Selig, president of the Brewers, said "We are delighted with the decision of Federal Bankruptcy referee Sidney C. Volinn."

Volinn cleaned up the last traces of the Pilots by appointing a receiver to take charge after the sale while the reorganization was going on. He also ordered that any distribution of funds from the sale of the Pilots be made only on the order of his court.

Chances of a review of Volinn's decision appeared slim since Washington would have to put up a bond of at least $20 million.

Dwyer, who had pressed for an order making the league take over the club's operations, said after the decision the state would proceed "full steam ahead" with its suit. But that head of steam apparently will take time to build. He estimated that it would be as much as a year before the case went to the state courts.

"But we think we have a very strong damage case," Dwyer said. "We had to shoot a lot of our bullets in this hearing, but we can use those same bullets again. And by bringing out testimony here we had a chance to see what they (the American League) will shoot."

Max Soriano, the Pilots' minority shareholder and secretary treasurer, said he was relieved to be out of the financial and legal entanglements, but regretted Seattle's loss.

"I hope the stadium is built so someone else, and I emphasize here, can have the opportunity to bring major league baseball back to the Pacific Northwest."

MILWAUKEE COUNTY STADIUM will once again be the scene of an opening day celebration, as the sale of the Seattle Pilots became official Monday night, moving the Pilots to Milwaukee. The Brewers, as the team will be known, will open the 1970 baseball season against the California Angels in Milwaukee next Tuesday. (AP Wirephoto)

Antitrust Suit Underway Against American League

SEATTLE (AP) — Organized baseball's long immunity from antitrust laws came under attack today in state court, and was threatened with a federal-level assault in Congress next week.

The two-pronged offensive was launched as the result of the Seattle Pilots' sale to Milwaukee for $10.8 million.

A federal bankruptcy referee approved the sale Tuesday night after ruling that the Seattle club could not pay its $8.13 million in debts and did not have money to operate in Seattle this season.

The team is due to open play in Milwaukee as the Milwaukee Brewers next Tuesday.

The sale means Washington state and Seattle will go ahead with an $82 million antitrust suit filed in King County Superior Court March 16 against the American League and its individual club owners. The county is expected to join the case later.

State Atty. Gen. Slade Gorton had said in a letter to the league that "the suit would differ substantially from nearly all past and present cases" because it dealt "with conduct alleged to be predatory."

William L. Dwyer of Seattle, named by Gorton as his special assistant to handle the case, commented: "We think we have a very strong case. We're hot to go."

Dwyer said that although an antitrust conviction in state court would be binding only in Washington state "it could, and probably would, undermine baseball's antitrust protection in every other state and probably could affect its status under federal antitrust laws."

While the state was attacking under its own antitrust laws, Washington's two Democratic senators, Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, readied a bill to wipe out baseball's protection from federal antitrust provisions.

Jackson said the measure probably would be introduced next week "and we've been assured of a hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee."

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., who represents the Seattle area, plans to file similar legislation in the house.

Jackson conceded the bill might face hard going in Congress, but said its chances were good because baseball had changed so radically since it gained antitrust immunity as a sport—rather than a business—under a 1922 U. S. Supreme Court decision.

Since then, the high court has refused to review that position.

Magnuson said he and Jackson hoped to "save other communities the agony and type of treatment pressed upon Seattle by the American League."

'Bo' Pleased With Changes

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The Michigan Wolverines scrimmaged for about two hours Tuesday as coach Bo Schembechler continued to experiment with player switches in spring football practice.

Reserve quarterback Bill Betts, a senior who has seen varsity action both as backup quarterback to Don Moorhead and as a flanker, is being moved to safety to replace the graduated Tom Curtis.

Roverback Tom Darden, a junior, is moving to cornerback to replace standout Barry Pierson, who also has graduated.

Schembechler said he was "extremely pleased" with the progress of both Betts and Darden in their new positions.

Tuesday's practice also saw reserve quarterback Bill Berutti working out as a wingback, a position filled last year by John Gabler.

Schembechler said Mike Keller, a junior from Grand Rapids who was working out as a roverback until he suffered a knee injury last week, will play at his original position of defensive end next fall. Keller's injury has side lined him for the remainder of the spring practice season.

Bullets, Hawks Score Victories

By The Associated Press

The Bullets gunned down the Knicks again with Earl "The Pearl" pulling the trigger while the Hawks had a Hazzard for the Bulls.

That was the story Tuesday night in the National Basketball Association playoffs. Baltimore beat New York 102-92 to even their Eastern Division best-of-7 semifinals at 2-2 and Atlanta, winning its 10th straight, took a commanding 3-0 lead over Chicago with a 106-101 victory with Walt Hazzard scoring 32 points for the Hawks.

Atlanta's Hawks, already described by Coach Dick Motta of the Bulls "as the best team in basketball," can win the series Friday night in Chicago and get some rest while waiting on Phoenix and Los Angeles, tied 1-1, to complete their playoffs for the other Western Division championship berth.

The Knicks were the only team in the NBA to win four straight in the 1969 playoffs. New York, in the semifinals a year ago, knocked off Baltimore, which had won the Eastern Division championship, and the Bullets are just now starting to recover from the setback.

Milwaukee's Bucks, with super rookie Lew Alcindor, plays at Philadelphia in tonight's only NBA playoff game. The Bucks have a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Division series. Phoenix and Los Angeles resume their playoffs Thursday in Arizona.

"We're somewhat dented but undaunted," said Walt Frazier of the Knicks after New York's second straight loss to the Bullets.

And Willis Reed, the New York captain and the league's Most Valuable Player, said of the series: "We're starting all over. Now it's a best-of-3."

Earl Monroe's clutch shooting in the waning minutes kept the Knicks from overhauling Baltimore and denying the Bullets the chance to win two straight from New York for the first time since the 1968-69 season Monroe wound up with 34 points and has now scored 107 in the four playoff games.

"Monroe is as good an offensive player as there is in the game," chortled Bullets' coach Gene Shue. "No one can stop him He can be controlled some but he cannot be stopped."

Frazier was high for the Knicks with 25 points while Reed contributed 20.

The Hawks almost didn't get their 10th straight victory—they'd won the last seven in regular season play. Off to an early 14-point cushion, they trailed 73-63 late in the third quarter after Chicago had rallied behind Shaler Halimon to take a 54-51 halftime lead.

Hazzard and Hudson got hot for the Hawks early in the fourth quarter. Atlanta pulled into a tie and finally went ahead 93-91 on Hazzard's field goal. Hudson scored 30 points for Atlanta to go with Hazzard's 32. High for the Bulls was Halimon with 22.

The Senators take on the Detroit Tigers in the season opener Monday.

The White House announced earlier the President will not attend the opening day game due to prior commitments.

Kuhn's Final Decision On McLain Comes Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announces today whether Detroit Tiger superstar Denny McLain will be kept out of professional baseball this season.

Kuhn scheduled a news conference at 12 noon at the Americana Hotel to announce his decision on McLain, who was suspended indefinitely Feb. 19 pending Kuhn's investigation into gambling allegations.

In February, Kuhn said he suspended McLain for "involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities and his associations."

Kuhn said he made up his mind Tuesday on what he was going to do about McLain, who also has been plagued with financial troubles recently, despite earning an estimated $200,000 a year from baseball and his outside activities, such as playing the organ at nightclubs.

McLain Doesn't Know

"I still don't know what the commisssioner's decision will be,'" McLain insisted at his Lakeland home Tuesday night, adding he would find out what it was before the noon conference.

However, McLain, the two-time Cy Young Award winner as the best pitcher in the American League, said he would not be available for comment "until late this afternoon or tonight."

"I plan to be away all day," McLain said. "It's something that I planned a long time and it just turned out to be the same day as the decision."

"Do you feel you need time to decide what to tell reporters if Kuhn has an adverse decision?" McLain, who turned 26 Sunday, was asked.

Denny McLain

"Well, yes, that's part of it," he said. A friend of McLain's said Denny didn't want to fly off the handle if the news was bad, and that he wanted time to gather his thoughts.

Business Matter

He said he was going to spend the day on a business matter. There was a strong possibility the get-together was to include a round of golf within short driving distance of Lakeland.

McLain has been working out with his brother, Tim, at his Lakeland home across town from where the Detroit Tigers have their spring training camp.

The 31-game winner in 1968, insists he will be able to pitch on opening day in Washington Monday if he is allowed to.

Kuhn suspended McLain in February, a day after McLain voluntarily appeared before a federal grand jury in Detroit that is investigating organized crime and gambling.

Federal attorneys declined to say what the testimony concerned. However, U.S. District Attorney James Brickley said Tuesday the matter still was under invesigaion.

No Connection

Brickley said the matter in which McLain testified had no connection whatsoever to another Detroit grand jury investigation which resulted in 10 persons being indicted in late February on charges of conspiring to violate interstate gambling laws.

When Kuhn announced the suspension in February, he said it was based "substantially on certain admissions made candidly to me by Mr. McLain."

About Kuhn's action in February, McLain said "All I can say is I'm sorry. I caused a lot of people a lot of embarrassment —not only my wife, Sharyn, but my father-in-law, (Baseball Hall of Famer) Lou Boudreau, and my mother." McLain, who termed the indefinite suspension as being in limbo, said he has been offered several jobs, mainly by nightclubs. He said he would not make any decision on what to do pending Kuhn's final ruling.

Financial Woes

McLain's latest financial trouble came March 18, when the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) seized his furniture and belongings in his Beverly Hills, Mich., home for payment of $9,460 in back income tax.

The IRS then advertised for a public auction April 7 of McLain's goods, which ranged from a "kingsize bed and box springs and mattress" to "velvet pictures of 'Dancer and Bullfighter.'"

A court attempt to collect $2 450 allegedly owed in back rent for the Beverly Hills home was dropped recently, when the home was sublet. A McLain friend, Tom Weyland, said he was trying to work out a settlement with the landlord.

The pitcher has had myriad other financial troubles, concerning his business enterprises, which at one time included a paint firm in suburban Detroit.

Suits Filed

Among other items, suits brought against him call for repayment of a $7,000 loan from the Citizen's Commercial and Savings Bank in Flint, Mich., and $779 for unpaid electric bills to Consumers Power Co. in Michigan.

A suit for $10,000 was filed against a flying service firm McLain headed.

In addition, in early February, the Detroit Tigers confirmed reports that they were to mail his Tiger paychecks to the Detroit Bank & Trust Co. for $5,000 monthly repayment of a loan from Feb. 15, 1970 through July 15, 1970. The bank said the payments were to settle the balance owed on a $30,000 loan at seven per cent interest.

McLain's Tiger contract was estimated at $90,000 for the season.

"I extended myself on business deals and used some bad judgments," McLain has said in describing his financial problems.

Also in late February, McLain told reporters that "I'm in financial trouble. What am I going to do for money? I've got a family to take care of.

"Contrary to belief, 99 per cent of my problems stem from business. I made a lot of lousy investments." he said.

Bengal Rookie May Be Starter

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Rookie Elliott Maddox may be the Detroit Tigers opening day centerfielder.

Manager Mayo Smith doesn't necessarily want to use the Big Ten batting champion if he doesn't have to. But he may have to.

Maddox played an impressive game Tuesday as the Tigers slugged their way out of their doldrums with an 8-4 exhibition baseball victory over Boston.

The 22-year-old former University of Michigan star belted a two-run homer in Detroit's six-run fourth inning. And he added a fine backhanded running catch at the wall to take a possible triple away from Rico Petrocelli in the second.

Veteran Al Kaline hit a three-run homer in the big inning as the Tigers won only their eighth game against 16 losses.

"Coach Wally Moses worked very hard with Maddox this morning. Otherwise he wouldn't have caught that ball," Smith said.

"He didn't get such a good jump on the ball in yesterday's game (a 6-2 loss to Kansas City)."

But Smith was clearly pleased with Maddox Tuesday.

"I may have to start him opening day," he said, adding that Mickey Stanley is still bothered by a sore arm and Jim Northrup by sore legs.

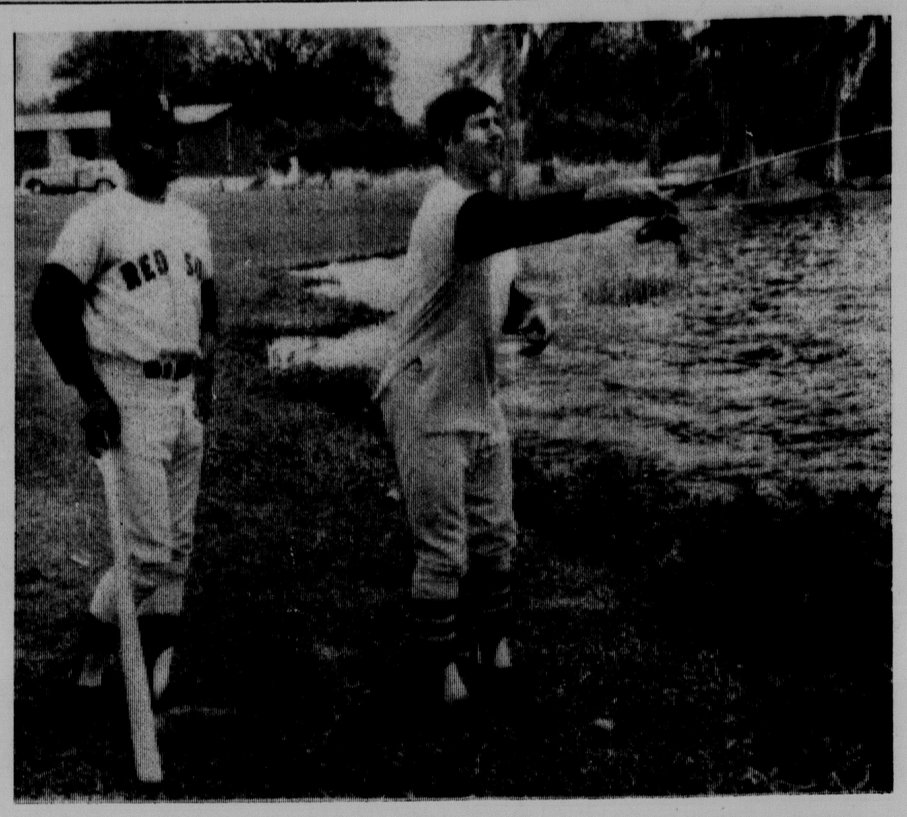

If either Stanley or Northrup are able to start when Detroit opens the American League season Monday in Washington, then Maddox will be used in center between leftfielder Willie Horton and rightfielder Kaline.

"I'd hate to have to put that much pressure on the kid," Smith said. "Especially in Washington with the President there and everything. But I wouldn't hesitate to do it if I had to."

The Tigers, who were scheduled to have a rematch against the Red Sox today in nearby Winter Haven, trailed Boston 4-0 after the top of the third inning. Don Pavletich tagged Mike Kilkenny for a two-run homer in the second and Tony Conigliaro also got a two-run blast in the third."

Detroit got its first run on a sacrifice fly by Norm Cash in the bottom off the third and then surged ahead in the fourth with six runs on seven hits.

Horton knocked in the Tigers' final run in the eighth with a single after a double by Dick McAuliffe.

Yanks, Pirates Continue Impressive Spring Play

By The Associated Press

The baseball establishment is taking great pains to put its troubled house in order before next week's season openers, but spring cleaning has been a pleasure trip for the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Yankees.

While two off-the-field dilemmas—the Denny McLain case and the Seattle Pilots caper—neared resolution Tuesday, the Pirates and Yanks continued to roll up scores in exhibition play.

Pittsburgh bombed the world champion New York Mets 12-3 for its seventh straight victory and the Yankees brought their spring record to 15-7, best in the majors, with an eight-run ninth inning volley that flattened Minnesota 9-2.

In New York, meanwhile, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn scheduled a noon, EST, press conference at which he will announce the fate of McLain, the Detroit pitching ace who has been under indefinite suspension since Feb. 19 for involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities.

In Seattle, a federal bankruptcy referee cleared the way for the transfer of the financially-crippled Pilots to Milwaukee. Formal announcement of the sale of the American League club, to be renamed the Brewers, was expected today.

Back in New York, a federal judge set May 18 as trial date for Curt Flood's suit challenging the reserve clause and Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, recommended a 30-day extension in contract negotiations with major league club owners.

The Pirates stung the Mets with a 15-hit assault including homers by Roberto Clemente, Richie Hebner and Jerry May. Rookie John Ellis doubled to launch the Yankees' ninth inning explosion and climaxed the rally with a three-run homer.

Philadelphia withstood a five-run St. Louis burst in the ninth and edged the Cardinals 12-11. Ex-Cards Byron Browne and Tim McCarver paced the Phillies with four RBI and three hits, respectively.

Oakland snapped a seven-game losing streak by thumping the Chicago Cubs 13-7 as Sal Bando cracked a bases-loaded homer. A two-run homer by rookie Elliott Maddox helped Detroit whip Boston 8-4.

San Diego trimmed Cleveland 6-1 on the three-hit pitching of Mike Corkins and Dave Roberts; Montreal nipped Kansas City 2-1, the Chicago White Sox shaded Washington 6-5; California topped the Pilots 4-2 and Baltimore downed Houston 5-2 in a night game at the Astrodome.

Atlanta slipped past its Richmond farm club 1-0 in 11 innings and Cincinnati beat its Indianapolis affiliate 4-2.

San Francisco, back home from a Japanese exhibition tour, cut nine players, including slugger Jim Ray Hart, who was sent to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League. Minnesota made 11 squad cuts and asked waivers on veteran Bob Allison.

Other cutdown casualties included pitchers Dick Hughes and Jerry Johnson and outfielder Lee Thomas of St. Louis, pitcher Gary Neibauer of Atlanta, outfielder Joe Lahoud on Boston and pitcher Sam Ellis of Cleveland.

Pitcher Rudy May, apparently upset over his demotion to No. 4 man in California's starting rotation, jumped the club in Tempe, Ariz., and returned to his Los Angeles home.

Veteran Orioles Rated Favorites

MIAMI (AP) — "We didn't blow the World Series," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said. "The Mets beat us.

Earl Weaver has been saying it over and over and over again since Oct. 16 last year, the day the World Series ended with the Mets on top of the baseball world and the Orioles getting the hee-haw all the way back to Baltimore.

But neither the result nor the questions seriously disturbed Weaver's winter — according to him—and there doesn't seem to be a team in the American League that can disturb the Orioles' run to another pennant.

Weaver all but admitted as much when he took another retrospective look at the World Se-Series, admitted he hasn't seen "A club for five straight days that played as great as the Mets" and then added:

"I think we have as much or more talent. And I think we're a little deeper than the Mets."

The Orioles are so deep that some of the players who spend their time on the Baltimore bench trying to keep interested might very well be playing regularly with several other clubs.

And it should be emphasized that no one in the American League touched the Orioles last season as they won the Eastern title by 19 games over Detroit and then swept Minnesota in the playoffs.

There's not much left to give the other contenders hope—and any rundown of the line-up just reinforces that estimate.

At first base is Boog Powell, an awesome power hitter who last season hit .304 and slugged 37 homers while driving in 121 runs

Dave Johnson is a .280 hitting second baseman and Mark Belanger a .287 hitting shortstop —a combination that's virtually impossible to duplicate in this era and at third is irrepressible Brooks Robinson, slick fielder, heavy veteran and still a slugging threat (23 homers 84 RBI).

In the outfield, it's Frank Robinson, one of only three $125,000 players in the American League—a .308 hitter with 32 homers and 100 RBI—who ended the 1969 season with 450 career homers.

In center field is quick Paul Blair, a 171 pounder who has the power to slam 26 homers, and the left field spot belongs to Don Buford, a consistent hitter and stolen base threat.

That line-up is so sound that the latest gem from the Orioles' farm system, Terry Crowley, who hit .282 at Rochester with 28 homers and 83 RBI, likely will sit along with Curt Motton, Merv Rettenmund, Dave May and others considered good enough to challenge for regular jobs elsewhere.

If there is an inconsistency, it's in the catching, where Andy Etchebarren and Elrod Hendricks share the job since it takes two of them to provide the hitting needed from one.

One light-hitter in a line-up that includes the aforementioned arsenal hardly is cause for concern particularly when it is all complemented by a pitching staff that put together the best earned run average in the majors last season, 2.83.

Weaver has three spots in the starting rotation set aside for 23-game winner Mike Cuellar, 20-game winner Dave McNally and 16-game winner Jim Palmer. Tom Phoebus and Jim Hardin likely will fill out the rotation.

The bullpen, like the rest of the line-up, is tops with Ed Watt, 1.65 ERA, the No. 1 right-handed stopper, and Pete Richert, 2.21 ERA, the No. 1 left-handed stopper.

Top Draft Picks Ink Celtic Pacts

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics now have signed their top three choices in the recent National Basketball Association draft.

Rex Morgan, the 6-foot-5 Jacksonville backcourt man who was the No. 2 draft selection, was the latest to come to terms, following the earlier signings of No. 1 pick Dave Cowens of Florida State and No. 3 choice Willie Williams, also off Florida State.

Morgan was the nation's 10th leading scorer in his junior season with a 26.7 average.

He turned more to a playmaking role this past season with the advent of 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, leading the team with 112 assists, but still managed to score at an 18.7 clip.

Red Wings Face Hawks In Crucial Showdown

DETROIT (AP) — The sick-out by air traffic controllers has cramped the Detroit Red Wings' travel style but hopefully won't hurt their style of play in a crucial showdown with the Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

Rather than risk long delays forced by the crippling slowdown at O'Hare Airport in Chicago, coach and general manager Sid Abel decided to load the team on the bus for the five- to six-hour trip to the Windy City.

Going into tonight's game, the Wings are in fourth place in the tight NHL East Division playoff race. Chicago and Boston are tied for first with 95 points, Montreal is third with 90, the Red Wings have 89 and New York is fifth with 88. But the Wings have played one game less than any of the other four contenders.

The Wings have four games remaining in the season.

Elsewhere in the Eastern Division, Boston plays at Montreal and New York visits Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Bill Collins enjoyed another $200 night, and the Minnesota North Stars jumped into fourth place in the NHL's West Division.

The North Stars, with Collins getting two goals and an assist, handed the Los Angeles Kings a record-tying 5-2 setback Tuesday night to keep their Stanley Cup playoff hopes alive.

The Oakland Seals, who play tonight at St. Louis, fell one point behind the North Stars in their battle for the final playoff spot in the West. The Seals have three more games to play compared with Minnesota's two.

"We're in fourth now," Collins bubbled after the game. "They have to catch us now."

Collins scored his 27th and 28th goals of the season to raise his bonus money to $1,800—$100 for every goal he makes past 10.

"I guess Wren Blair thought I would only get nine this year," Collins said about his general manager and the 1969-70 contract that carried the bonus provision.

Collins netted only nine goals each of his first two years with the North Stars.

But his goals against the Kings were two of the most important for the North Stars this season.

The first, a lunging shot over goalie Denis DeJordy, gave the North Stars a 2-0 lead. And the second pushed his club ahead 4-2 in the third period after Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago made some brilliant saves against the pressing Kings.

Barry Gibbs and Claude Larose also scored for the North Stars in the first period sending the Kings down 3-0.

But then Eddie Shack beat Maniago on a breakaway and with a shot from behind the blue line to cut the margin to 3-2.

That was all the Kings got in losing their 51st game of the season and tying the 1953-54 Chicago Black Hawks for the most losses in one year.

"If we play like we did tonight," said Larose, "it will be a very interesting finish. I think L. S. will give Oakland trouble this week. If L.A. can take one and we win Saturday, we'll be all right."

Oakland finishes against Los Angeles on a home-and-home basis Friday and Saturday nights. Minnesota winds up with Philadelphia Saturday afternoon and Pittsburgh Sunday night.

Dr. Reizen New Health Director

LANSING (AP) — Dr. Maurice S. Reizen, director of the Ingham County Health Department since 1966, has been named director of the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Reizen, 51, will take over May 4, succeeding Dr. R. Gerald Rice, whose resignation becomes effective Wednesday. In the interim, the job will be filled by Dr. Kenneth Wilcox, director of the department's Bureau of Laboratories.

Rice announced several months ago his intention to leave the post.

In announcing the appointment of Reizen, Gov. William Milliken said the new appointee "possesses the unusual and admirable combination of keen social awareness, medical expertise and experience in hospital administration and public health. He has amply demonstrated a deep concern for the young and the poor."

Reizen is a specialist in general preventive medicine and public health. A 1940 graduate of the University of Michigan, he received a master's degree in public health from that school and a teacher's certificate from Wayne State University in 1946. He received his medical degree in 1950 from the University of Rochester and practiced medicine in Warren for 15 years before taking the job as Ingham County health director.

While in Warren, he served as chief of general practice at South Macomb Hospital and deputy medical examiner for Macomb County.

He also served in the Air Force for five years, being discharged in 1945.

Reizen will serve for a term subject to determination by the governor. Senate confirmation of the appointment is required.

Rice, the outgoing department director, served in the position for some three years.

Solon Against Transportation Planning Program

LANSING (AP)—A $2.38 million transportation planning program for the Detroit metropolitan area has been termed by Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Pontiac, as "another million dollar planning boondoggle."

Anderson said "let's use the over-all plan we've already paid for and put our money into results, not more planning."

Anderson said a multimillion dollar, five-year study plan known as Talus, has just been completed. However, he called attention to a recently announced contract between the State Highway Commission and the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) for yet another study.

The TALUS study, Anderson said, "was supposed to be a wonderful, long range plan for transportation and land use in Southeastern Michigan...Why, with this sparking new plan just completed, is it necessary to immediately begin another project costing millions of tax dollars?"

The new program is to cost $2.38 million, Anderson said, with roughly half coming out of state funds and the other half coming from SEMCOG member communities.

"If the highway commission has nothing better to do with its money than restudy a bunch of earlier studies," Anderson said, "I've sure got plenty of ideas for better use of that cash."

Pumpkin-Stealing Shooting Brings 45-Night Sentence

CASSOPOLIS (AP) — A 38-year-old Cass County farmer has been sentenced to 45 nights in jail after pleading guilty to careless use of firearms in the shooting death of a teen-aged boy, who allegedly stole pumpkins from the farmer's yard.

Circuit Judge James E. Hoff said the sentence against Louis Corwin may be reduced because of good behavior. The judge fined Corwin $100 plus court costs of $100. The judge said that because of Corwin's lack of any previous arrest record, he may work during the day and spend only nights in jail while paying $2.10 per day for board at the jail.

Corwin was originally charged with manslaughter in the Oct. 29 slaying of Steven Cook, 16, but the charge was dismissed on recommendation of the county prosecutor. The farmer said he fired a .22-caliber rifle into the air to frighten boys stealing his pumpkins.

Daughter Dies In Fall From Car

OVID, Mich. (AP) — A seven-year-old Fremont, Ind., girl died Tuesday when she fell out a door of a car driven by her father in Ovid Township of Branch County, Mich., near the Michigan-Indiana border.

Branch County Sheriff's deputies quoted the child's father, Robert L. Snyder, 31, as saying that his daughter Laurynda Lee Snyder, was seated near the front right door of the car when the door suddenly opened and the girl fell out.

The only other passenger, Laurynda's sister, Denise, 3, was seated next to her father and was not injured, deputies said.

TODAY IS THE DAY HISTORY WILL KNOW AS G-DAY.

THE 1970 GREMLIN

This is April 1, 1970. But more importantly, this is the day we introduce the 1970 Gremlin from American Motors. Break out the hats and horns. Gremlin is the car this country has needed for 18 yrs. It's a car that's fun to drive and ride in and easy to look at. It's only 2½ inches longer than the bug. But it's almost 10 inches longer than the bug. But it's almost 10 inches wider and 800 pounds heavier. There's a 128 hp proved engine (compared to VW's 57 hp) that commands 23 miles from a gallon of regular gas. Predictably, Gremlin will call a halt to foreign infiltration. We encourage you to assault our showrooms and arm yourself with a Gremlin.

If you do, you'll never forget April 1, 1970, as G-Day . . . the day we turned them back in the streets and beat them at their own game on the freeways.

Up the Gremlin. Priced from $1879 * Plus Freight

U-M Events Spoil Public Confidence, Republican Says

LANSING (AP) — A ranking House Republican says events at the University of Michigan are "destroying the public's confidence in the university" and could provoke "dire consequences."

Rep. Hal Ziegler of Jackson, assistant House minority floor leader, called on the U-M Board of Regents to "completely inform" the public about the 12-day strike precipitated by the Black Action Movement (BAM).

BAM representatives and U-M officials had been conducting secret negotiations on student demands.

"The hell with these secret negotiations," Ziegler said. "The people want to know what's going on."

Ziegler said calls to his office indicated people believe the university is "being mismanaged. I feel the conflicting stories coming out of Ann Arbor are the main reason that the public feels the university is not being properly administered," he said in a letter to board members.

"Whether this opinion is right or wrong is immaterial, because it is the conclusion that the public reaches that matters," he said.

Ziegler indicated expectations of public pressures to cut the university's budget, a move he said would be "improper as it would be punishing the innocent."

"Further, I would feel that pressure would be exerted to try to change the constitutional autonomy that presently exists and which certainly is desirable," he added.

Regents, Ziegler said, should "immediately ask all of the news media to make available whatever time is necessary to completely inform the public as to what is occurring at the university, what the university's reaction is and has been, and what is contemplated for the future.

"Anything short of a complete effort to restore the public's support and confidence in the university would have dire consequences," he said.

Ziegler said also that any agreements made with officials and students should be approved by the regents, as "the voice of the people in their elected capacity."

Newspaper Want Ads are a big sell! One billion, twenty-one million was spent on classified ads last year . . . more than for all magazine advertising combined and more than 300 million more than radio advertising.

With Care, Seed Becomes Lawn

A grass seed is one of Nature's most successful inventions. It needs only a little help to transform barren ground into a beautiful lawn.

Seed is easy to handle, and lawn spreaders make light of distributing seed uniformly.

Seed can lie dormant until weather is just right. It carries its own energy supply, sufficient to push a seedling several inches tall before the grass plant itself takes over. It is not harmed by freezing and is too small to be of great interest to bird and beast.

Needs Moisture

Lawnseed does need moisture and warmth in order to sprout. If it contacts the soil, moisture should be adequate in spring. Warmth will come as spring advances, with germination starting slowly and accelerating later.

There is generally no cause for concern here. But you do have to provide for the seed-soil contact.

Lawn seeding is most satisfactory when made to a cultivated, fertilized soil. Then there is a tumble of loose soil into which the seed can settle and become partly buried. But you can seed successfully even to uncultivated soil, though it is best to scratch the surface in order to better hold the seed.

Where soil cannot be cultivated, be sure to mulch the new seeding. A mulch over the seeding retains moisture and prevents the seed from washing away.

Early As Possible

Mulch may be of any inert material that retards moisture evaporation but is porous enough to let rain and light through. Clean straw a few straws deep, excelsior mats, woven nettings or fiberglass blankets are much used.

Seed the lawn as early in spring as is feasible, in order to let the grass root deeply before hot weather comes. Begin mowing when the soil has dried sufficiently to be firm, about when the new grass reaches twice what will be its customary mowing height.

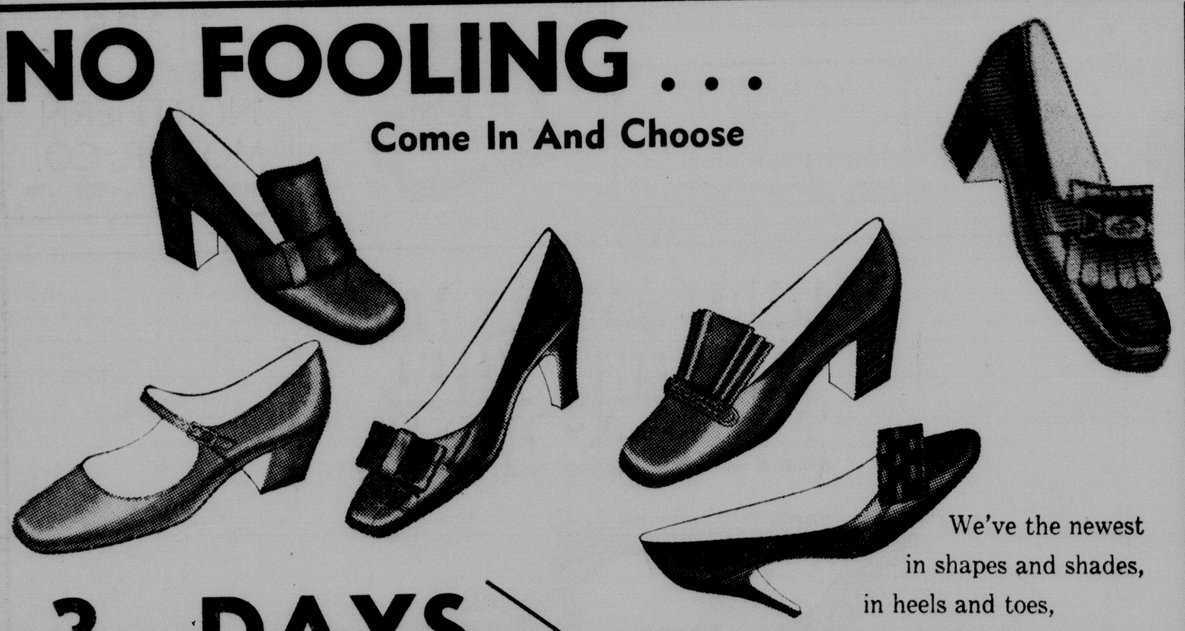

Grass will then be old enough to endure chemical weed control.
